What Business, Mr. Edison?

Civil War? Ida Tarbell.
Crime and Bootlegging.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THOMAS A. EDISON tells President Hoover through the "Illinois Manufacturing News" that "one of the highest duties of the President is to keep the government out of business."

That depends on the kind of business, also on the honesty and efficiency of government.

MR. EDISON wouldn't have the government abandon the postoffice and turn it over to Wall street promoters.

The postoffice is a business. It carries a letter from the southern tip of Florida to the northern tip of Alaska for two cents.

And carries it safely.

NEW YORK explodes gasoline in a big way. In the first six months of 1929, the state taxed 774,701,746 gallons of gasoline, not including gasoline used by farmers.

IT would have taken 968 freight trains of 80 cars each to carry that gasoline. Who would have believed that when Senator Couzens was investing less than $2,000 in the little Ford car, taking out, within a short time, $30,000,000 as his share?

A COAST GUARD ship chasing a rum-running boat killed three of the four men on board, wounded the fourth. Other rum running killings, here and there, in the day's news.

Rear Admiral Billard warns bootleggers that his coast guard means business. No "soft words" will be used. Rum runners are told they will stop when ordered, or "get hurt."

IDA M. TARBELL, deplores prohibition and asks "Is prohibition forcing civil war?"

Before the Civil War there was a "anti and pro-slavery party."

Now Miss Tarbell sees a wet and a dry party and repeats the question that Karl Schurz asked five years before Fort Sumter was fired on, "Can this fight be decided without powder?"

THE moderation league, perhaps prejudiced, says intoxication is increasing rapidly. Among children the rate of death from alcoholism is higher, and arrests for drunkenness in 1928 were most numerous since 1914.

PROHIBITION is here because it is in the Constitution and there it will outlast any now living.

Jane Addams says, "a great number of young people are drinking from a sense of bravado."

It may be bravado, but that will not help the young people's kidneys, brains, or character, unfortunately.

THE question for the people is "what can be done about it?"

Thomas Jefferson told the legislature of Virginia, giving a letter of introduction for an English brewer, that he thought light beer and wine the only means of combatting whisky.

That idea has been abandoned.

INDIA seeks absolute self-government, suggesting refusal to pay taxes, a situation that worries Britain's labor government, in charge of India, among other imperial details.

IF the well-meaning Mahatma Gandhi has his way India will learn a lesson.

Taxes collected by rajahs, or overnight dictators, would NOT be used to supply pure water, or fight plague and famine.

THERE is a fertile field for sowing Russian propaganda, only more than 299,000,000 of the 300,000,000 inhabitants of India wouldn't know what the Russians were talking about.

GOV. ROOSEVELT, of New York asks $800,000 for more prisons and an emergency appropriation of $1,000,000.

Why not have separate prisons for young criminals, all under twenty-one, instead of locking them up with the old criminals, to learn their trade more thoroughly.

It happens that very young criminals are the most numerous, dangerous, cruel, and generally given to murder. They need special treatment, which should include some years of hard work, avoided when they took up crime as an alternative.

The head of a New York drug ring included in his private telephone list the number of the distinguished judge whose welcome home dinner was attended by many well known criminals, and enlivened by a holdup.

New York also learns that another judge promoted advertising, legal and other, in a publication that had no real existence, was never printed.

The imaginary manager of the imaginary manual, possessed of a police record, was once discharged by the kind judge that supplied advertising to the manual.

Shakespeare might have put all that in his highly imaginative play, "The Tempest."

YOU have, gentle reader, about 119,305,999 American brothers and sisters.

The Bureau of Economic Research puts our population at 119,306,000, including you.

WE have increased 14,000,000 in 10 years, while keeping out, largely, the "unfit European population that breeds crime," according to advocates of restricted emigration.

But we have not kept out crime itself. We have plenty of that.

MOVIE FIRE KILLS 72 IN SCOTLAND

Children Perish in Panic as Flames Sweep Theater; Parents Horror-Stricken

International News Service.

PAISLEY, Scotland, Dec. 31.—A blazing motion picture film, which fell from the projection room of the Glen Theater here to the orchestra floor during a New Year's Eve matinee for children, precipitated a frightful panic which took a toll of at least 72 lives today.

Hundreds of children, ranging in ages from 16 months to 14 years, filled the theater to capacity at the time the fire started.

BLAZING FILM FALLS

The main feature film, "The Crowd," was just about to start when the operator saw a wisp of smoke curling from the film. He yanked the film from the machine and rushed out of the projection box, but the blazing roll dropped from his scorched hands.

It fell to the street floor of the theater and landed directly in front of the main exit. Draperies and rugs quickly were set afire, presenting an impassable wall to the hundreds of children who had risen from their seats in hysterical panic with the first smell of smoke.

Scores of the children were trampled under foot in the mad rush for the exit, during which emergency doorways and fire escapes were entirely forgotten.

Firemen who quickly arrived on the scene hacked through the

DRUNK ARRESTS IN CITY DROP

Drinking in Pittsburgh decreased in 1929, it is indicated by the number of persons arrested for drunkenness.

Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh's annual report shows that 31,804 persons were arrested for taking a nip too many in 1928 and that the 1929 total will approximate 28,000. Arrests for 11 months of 1929 were 25,683.

Baldwin Sees Fall Of Labor Regime

LONDON, Dec. 31. — (AP.) — Suggestion of a new British general election at a not distant date was made today by Stanley Baldwin, former conservative prime minister, in a New Year's message to the Primrose League of his party.

He appealed for a year of hard work, "For we do not know how soon we may be again in the turmoil of a general election." He said the Labor government was encountering increasing difficulties as a result of rash election promises.

Woman in Congress Wants Men to Lead

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.— (AP.) —Mrs. Pearl Peden Oldfield, member of Congress, hopes man will continue to dominate government 100 years from now. "There are so many things a woman can do that a man can't," she explained. "Why not do them and let the men do what they can?" Mrs. Oldfield has decided not to seek re-election.

CHAPLIN RAPS HALL SITE

James C. Chaplin, chairman of the executive committee of the Allegheny County (Downtown) Hall Association and president of the Colonial Trust Company, today said that "Allegheny County had better build a town hall where it can be used or not build any at all.

"This is the unanimous opinion of the executive committee of the association."

His comment followed a meeting yesterday in which opposition to the Schenley Farms site was unanimously expressed by the group heads. The Schenley Farms spot was the lone one suggested last week by the County Planning Commission. At the conference yesterday 16 of the 22 members were present.

A sub-committee was named to draw up a letter to county commissioners in which they will be told the reasons for opposition to the planners' suggestion. It consisted of J. C. Chaplin, chairman; A. H. Burchfield, Philip C. Hodill, Leo Lehman and W. J. Strassburger.

Revelers Can Go Limit If Fun Is Clean and Orderly; No Dry Raids Contemplated

As long as reveling natives, making merry in city and county, don't drown out the New Year's whistles and bells, everything will be all right.

If it's "good clean fun" and orderly, it has the approval of James M. Clark, director of public safety, and Peter P. Walsh, superintendent of police.

So ruled the police heads today on New Year's Eve festivities.

CITIZENS FIGHT BANK BANDITS

DAYTON, O., Dec. 31.—(INS.)—Residents of Phillipsburg, near here, today rose up en masse and staged a gun battle with five bank bandits.

They are believed to have shot one of the robbers, who were armed with machine guns.

Ralph Davenport, cashier of the bank, and his wife, were held prisoners in their home near the bank throughout the night, waiting for the time vault to open today.

The alarm was spread when Floyd, 14-year-old son of the Davenports, returned home this morning after spending the night with friends.

BATTLE BEGINS

When he opened the door of the residence, a man leveled a machine gun at him. Floyd fled to a nearby filling station, and the filling station attendant sounded a general alarm for citizens of the town.

Bullets fired from rifles, shotguns and revolvers answered the rapid machine-gun fire of the bandit gang.

The battle occurred on the main street of the village.

ROADS GUARDED

As they fled down the main street they continued their machine gun fire.

All Western Ohio police have been notified, and deputy sheriffs are patrolling the highways. It is believed that the bandits will attempt to flee toward a large city as they must have aid for their dead or wounded member.

"MY MOTHER SHOT TWO COPS—"

DONNIE SCHROEDER, 4, TELLING STATE POLICE HIS MOTHER SHOT TWO PATROLMEN

Donnie, child found in Bellaire, O., voluntarily telling Pennsylvania State Police that his mother, missing blonde, shot "two cops." She's hunted in the roadside slaying and wounding of two Highway Patrolmen near New Castle. Notice Donnie's laughing as he tells his story.

ROAD KILLING DESCRIBED BY CHILD

Son of 'Blonde Gunwoman' Suspect Pictures Escape; 'Papa Hurt,' He Explains

By AL GOUGH,
Staff Correspondent.

BELLAIRE, O., Dec. 31. — Four-year-old Donnie Schroeder looked up at three Pennsylvania state highway patrolmen here today and spoke damaging words against his mother.

"Ho," Donnie boasted, "my mother shot two state cops like you."

This was the greeting of the child whose mother, Mrs. Irene Schroeder, is alleged to be the blonde trigger woman sought in the murder of one highway patrolman and the wounding of another on the Butler-New Castle road last Friday.

'LOT OF SHOOTING'

Donnie, located at the home of relatives, told a vivid, concise story of that shooting.

He said his mother's companions on the auto ride were his uncle, Tom Crawford, 25, of Benwood, and Glen Dague, 26, Wheeling auto salesman.

"There was a lot of shooting," the child continued, "and my papa got hurt. My mamma shot one cop and he laid back in the road. Uncle Joe shot one in the head—he shot right through the windshield."

'PAPA' BOY'S UNCLE

'Papa,' police say, is not the child's legal father, but his uncle. The father and mother are separated, the father being in California.

"What did you do after those 'two cops' were shot?" inquired Lieut. E. J. Henry.

"Oh, we drove a little ways in our old car and then got a new one," the youngster proudly replied.

CAR THEFT DESCRIBED

That was when the fleeing party held up Ray Horton and Miss Elsie Nickum on the outskirts of New Castle, police say.

"Did you get that car in a garage?" the lieutenant queried again.

"No—we got that car from some fellow," the lad replied vaguely, and then as an apparent afterthought, "It was a swell car and I liked it, but then we did get one in a garage—

Gasparri Improves, Receives His Aides

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 31.—(AP.) —Cardinal Gasparri, retiring papal secretary of state, who is ill with influenza, was better today, although he ran a temperature. He received Under Secretary of State Monsignor Pizzardo and his assistant, Monsignor Ottaviani. His temperature rose to 100 last night, but receded to 99. Despite this he spent a fairly easy, restful night. His doctor ordered him to remain abed.

Grundy Retires as Borough Councilman

BRISTOL, Pa., Dec. 31.—(INS.) —Senator Joseph R. Grundy for 29 years a member of the Borough Council here, was placed in the category of an ex-councilman today. His resignation was accepted at the meeting of Council last night with expressions of regret from his fellow citizens. The post of councilman from the Second Ward here was the only public office Senator Grundy ever held until he was appointed senator last month.

Eynon Reiterates Warning Against Obsolete Tags

Although more than 400,000 automobiles in Pennsylvania today were without 1930 license plates, no time will be extended owners of cars, Benjamin G. Eynon, of the state vehicle bureau announced last night from Harrisburg.

As soon as he had received notice from the state official that persons driving after midnight with 1929 licenses will be arrested, Paul C. Wolff, secretary of the Automobile Club of Pittsburgh, warned Pittsburghers to keep their cars in their garages until new plates are obtained.

Youth of Capital Merry At Allan Hoover Party

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Just like any jolly young peoples' party in an American home was the dance given at the White House last night by Allan Hoover, younger son of the President and Mrs. Hoover.

A limited number of young people from the official and presidential groups made up the guest list. The affair had been hurriedly arranged and verbal invitations were given only a few days ago.

Prett ebutantes in dainty frocks danced with the President's son and some of his Harvard classmates who are home for the holidays. A hotel orchestra played jazz music. The Marine Band played during supper, which was served at midnight at small tables in the state dining room.

The dance began at 10 o'clock and ended soon after midnight to permit the guests with other engagements to go elsewhere.

Notwithstanding the fact that she was suffering from a cold, Mrs. Hoover attended the party.

$13,000 for Vets' Widows Remain Unclaimed

Checks for $100 each await only the claiming by widows of World War veterans who enlisted while residents of the Twenty-second and Twenty-fifth wards.

Members of the Eighteenth Zone Veterans' Association have announced that they have in trust more than $13,000 to be distributed to such widows.

The money is the remaining principal and accumulated interest of a fund built up during the war to do war relief work for soldiers who enlisted or were inducted into service from the Eighteenth Zone draft district.

At the close of the war the plan was evolved to distribute the money to soldiers' widows, giving each $100, the only stipulation being that the widow give proof that her husband at the time of his induction or enlistment lived in the Eighteenth Zone.

So far only six widows have claimed their shares.

The money is held in trust by the Dollar Savings and Trust Company. Elmer G. Thumm, of 3010 Bergman street, is president, and William J. Gumbert, secretary, of the organization having charge of distribution. They will hold an open meeting of the organization on January 6.

INTERESTS HERE RESUME DRIVE FOR CANAL TO LAKES

YOUNGSTOWN PLAN TO BE FOUGHT

Meeting Called for Jan. 7 To Push Campaign; Army Chief Assures Hearing

Activity of Pittsburgh district business interests to maintain the integrity of a canal between the Ohio River and the Lakes and to prevent the creation of a separate waterway project for Youngstown, O., was resumed today in Pittsburgh and Washington.

A. B. Shepherd, of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation, chairman of the rivers and harbors committee of the Chamber of Commerce, has called a meeting for January 7, and Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, engineer-in-chief of the Corps of United States Engineers, has assured the Lake Erie and Ohio River Canal Board that a further hearing will be granted for the presentation of advantages of the through route to Lake Erie.

WASTE OF MONEY SEEN

Pittsburgh interests believe that the surveys made during the last 20 years at an expense of more than $250,000 are sufficient, and that the request for legislation by Congress authorizing a separate survey of the Beaver, Shenango and Mahoning rivers is unnecessary. The bill introduced in the Senate by Senator David A. Reed and in the House by Representative J. Howard Swick, it is contended by Pittsburgh advocates of the canal, would create a new project and furnish an excuse to abandon the waterway route from Youngstown to the lakes in the event of the completion of the Beaver, Shenango and Mahoning deep channel.

"The plans for a completed waterway from the Ohio to the lakes via Youngstown were made in good faith and a second project would mean a needless waste of public money if its supporters are acting in the same good faith toward Pittsburgh,' said William H. Stevenson, chairman of the Lake Erie and Ohio River Canal Board.

It was pointed out that a canal to Youngstown without the link to the lakes would give the Youngstown basin manufacturing district a tremendous advantage over Pittsburgh. A "dead-end" canal at Youngstown would give that territory cheaper fuel and furnish an all-water route to the Gulf while it would continue to enjoy a much lower rate on raw materials.

OPENS WAY FOR STUDY

On Shepherd's committee at the Chamber of Commerce, A. N. Diehl, of the Carnegie Steel Company, is vice chairman. Its members and their respective business interests are: C. C. Bunton, Pittsburgh Coal Company; Arthur E. Crockett, Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation; Frank R. Dravo, Dravo Contracting Company; John P. Eichleay, John Eichleay, Jr., Company; James F. Hillman, Hillman Coal & Coke Company; E. W. Judy, Duquesne Light Company; Philip Kussart, Monongahela & Ohio Dredging Company; C. S. Lamb, Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company; Thomas M. Rees, James Rees & Sons; Phil K. Rodgers, Rodgers Sand Company; Capt. J. Frank Tilley, Pittsburgh Coal Exchange; R. E. Withers, Aluminum Company of America; Charles E. Beeson, Pittsburgh Steel Company.

Gen. Brown's letter to Chairman Stevenson of the canal board today opens the way by the new administration at Washington for further study of the original project and the consideration of the various reports to Congress, it was stated. The re-opening of the hearings will result in the mobilization of all Pennsylvania and Ohio interests and Ohio Valley supporters for the Ohio River and Lake Erie Canal.

Envoys Give Princess Dinner Set for 48

BRUSSELS, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—In the presence of diplomats and their wives, Monsignor Micara, papal Nuncio to Belgium and dean of the diplomatic corps, presented to Princess Marie Jose a wedding present from the diplomatic corps. It consisted of a crystal dinner service for 48 guests, each piece engraved with the royal arms of Italy. The service is considered one of the finest in existence.

Rankin Man Found Dead From Exposure

Found dead from exposure in Rankin, the body of John Jovan, alias John Somak, 42, of Rankin, was in the Allegheny County Morgue today. Rankin police were called by John Bodrock, of 334 Fourth street, saying a man was lying in his back yard. Police took the man to the Braddock General Hospital, but he was dead. Deputy coroners said Jovan's clothes were so badly tattered they were thrown away.

roof of the building and directed many of the uninjured children to the emergency exit. But the horrible toll of the disaster had already been taken, and tangled masses of infantile humanity, wedged six deep before the main exit, gave eloquent testimony of the panic-stricken rush for safety.

PANIC CAUSES DEATHS

Although the theater was old and flimsily built, the fire itself did little damage and was extinguished as soon as firemen could force their way through the body-barricaded door to the interior. Most of the deaths, an early investigation indicated, were caused by trampling and suffocation.

A few pitiful little bodies, unmarked with violence but stiff in death, indicated that stark fear itself had a hand in adding to the toll of dead.

The tragedy was the worst which has ever befallen Paisley, famous throughout the world for its colorful shawls and other products of its mills. The children were all those of mill workers, many of whom have been forced into unemployment by the recent industrial depression which has hit all of Great Britain.

More than 150 children were treated at hospitals for their injuries. Traffic through the main streets of Paisley, a city of 83,000 population near Glasgow, was completely suspended as the right of way was given to ambulances, fire apparatus and rescue cars speeding to and from the scene of the holocaust.

TRAGIC SCENES

Heart-rending scenes were enacted in front of the theater as word of the tragedy spread through Paisley. Parents who a short while before had sent the children to the theater to enjoy the performance, stormed the movie house, seeking their little ones from out tragic heaps of dead.

The entire city had been in holiday mood, as New Year's is the principal festival throughout Scotland. The trafic performance at the Glen theater had been arranged to provide the children with an especial holiday treat.

All of Paisley responded immediately when the emergency came, and trolley cars on the street where the theater is located were pressed into service as ambulances.

One by one, inert little bodies were placed on the cars and rushed to the nearest hospital, while private automobiles were also used to transport the injured to the hospital.

LOSES 3 CHILDREN

Attendants at one hospital told the heart-rending story of a Paisley father who rushed to the institution when word of the tragedy reached him, only to find that all three of his little children had met their deaths in the blaze.

Although a strapping, strong mill-worker of hardy Scottish constitution, the man fainted dead away when informed that his children were among the dead.

Many of the dead children presented sight awful to see, with their little faces bleeding from deep gashes obviously caused by fingernails and bootheels inflicted by others in their mad rush for the exits.

It was ironical that the film being flashed upon the screen as a special New Year's eve treat for the children was the American picture called "The Crowd."

It is estimated 600 children were in the theater at the time the fire and panic broke out. At least 150 of this number sustained serious injuries, and it is feared the death toll will mount far above the present figure.

Kill Fly Quick? Aim for Back Of Neck

DES MOINES, Ia., Dec. 31.—(Ap.)—This should put a premium on fly-spraying accuracy.

Extended experimentation with insecticides has revealed that the back of the neck is the most vulnerable part of a house fly's anatomy, George L. Hockenyos, of the University of Illinois, told the entomology section of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Grants 2 Divorces, Weds Pair in Hour

RENO, Rev., Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Thomas Boyd, novelist, and his bride, the former Mrs. Ruth Fitch Bartlett, were honeymooning today following a hasty marriage that came on the heels of divorces obtained by each yesterday. An hour after the District Court had granted Boyd and Mrs. Bartlett divorces the two appeared before the same judge and were married. Mrs. Bartlett was divorced from Walter Scott Bartlett, New York banker. Boyd obtained a divorce from Margaret Woodward Smith Boyd, formerly of Chicago. Both charged mental cruelty.

ARTISTS HERE PICK JUDGES

Christian J. Walter, president of the Associated Artists of Pittsburgh, announced today that Charles Hawthorne, of New York City; John Carroll, of Woodstock, N. Y., and Ivan Olinsky, of New York City, had been chosen as the jury of award for the twentieth annual exhibition of the association, to be held at Carnegie Institute, February 13 to March 13.

The three men, elected by a mail ballot of the members, will select the canvases to be hung and award the prizes. The jury will meet February 1.

The association has 300 members and usually about 300 pictures are shown.

The major prizes will be: $250 donated by the Fine Arts Committee of Carnegie Institute; $150, $100 and $50 given by the Associated Artists; $100 given by the Art Society of Pittsburgh; $25 given by the alumnae of the former School of Design for Women; an anonymously donated prize of $50; the Euphemia Bakewell prize of $50; the Camilla Robb Russell Memorial prize of $25 and the A. W. Smith, Jr., prize of $50.

G. O. P. Women Arrange 'School of Politics'

The Allegheny County Council of Republican Women will conduct a "school of politics," open to all Republican women, in the Blue Room of the William Penn Hotel, with sessions January 2, February 6, March 6 and April 3, at 11 a. m. It will be the fourth year of the school.

The kind of politics that will be taught is not what is ordinarily understood by the word—that is, how to win elections and attain public office — but the science of government.

At the first session Dr. Andrew N. Cleven will discuss "Political Theories and Practices of Hispanic America;" at the second, Miss Sara Soffel, attorney, will discuss "Current Political Events;" at the third Edward O. Tabor, attorney, will discuss "Our International Relations — Present Day Treaties," and at the fourth, Prof. Francis D. Tyson, University of Pittsburgh, will discuss "What Business Teaches Us About Our City and County Government."

The committee in charge is composed of Mrs. Richard Neff, Mrs. John W. Lawrence, Mrs. John M. Phillips, Mrs. Arch Powell and Mrs. Forrest Myers.

Mrs. Clifton A. Verner is president of the council; Mrs. Lawrence and Mrs. Neff are vice presidents; Mrs. W. W. Robinson is treasurer; Mrs. Donald West, recording secretary, and Mrs. C. W. Parker, corresponding secretary.

'MAMMA SHOT 2 POLICEMEN,' BOY BOASTS

after that, it was—and we came down here in it."

After he had told his story in his uncle's home, Donnie was to be taken to the Pennsylvania highway patrol's headquarters in New Castle. In custody of state police, he was taken from Bellaire police station, where his uncle, Ray Schroeder, and his grandfather, Henry Crawford, are being held.

QUESTIONS QUIZZERS

The child was vague about where he had been up until the time he was brought here, but showed marked aptitude for answering questions. Once he appeared as though he was tired of answering, so he flung one of a rather surprising nature himself at the officers.

"Who's a bum?" he queried pointedly, and he repeated it again several times around the ring of puzzled faces. "Who's a bum?"

"You're a good little fellow, Donnie," supplied one of the officers, thinking to appease the little chap who apparently had misunderstood. "No-o-." Donnie looked scornfully around. "The bumble-bee—he's a bum."

Everybody joined in the laugh and Donnie once again was ready to answer questions.

MOTHER "GOING AWAY"

"Where did your mamma tell you she was going when she left, Donnie?" the little fellow was asked.

"Oh, she was going away," he replied.

"But where—didn't she tell you?"

"Oh, sure—she was going to Uncle Joe's."

"But where's that?" the officer persisted.

"Oh, up a dirt road," Donnie answered with finality.

HIDDEN BY STORM

From information gleaned from the child's story, police learned that Mrs. Schroeder and her two companions slipped into Benwood under cover of a snowstorm early yesterday morning. They went to the Crawford home, leaving the child with his grandfather, and then continued their flight.

Among those to listen to Donnie's story today was Patrolman Ernest Moore, the wounded officer. Moore, with Corp. Brady Paul, who was slain, encountered the killers on the highway after they had been instructed to watch for the woman and two men who had held up a chain store in Butler, Pa.

Moore told later that when he saw the child in the woman's lap he was satisfied that the occupants of the car were not the bandits. His satisfaction was short-lived for the woman and a man opened fire on the patrolmen a minute later.

POLICE WARNED

Chief of Police Fred Frazier, of Wheeling, today warned Pennsylvania state police as well as his own men that they would have to "shoot it out" with the suspects if they encountered them.

"They will not be taken without a battle," Chief Frazier predicted.

According to Frazier, Edward Crawford, a brother of Mrs. Schroeder, was shot and killed by guards in the rioting in the Colorado state prison at Denver several months ago. He was serving 15 years on a highway robbery charge, the chief said.

When the Schroeder woman and her male accomplices slipped into Benwood with her son they are believed to have obtained additional arms and ammunition from the "Navy Yard gang," of which one of the men sought is a member, according to Chief Frazier.

The Pittsburgh Motor Club today offered a reward of $200 for the apprehension and conviction of Paul's slayers, boosting the total reward, thus far, to $3,200.

INCOME DATA CALLED EARLY

Employers are informed today in a circular letter issued by D. B. Heiner, collector of internal revenue, that reports of salaries paid during 1929 must be mailed to his office on or before February 15, 1930, instead of to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue at Washington on or before March 15, as heretofore.

There is no change in the time regulations for income tax returns, which may be filed up to March 15 as usual.

Form No. 1,099 is to be used in reporting payments during the year of salaries or other determinable income of $1,500 or more if made to a single person, or $3,500 or more if made to a married person. There must also be reported on form No. 1,099 payments of dividends to shareholders who were paid $500 or more each during the year.

Form No. 1,096 is affected by the new regulations as well as No. 1,099.

100 State Road Patrolmen At Slain 'Buddy's' Funeral

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 31.—While his comrades were searching for his blonde killer, Corp. Brady Paul was laid to rest today in his native Hickory, Pa. One hundred highway patrolmen attended services at the Hickory Presbyterian Church and followed the funeral procession to the Mt. Prospect Presbyterian Cemetery. Lieut. John P. Oldhom and Capt. D. E. Miller, of Troop B, of which Paul was a member, were among the state authorities present. Chief mourners were Paul's mother, Mrs. Vinta Paul McGugin, and his two brothers, V. M. and W. M. Paul.

FREED TOMBOY IN JAIL AGAIN

Laura Adeline Deaner, alias "Johnny," pretty 19-year-old girl, who was posing as a boy last May when arrested with a gang of counterfeiters in Bedford County, and subsequently paroled in Federal Court when the others were sentenced, is again in the toils of the law.

Federal Probation Officer George O'Brien was advised today by District Attorney J. C. Wright, of Bedford County, that Miss Deaner is in the county jail awaiting trial for alleged participation in a robbery at a barbecue stand. O'Brien said he will petition the Federal Court for revocation of her parole and ask imposition of sentence on the counterfeit charge.

Miss Deaner has always worn boys' clothing. She lives with her parents in a mountainous district in Bedford County and performs the work of a man, even to clearing lands and pulling tree stumps.

Shortly before her most recent arrest she asked permission of Probation Officer O'Brien to be allowed to go to Altoona and work.

When told she might go if she discarded the male togs, she refused to do so, saying she would rather keep working on her father's farm.

Veteran Cattleman Dies in California

OAKLAND, Cal., Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Elbert Clark Apperson, 78, brother of the late Mrs. Phoebe Hearst and uncle of William Randolph Hearst, newspaper publisher, died yesterday at Sunol, near here. He was a retired cattleman and had made his home at Sunol for 60 years. He was a native of Missouri.

Surviving him are his widow, Elizabeth A. Apperson, with whom he celebrated their forty-third wedding anniversary December 17; a daughter, Mrs. Joseph Flint, now traveling in Europe, and a son, Randolph Apperson, city counsel of Pleasanton.

Auto, Truck Crash, Two Cut by Glass

J. V. Bradley, 446 Biddle avenue, and W. W. Kissinger, 228 Kelley street, both of Wilkinsburg, were cut by shattered glass in a collision of Bradley's car and a truck at Penn and East End avenues today.

Both were taken to Columbia Hospital. Bradley was detained for observation. Kissinger was able to go home. The truck, owned by the Ward Baking Company, was driven by D. E. Hastings, 1813 East street, police reported.

LABOR MEET HITS STATE POLICE

Resolutions Excoriate Treasurer A. W. Mellon, Coal Barons and Wall Street

Resolutions were passed by the International Labor Defense today, in concluding the annual convention, condemning the industrial and state police systems of Pennsylvania, demanding their abolition and advising workers to resist them.

Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon and the steel and coal magnates of Pittsburgh were excoriated.

Pittsburgh police were condemned for interfering with a Communist meeting on the North Side, and Superintendent Peter P. Walsh was denounced by name because of his alleged activities in a steel strike.

Most of the session, held in the Labor Lyceum, Miller street, was devoted to the consideration of resolutions. The sedition and criminal syndicalism laws were condemned and the release of political prisoners demanded. "Wall street rule" and "American despotism" in Haiti were condemned.

Yesterday, the second day of the convention, saw the start of a flareup which threatened for a moment to repeat the indignation meeting at the Monongahela House Sunday. Just before adjournment for lunch, the question of whether a Center avenue restaurant would permit Negroe delegates to eat on the first floor was put before the convention. Delegates were given a private room on account of their numbers, and two white and two Negro delegates were allowed on the first floor.

CONVICTED MEN SPEAK

Speeches by the seven men convicted for the killing of Chief of Police Aderholdt, of Gastonia, North Carolina, occupied a large part of the meeting's attention. The seven men, Fred Beal, Clarence Miller, K. Y. Hendrix, Louis McLaughlin, Joseph Harrison, George Carter, Bill McGinnis, are free pending appeal of their earlier conviction.

Thunderous applause greeted speaker after speaker who rose to denounce the Southern textile mill owners, the newspapers of the South, the American Federation of Labor, and the state governments, particularly that of North Carolina. Between many of the speeches, the convention, 332 strong, arose to sing the "Internationale," anthem of the Communist party.

Among the many speakers was Stephen Graham, Norfolk, Va., who faces five years imprisonment, it is said, for holding a meeting attended by white and black workers at which he urged racial equality. Graham told the convention that he is held for the "crime of inciting the Negro population to riot against the white population, something which I never have done. I only demand that the Negro throw off the shackles of his oppression and join hand in hand with the white worker in establishing revolutionary trade unions."

GIRL WORKER ACTIVE

Yetta Stromberg, sentenced to serve 10 years in prison for her part in founding a workers' camp for children in the San Bernardino Valley, California, was present through the day's meeting and active in committee meetings, but did not address the convention.

Appeal for support in fighting the imprisonment of the Gastonia strikers, of Graham, of Miss Stromberg, of the Centralia, Wash., preparedness parade rioters, of Mooney and Billings, convicted for an alleged San Francisco bombing, and of William Shefrim, New York furrier-labor agitator, punctuated the many reports and speeches throughout the day and far into the night.

The convention is united, leaders say, in supporting racial equality. Twenty-five Negroes present as delegates to the convention took a prominent part in the proceedings.

Other speakers were: Charles Frank, Negro, of New York, a member of the Gastonia "Labor Jury;" "Mother" Ella Reeve Bloore, district organizer in the Northwest; Robert Dunn, New York; Pat Cush, Pittsburgh; Bill Williams, Negro, Charlotte, N. C.; William Noel, Negro, Detroit; George Mauner, Southern organizer; Bill Dunne, New York, and Abraham Jakira, New York.

Worker Found Dead In Railroad Camp

William Miller, 50, also known as William Novolei, was found dead in his bunk at a Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad camp in McKees Rocks early today by a night watchman. At the morgue an autopsy disclosed heart trouble as the cause of death.

Insomnia, Piano Wage East End Contest

Without ballyhoo or ostentation, a professor of the piano was tickling the ivories in a storeroom in Penn avenue, East End, today, bent on breaking the world's record for continuous piano playing.

And while he played the piano a second professor was trying to keep awake.

One Prof B. G. Burt is the piano player. He took up his duties last night. At noon today he had been caressing the keys for 16 hours. The professor who was trying to keep awake was Prof. Percy R. Sparling. Prof. Burt has promised Prof. Sparling $100 if Prof. Sparling remains awake longer than Prof. Burt plays the piano.

East End taxpayers, aroused by this invasion of their territory, examined the exhibition today with intense interest. The business savored of Milton D. Crandall, father of the marathon dance, but Crandall indignantly denied any connection.

"I am through with goofy contests," Prof. Crandall announced in a new year's statement in which he professed faith in the basic conditions of this country.

COAST GUARDS HELD IN THEFT OF SMUGGLED LIQUOR

STOLEN RUM DISCLOSED BY RIOT

Boats, Destroyers Searched; 2 Senators Join Protests On Killing of 3 by Patrol

International News Service.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Dec. 31.—As two United States Senators joined today in the wave of protest which has followed the killing of three members of the crew of the rum runner Black Duck, a separate inquiry was began into the alleged theft of liquor by coast guards from the smuggling craft Flor - Del - Mar, captured about the time of the Black Duck shooting.

The police charge that liquor seized in a raid on a private home came from the coast guard base, and say that five coast guards and sailors under arrest admit this.

The guards, together with one woman seized in the raid, were ordered held in default of $500 bail each for hearing in Police Court on January 2. They were charged with breach of peace and intoxication.

POLICE COURT CASE

"The matter is now a Police Court case," said L. T. Chalker, commander of the coast guard destroyer fleet here. "When the police have finished we shall investigate."

The police raid followed a brawl in which both members of the coast guard and sailors from the submarine base here participated. Police reported that the fighters told them the free-for-all was a result of liquor stolen from the 4,000-case cargo of the Flor-Del-Mar which was unloaded last night.

TWO SERIOUSLY HURT

Jack Easley, coast guard, and George Rupert, sailor from the submarine base, were seriously injured during the brawl. Harry Stone, sailor from the sub base, was arrested, charged with assault and battery. He is accused of attacking the injured men.

The three-ply investigation into the Black Duck slaying was featured by a dispute between federal and Rhode Island officials. When United States Attorney Henry M. Boss, Jr., of Providence, declared that while he was conducting an investigation he did not expect to present the case to a grand jury, Benjamin McLyman, first assistant attorney general of Rhode Island, objected. He said that if the case was not presented to a federal grand jury he would make every effort to present it to a state inquisitorial body.

LOWMAN PRAISES GUARDS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the treasury, in a statement today said that the killing of three smugglers and wounding of a fourth at Newport Sunday was "unfortunate but unavoidable" and that the smugglers, having defied the government, "have no one to blame but themselves."

The assistant secretary said that because of the New Year's demand, smugglers were making unusual efforts to land liquor along the Atlantic Coast.

Lowman complimented the coast guard upon its work and said that it "had done well."

Neither Lowman nor coast guard headquarters, however, had any comment to make on the report from New London, Conn., that several members of the coast guard had been arrested in connection with the theft of liquor confiscated from a captured rum runner.

SENATE QUIZ POSSIBLE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Senator Jesse H. Metcalf announced today that he would ask for a senatorial investigation of the killing of three rum runners by coast guards Sunday if it appears that investigations now in progress "are not reaching the root of the matter."

Charges of Charles Travers, only surviving member of the crew of the Black Duck, that the coast guardsmen "opened fire without warning at a close, deadly range," must "be investigated," Senator Metcalf said.

"All our laws must be enforced," he said, "but care must be exercised in their enforcement."

PROTEST MEETING

BOSTON, Dec. 31.—(INS.)—Faneuil Hall, "the cradle of liberty," may be the scene Thursday of a public meeting to protest the Black Duck killings, it was announced today by Conrad W. Crooker, of the Liberal Civic League.

Crooker indicated that prominent speakers would discuss what "we consider entirely unjustified killings."

Senator David I. Walsh (Dem.), of Massachusetts, today protested the killings as "the most shocking episode since the advent of prohibition" and asked the Treasury Department to order an investigation to be conducted by others than those concerned in the killings.

MELLON OUSTER AGAIN ASKED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Renewing his demand for the rsignation of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, Republican dry, said today that he wanted not only Mellon, but others in the Treasury Department identified with enforcement, removed.

Senator Norris, of Nebraska, Republican independent, had previously said that Mellon should quit his place as the chief prohibition enforcement officer.

Brookhart's assertion that Mellon should lose his official head was the second time within recent months that he has attacked the Secretary of th Treasury. In a speech on the Senate floor,made on the famous "Wall street booze party," he said that Mellon should be removed.

The Iowa senator indicated today that he would carry the prohibition controversy to the Senate floor next week.

A test before the Supreme Court of the culpability of purchasers of liquor under the present law was advocated today by Senator Jones, of Washington, Republican dry leader, in connection with the legislation now pending to make purchasers equally guilty with bootleggers.

Senator Jones withheld comment of his views on such legislation proposed by Senator Sheppard (Dem.), of Texas, pending final action by the courts. He said conflicting decisions on this issue had been rendered in the federal district courts and expressed the hope the Department of Justice would press for a Supreme Court decision.

$270,000 RUM TAKEN, 23 HELD

OCEAN CITY, Md., Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Acting on information supplied several days ago, two coast guard officers seized nearly 2,000 cases of liquor valued at $270,000 and arrested 23 men who were charged with smuggling in the landing of the liquor cargo from a motor trawler four miles off shore.

More than 500 cases of the liquor were piled up on a deserted stretch of beach several miles south of Ocean City when the guardsmen swooped down on the 19 men transferring it from lighters to a house on Sinepuxent Bay. A raid on the house netted 1,300 more cases of liquor and four additional prisoners. When the coast guardsmen arrested the men on the beach the trawler weighed anchor and made its escape.

Charles H. Holtzman, collector of customs, placed charges of smuggling against the 23 men, who will be given a hearing before a United States commissioner at Salisbury.

'HEX' SLAYER WINS APPEAL

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Dec. 31.—(AP.)—A new trial was granted here to Mrs. Pearl Burgess, convicted in the "hex" slaying last July of Mrs. Etta Fairchild, 75-year-old inmate of a home for the aged.

Judge George V. Weimer, who presided in the case, granted the new trial on motion of defense attorneys, who pointed out, among other grounds, the fact that the jury had asked permission to find Mrs. Burgess "guilty but insane."

Mrs. Burgess and her husband, Eugene Burgess told officers that Mrs. Fairchild had made their 16-year-old daughter ill and told them she could kill people "just by looking at them."

Several days before his trial was scheduled to start in October Burgess killed himself in his cell at the county jail.

Mother Killed as She Robs Store With Children

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Masquerading as a man and accompanied by her husband and two of her six children on an early morning robbery, Mrs. Winifred Shields, 35, was fatally shot today as she fled from a store they had entered.

Ernest Stott, store keeper, who had been sleeping in the rear of his establishment since a recent burglary was aroused by the ringing of his cash register bell. He saw two "men" and two boys fleeing from the entrance. He ran to the street and fired five shots, one of the quartet fell and when he reached the spot Stott recognized Mrs. Shields. She had been shot in the head and died before the arrival of a doctor.

Her husband, James Sr., 45, and two of her sons, James Jr., 17, and Johns 16, returned when the woman fell and were arrested by deputy sheriffs.

Mrs. Shields, who had four other children, the youngest five months old, was dressed in men's clothes and wore soft soled shoes.

The family lived in a well furnished home in Washington avenue, Summerville. Stott told police he had suspected the family of the previous burglary, as on a visit to collect a bill he saw articles from his stock that had not been purchased by the Shields.

A sack, filled with groceries and candies, was left behind by the quartet when they fled.

2 Dry Raid Parties Clash; Officer Slain

COLUMBUS, Kan., Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Shot during a gun fight between two parties of dry raiders, each of whom believed the other to be moonshiners, John Crawford, a deputy constable, died here today as officials continued an investigation of the affair.

Ora Folk, a deputy sheriff, wounded in the right shoulder and head, is recovering in a hospital. The shooting occurred at the mouth of an abandoned coal mine where both groups of officers were seeking a still.

WILKINS FINDS POLAR LAND

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—The first fruits of Capt. Sir George Hubert Wilkins' exploration flights over Antarctica were revealed here today with advices he had discovered previously unknown land in his last venture over the polar ice cap.

The government radio service announced receipt of a message to this effect from the steamer Melville, which carried the explorer to Deception Island, which he uses as a base. Details were not given.

Since Deception Isle, one of the South Shetland group, is in the so-called Weddell quadrant of Antactica it is believed probable the new territory is somewhere in the vicinity, or directly south of Tierra Del Fuego.

About a third of the way round the world, in nearly the same latitude, Rear Admiral Byrd and his party recently have made important South Polar explorations, completing a flight over the South Pole, and discovering new land to the east of the Ross quadrant.

Nearly another third of the way round the world, to the east of Deception Isle, the Norwegians, Capt. Riiser Larsen and Lieut. Luetzow Holm radioed early this week they had discovered new land in the Enderby quadrant.

With the exception of discoveries by Rear Admiral Byrd the new lands are believed to be along the fringe of Antarctica.

Many Hurt Fighting Grain Elevator Fire

CHICAGO, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Four men were injured and several others were burned during a fire which swept through a grain elevator of the Albert Schwill & Co., manufacturers of malt products, in South Chicago, at a loss estimated between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000.

About 700,000 bushels of various grains were stored in the big elevator and the grain was destroyed.. Officials of the company said the grain was valued at between $700,000 and $1,000,000. The elevator itself was valued at $500,000.

Crawford's Seal Sales Set Mark

CONNEAUT Lake, Pa., Dec. 31.—All previous Christmas Seal sale records have been eclipsed, according to E. G. Otey, treasurer of the Crawford County Tuberculosis Society. The total received since the opening of the mail campaign was $3,243.62. Spartansburg leads towns of the county, having passed its quota, and Townville is a close second.

West End Man Run Down By Automobile

Harry Keifer, 53, of 1803 Behrens street, West End, was in South Side Hospital today suffering severe lacerations of the face and body bruises. Hospital attaches said Keifer was knocked down by an automobile driven by H. K. Klein, of 24 Lawson avenue, Crafton.

Bootleg Barmen Must Raise Own Fines

BELLAIRE, O., Dec. 31.—Tending bar is not as profitable in a speakeasy as when selling liquor was legal, according to C. A. Boggs, state prohibition department investigator who obtained evidence which resulted in arrest of a dozen bootleggers in Bellaire and Martins Ferry. Pay as low as $20 a week, with the bartender paying his own fines, is the rate in speakeasies.

Steel Auditor Dies on Train

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 31.—Clifford M. Diehl, 54, traveling auditor for the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, and widely known in industrial and financial circles in the Middle West, died on a train near Steubenville, while returning home from Zanesville. He suffered a heart attack. Diehl served as auditor of Steel and Tubes Company of America, Chicago, and was transferred to the Sheet and Tube organization in 1926, in merger of the two companies. For many years he was located in Pittsburgh.

THAW ASSIGNED PARIS POST

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—Foreign service changes announced by the State Department included:

Benjamin Thaw, Jr., of Pittsburgh, now on duty in the Department of State, assigned first secretary, Paris.

Benjamin Thaw, Jr., was second secretary at the American embassy in France, in charge of the passport bureau during the greater part of the World War. Subsequently he filled posts in the United States diplomatic service in Warsaw, Brussels, Santiago and Buenos Aires. At one time or another he was charge d'affaires at each of these capitals. He was transferred to Washington from Buenos Aires three years ago.

Thaw graduated from Yale University (Sheffield Scientific School) in 1909 and later studied law at the University of Texas.

He married Consuelo Morgan, a sister of Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt and Lady Furness.

CAUFFIEL FIRM ON KEEPING JOB

EBENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 31.—Prisoners who a short time ago appeared before him when acting as police magistrate of Johnstown, were jail companions here today of Maj. Joseph Cauffiel as he settled down to prison routine and light duties.

As sentences of a year, and one to two years, the second term to start at the conclusion of the first, were started by Cauffiel, he was firmly determined to act as Johnstown's mayor. The city's payroll checks were due for signature today. Cauffiel asserted they could not be signed by any other person than himself.

Full of fight, the mayor smilingly said:

BLAMES POLITICS

"Politics is the cause of this unjust sentence. I say to you that I am innocent. Never has a shadow of shame crossed our family name. My great-grandmother, Mary Halerty, was the first white woman to cross the Alleghenies. We have all been sturdy stock. I will fight until vindicated. I will never resign if they keep me here for life.

"Others wanted control, so I am here. I feel fortunate that jail is the worst they've done to me. My life has been endangered for a long time. Many threats were made since they were determined to remove me as mayor. As an independent candidate, I won the office and will do it again.

ASKS NO FAVORS

"No, I'll not have any special service while imprisoned. No meals will be brought in. Beans, bread, coffee and a small piece of cake was last night's meal. The prison cot gave me a more restful night's sleep than enjoyed by many others, possibly, who are on the outside and responsible for this disgrace.

"Just one year ago today, I had the gambling den of one of the leading operators raided.

"I've appointed aldermen to alternate as police magistrates. But my other duties will be performed by myself and here. My only hope is a release by the pardon board when it meets on the fifteenth of January. No matter when I am released, I will fight."

Cauffiel was convicted on charges of perjury, maintaining a gambling house and misdemeanor in office. Unaccompanied by an officer, he surrendered at the Cambria County jail late yesterday afternoon. The court had refused to consider a plea for extension.

Robbers Loot Home In Family's Absence

C. E. Dovey, of 2209 Vodella street, reported to police today that during the absence of the family last night robbers ransacked the house, taking jewelry valued at $200.

P.R.R. PLANS $3,000,000 EXPANSION

Commuters to Gain by New Trackage East and West; Tunnel Will Be Enlarged

The Pennsylvania Railroad early in 1930 will spend approximately $5,000,000 in construction work in the Pittsburgh district.

Suburban passenger train service on the main line to the east and on the Panhandle division westward is to be improved at a cost approximating $3,000,000, Vice President E. W. Smith announced today.

A third passenger track, available for morning inbound and evening outbound traffic, will be constructed from Braddock to the east end of Pitcairn yard.

TRACKAGE OVERCROWDED

Two passenger tracks, now in service along that particular stretch, have been found inadequate in the rush hours. The new third track will permit separation of most of the through traffic from the local.

A second relief measure for the commuter traffic will be widening of the Panhandle division tunnel from Seventh avenue to Forbes street, in the heart of downtown Pittsburgh.

TUNNEL TOO SMALL

Originally built to accommodate two tracks, this tunnel was found too small to let two locomotives pass abreast when the size of the engines was increased.

When Seventh avenue was widened the tunnel mouth there was increased in width. More recently other excavations have been made in the tunnel at points where construction was going forward on the surface.

MUNN ASSAILS BOOK CENSORS

CHICAGO, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Charging that it would set up customs clerks whom he described as "culturally unequipped for the task," as censors of imported literature, Ralph W. Munn, of Pittsburgh, criticized the book section of the new tariff law before the American Library Association, meeting here.

Munn, who is head of the Carnegie Library at Pittsburgh, said the new bill would make "mere hip-slappers, devoted to the tabloids and confession magazines for literary relaxation," the arbiters as to what of the fine things of literature might come under the eyes of American connoisseurs.

"Under section 305 of the new tariff bill," he said, "authority would be vested in these clerks to debar from entry into the United States any book which in their infinite wisdom they might classify as undesirable on the ground either of its moral or political tenor."

PATTEN LEAVES 15 MILLION

CHICAGO, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—The final account of the estate of the late James A. Patten was approved in probate court, showing total assets of $15,555,148. Charges against the estate totaled $3,724,852, including a $1,525,723 state inheritance tax.

The widow is to receive the income from the estate as long as she lives. Upon her death, the will specifies that one-half of the estate is to be divided equally between two children, Mrs. Agnes Patten Wilder, of Santa Barbara, Cal., and John Lowrie Patten, Chicago. The other half of the estate is to be divided among seven charities. Outright cash bequests included $50,000 to Monmouth, (Ill.) College.

Ray Barbuti Wed To Golfer's Sister

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—With holiday greetings Ray Barbuti, Olympic 400-meter champion, is receiving congratulations on being a "benedict," a fact which friends have just discovered. He was married last March to Miss Marian Sylvia Hicks, sister of Helen, the golfer.

Boy, Followed By 'Jinx,' Swallows Toy

Christmas holidays for the last three years seemed always the jinx for Edward Wissman, Jr., 9, of 1004 Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg, and this year after two indications of what might happen, his parents guarded him carefully.

But just two days after Christmas misfortune overtook him. He swallowed the wheel of a new toy engine. He's back home now, resting. Dr. H. G. Schlesinger removed the wheel from his throat after he was taken to the Columbia Hospital.

He had been in the hospital in February with a fracture of the arm, and he got lost and showed up in Avalon when his mother had sent him to Evaline street, a short time ago.

Mrs. Wissman had some gifts to take to a sister in Sheraden, but she waited until Friday to make the trip. Then, taking Edward with her, she started.

"I'm getting lonesome to be back there, mother," he said as the bus they were riding in passed the Columbia Hospital.

"Hush, Edward. Don't say that," his mother replied.

At 6 o'clock that night they rushed him to the hospital with the wheel lodged in his throat. Dr. Schlesinger remvoed the wheel with instruments.

Two years ago, Christmas found Edward with the measles, and when Christmas arrived a year ago he was very ill with pneumonia.

Edward's parents hope his "jinx season" has gone now. He is still confined to his home, but he doesn't mind. His Christmas tree and all of his toys have been moved into the sick room.

Charges Husband Abuses Her Over Poker

LAFFERTY, O., Dec. 31.—William White is an inveterate poker devotee and becomes abusive when his wife, Margaret White, objects to him inviting poker players to their home, she charges in a divorce suit. He also abuses her when drunk, she says.

CHIEF'S STOLEN KEYS RETURNED

Keys stolen from Chief of Police J. B. Maguire, of Wilmerding, December 19, when two armed men forcibly released Steve Mocham from custody in the Wilmerding lockup, were returned him today by Constable R. L. Brown, of Turtle Creek. They were found near Wilmerding along the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, by Charles A. Lazaro, a brakeman, of 204 Eleventh street, Turtle Creek, according to police report.

Mrs. Kate Stankowitz of Mellon plan, Wilmerding, mother of Mocham, was held for court in $1,000 bail last night on a charge of receiving stolen goods in connection with her son's alleged thievery. Mocham, who is also known as Jack Thompson, is still at large.

CHURCHES FETE NEW YEAR

Churches throughout the Pittsburgh district will celebrate the advent of the New Year tonight and tomorrow night with religious and social observances.

Several of the churches have planned "watch" services to usher in the New Year.

The Rev. Dr. Clarence Edward Macartney, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Sixth avenue, will speak on "The Old Way and the New" at the 11 o'clock service tonight. Following the service, men of the congregation will serve refreshments in the cafeteria.

Tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock a festival service will be held in the Smithfield Evangelical Protestant Church. The pastor, the Rev. Dr. Carl August Voss, will speak on "The Untrodden Way."

CLUB PLANS DANCE

This evening a party of 25 girls from the Goodwill Industries will be entertained in the Aspinwall Methodist Episcopal Church by young people of that organization.

Plans have been completed for the New Year's Eve party and dance of the Enoch Rauh Club, which will be held this evening in the Morrowfield Hotel.

Syria Shrine will hold its annual New Year's ball tonight. The affair will be repeated Wednesday night.

George W. Gosser, postmaster, has announced the regular holiday collection schedule. No carrier deliveries will be made. All departments will be closed all day.

Watch-night services will be held this evening, beginning at 8:30, at Second Presbyterian Church, Eighth street.

The choir will render several selections and there will be community singing led by S. C. T. Dold. The sermon will be at 11 o'clock by Dr. Percival H. Barker, pastor of Point Breeze Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Dr. George W. Shelton will conduct the devotional service at midnight.

FELLOWSHIP SERVICE

An elaborate program has been arranged for the Watch-night Service in Emory Methodist Episcopal Church tonight.

Musical services will be held from 9:30 until 10 o'clock followed by a preaching service by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. W. Wofford T. Duncan, until 10:45.

There will be a social and a Christian Fellowship service, ending at 11:45 o'clock when the prayer and closing meditation feature will take up the time until midnight.

A silver goblet with which the Rev. Dr. John B. Magee, pastor of Bellevue Methodist Episcopal Church, served communion to soldiers in the World War will be used by him tonight in a New Year's Eve "love feast" in his church.

The feast will conclude the annual watch-night service. Dr. Magee is chaplain of the North Boroughs Post, American Legion.

Squire's Chicken Coop Raided; Hens Taken

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 31.—Thieves raided the chicken house of Squire H. L. Swartz on the National highway west of here early yesterday and removed a dozen of the Squire's prized chickens.

SCAIFE DEED PLEA REFUSED

The petition of James Verner Scaife and others for leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States the declaratory judgment proceeding in which it was ld Scaife's former wife, Mary Magee Scaife, could deed valuable property without his signature, has been refused by Chief Justice Robert Von Moschzisker, of the State Supreme Court.

The Scaifes were married in 1896. Afterward Mrs. Scaife acquired the property in question, which she offered to sell to Mary C. McKee, Isabella C. Chalfant and Eleanor M. Chalfant. They refused to accept a deed without the signature of Scaife, from whom Mrs. Scaife had procured a divorce. The Supreme Court upheld the decision in Common Pleas Court that Mrs. Scaife could give a good title under the act of April 11, 1927, without the signature of her husband.

Ample Car Service For New Year Revels

To accommodate the midnight revelers who welcome in the New Year, additional street car service will be provided throughout the district tonight by the Pittsburgh Railways Company. Trailers are to be added to the cars operating out of Millvale, Keating, Emsworth, Homewood and Plummer street car barns and extra cars will be operated from the tunnel, Carrick, Rankin, Highland and Herron Hill car houses.

HOOVERS PLAN QUIET EVE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—(INS.)—The great American custom of whooping the old year out and the new year in will be observed in most places in Washington tonight, but not at the White House.

President and Mrs. Hoover expected to spend a very quiet evening. Their son, Allan, probably will accept one of the many invitations he has received to New Year's Eve parties.

Mrs. Hoover is suffering from a heavy cold and that in itself tended to put a damper on any possible plans. In addition, the executive couple will need a good rest tonight to prepare them for their arduous New Year's reception tomorrow.

3 O'CLOCK N. Y. CURFEW

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Predicting a noisier, more boisterous welcome for 1930 than has been enjoyed by any of its recent predecessors, hotel and restaurant managements today prepared to entertain thousands of New Year's Eve celebrants.

Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen announced that the curfew will drown out the blare of jazz, tin horns and other noisemakers in night clubs promptly at 3 a. m. Wednesday. Hotels, which are immune from curfew restrictions advertised "dancing until dawn." Cover charges will run as high as $20 a person.

20,000 TABLES IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Twenty thousand tables in the better known cabarets and hotels have been reserved for Chicago's welcoming of the new year.

Although most places have banned setups for the evening, the government has made its usual preparations to have agents in and out of the various celebrations throughout the evening.

One Loop hotel, the Palmer House, has ordered all dining rooms closed for the evening while another will have three New Year's parties in full sway until morning.

Finds Plot

SHERIFF H. M. REYNOLDS

Sheriff Reynolds suffered a crushed thumb when a door was pushed shut on his hand while prisoners were being transferred from cells in the Lawrence County Jail, after the official had discovered a partly sawed bar in a cell. It is believed he prevented a wholesale jailbreak.

Two Boys Fleeing Morganza Sought

Search was being made by police today for James McGill, 18, and Walter Gault, 19, Negroes, who escaped from the Pennsylvania Training School at Morganza last night. They were believed to be hiding in East Liberty. Their homes are in the Hill district, police were informed.

SHERIFF FOILS JAILBREAK

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Dec. 31.—Sheriff H. M. Reynolds prevented a jail delivery yesterday. A partly sawed bar and a niche in it filled with soap are evidence of the attempt. The sheriff is suffering a badly smashed thumb sustained when a group of prisoners, being transferred following the discovery, pushed a heavy door on his hand.

The attempt is believed to have been planned by Leroy Coffman and Edward A. Neison, said to be wanted in Los Angeles for the robbery of the Bank of Italy on July 3, 1928. They are serving a six months' sentence here for transporting a stolen automobile.

A screeching sound was heard from Coffman's cell. Investigation revealed the partially sawed bar and the soap in the niche.

Dinner Will Honor Retiring Railroader

Clarence L. Williams, for 18 years general agent of the Canadian Pacific Railways in this district, and who retires from active service tomorrow, will be honor guest at the dinner dance of the Pittsburgh Passenger Club in Kaufmann's dining room January 13. He has been an active member of the club for many years. His successor, W. A. Shackelford, will also be present.

Weather Conditions.

Relatively high barometer, centered over the Southeast, is producing southerly winds, mild temperatures and clear skies generally over the country east of the Mississippi River, with the exception of New England, where a marked low pressure area is responsible for cloudiness, snow and rain. A low pressure area, centered over Southern Manitoba, and extending southward over the Plains states, is maintaining the mild temperatures over the West and Northwest, but, as yet, it has produced little cloudiness and no precipitation, except light scattered snows in the Mountain states. The mild weather prevails over the entire country and Southern Canada and the skies are mostly clear.

River Conditions.

The rivers are about stationary or falling slowly. Stage at Franklin is 3.0 feet; Lock No. 7, 14.4; Pittsburgh, 13.7; Dam No. 4, 9.9; Dam No. 6, 10.9; Dam No. 9, 11.2, and Dam No. 12, 9.3. Dam No. 4 is up. The other dams in the Pittsburgh district are down.

Real Estate

A new theater building will be constructed on property at 1123-1127 Seventh avenue, Beaver Falls, by Alfred Karp, who leased the location from Mrs. J. P. Dawson for a long term at a total rental of more than $500,000. The building now on the site, known as the Colonial Theater, will be torn down. The lease was made through the Sachs Real Estate Company.

In the East End, David Rosenfeld has sold to August Gravant 18x145 feet with nine one-story stores. Mr. Gravant deeded in return 80x100 feet with two brick and shingle dwellings at 4122-4128 Beehner road, Hazelwood.

A brick and shingle dwelling at 518 Gettysburg street, East End, has been sold by Otis O. Cole to George H. Hyde. The lot is 35x125 feet.

A brick dwelling and garage at the southwest corner of Linden and Edgerton avenues has been conveyed by the Discount Corporation of Pittsburgh to Otto A. Rudy.

HAPPY NEW YEAR

1929... the year that demonstrated the soundness of America's business structure. 1929.... the peak year in Pittsburgh. Industries prospering... stores surpassing their plans and hopes. And Gimbels... the youngest among them... enjoying a generous portion of this increased business. A year never to be forgotten. A year that definitely shaped the place of this youthful store in the community.

We are grateful to you... your confidence has made possible this success.

1930... we approach it with renewed inspiration... determined to maintain the good-will of our fast-increasing public. Determined to seek out new and unusual things, while we keep pace with everyday needs. Determined to provide smart things and to keep prices on a commonsense level.

We anticipate your continued confidence ...and wish you a Happy New Year.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Society Folk Gather at Theaters

ALTHOUGH the winter will be long in going, there seems now and then to be a hint of spring in the air and one almost looks to see the trees budding. Certainly society folk are vieing with one another to wear the newest spring shades and pastel tints and never have I seen the debs dressed more prettily before.

The smart set finds time to attend the theater as well as debuts and luncheons and balls. And now I want to tell you about those I saw at that amusing play, "Children of Darkness," at the Nixon.

Last evening the Nixon had the most brilliant social gathering I have seen there for quite some time. All the new brilliant and subdued colors were duplicated in the gowns in every variety of material, and always long, of course.

I noticed the James I. McKays entering before the play. Mrs. McKay was wrapped in blue and silver brocade with a white fox collar. Later I noticed her in the foyer, and her gown was of gray satin.

And, too, I noticed the Dorwin J. Donnellys with Mrs. Donnelly wearing a wrap of rose and silver brocade.

I also caught a glimpse of Mrs. Raymond Ford Moreland wearing a wood brown lace gown, extremely long in back.

A simple blue crepe frock in princess mode was worn by Mrs. Louise McCutcheon. As she was leaving the theater I noticed she wore a coat of black pony.

And too there were the Gordon Kings and Mrs. King was wearing a brocaded wrap in blue and gold with cuffs and collar of brown fur.

In the foyer I noticed the Lawrence Allderdice chatting with the Reginald Rinehart Churches. Mrs. Church was wrapped in a coat of golf and silver brocade, and Mrs. Allderdice was dressed in black lace.

Leaving the theater I also saw Mercedes Maloney chatting with Mrs. F. G. McSorley with Mercedes wearing a dark heavily furred wrap. Mrs. McSorley wore a wrap of brocade, in red, green and silver.

MANY folks started New Year's week by attending the opening performance of the week of "The Love Duel," by Lili Hatvany, at the Alvin Theater. Of course, Ethel Barrymore was the great attraction.

Many folks were entertaining small parties. 'Way down in front of the house I saw the John W. Lawrences. And they were entertaining a small group of friends, I believe.

The junior James W. Henrys were hosts, too.

I saw Mrs. G. R. McAleenan, in blue lame, and Mrs. W. J. Stebbler in black and gold net, and Mrs. G. A. Shanahan in yellow satin.

IN spite of the many attractions last night, such as parties for the school set, Emily Frew's debut dinner-dance, and the theaters, ever so many society folks managed to spare a few hours to see the superb dancing of Kreutzberg and Georgi at Carnegie Music Hall.

Mrs. William M. McKelvy I caught a glimpse of, and she wore a black velvet coat with a white fox collar. And across the house I noted Mrs. Samuel C. Grier and her daughter, Miss Eleanor Grier.

Mrs. George S. Baton looked dignified in a gown of violet chiffon and a white furred black velvet coat.

And the Albert Horne Burchfields deserted the theater last night to see Kreutzberg and Georgi. Mrs. Burchfield's coat was of black velvet with a white fur collar.

Others I noticed were Mrs. Edward B. Lee and Mrs. H. Allen Machesney, who wore blue crepe.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles W. Heinroth were there, too.

NEXT to the last debutante to make her bow this season was Emily Frew, daughter of the William Frews, who was presented to society last night at a dinner-dance her father and mother gave in the Pittsburgh Golf Club.

Talisman roses, yellow snapdragons, and calendulas against a background of ferns, bamboos and crotons, decorated the clubhouse with asparagus ferns concealing the chandeliers and cibotium ferns decorating the balcony rail in the ballroom.

The debutante, in white velvet and lace, received with her father and mother with Mrs. Frew wearing a gown of gold lace.

And among the guests from out of town there were the Archibald Marshall Dennys' of Boston, and their debutante daughter Katherine, who are guests of Mrs. Harmar D. Denny, of Ridge avenue, North Side; Elizabeth Ferguson, of Hartford, Conn., house guest of her debutante cousin, Helen Pendleton; and Martha Machold, of Philadelphia, and William Van Cleef, of New Haven.

AND now I must tell you about the dance given last evening for the younger set by the Benjamin Rush Bradford Townsends, of "Fairway," Sewickley Heights, in their home. The affair was in honor of Laura Liggett, daughter of the Sidney S. Liggetts, of Edgeworth, and Henry T. Irwin, Jr., who's the son of Henry T. Irwin, of Edgeworth.

Christmas decorations were used, with fir and spruce trees and greens predominating. There were about 50 of the younger school set present. The hostess wore a lovely gown of bay green moire, and Laura appeared in a frock of blue crepe de chine.

AND tonight, being New Year's eve, will offer a bewildering number of events with the New Year's eve dance at the Pittsburgh Club predominating

B. P. W. Club Benefit on Jan. 13

THE Pittsburgh Business and Professional Women's Club has chosen to hold its annual theater benefit during national business women's week and will sponsor the performance of "The Nut Farm" at the Pitt Theater the night of January 13. Miss May Beegle is chairman for the affair and has on her committee Miss Esther Katten, Mrs. Mary Clark Myers, Mrs. Grace Thomas Cornelius and Mrs. Lillian Torrance. Several state officers will be here for the event and out-of-town clubs will have members in the audience.

MRS. J. PIERRE VOGEL, chairman of program for the Tuesday Musical Club, and chairman for the Jose Mojica recital Friday night, has appointed Mrs. A. E. Duckham as chairman of a committee in charge of guest tickets. Mrs. Duckham is being assisted by these aides: Mrs. Harry Baldwin, Mrs. Harry Corwin, Mrs. R. J. Cleland, Mrs. John Darr, Mrs. Edwin N. Davis, Mrs. John Gaston, Miss Mildred Eiler, Mrs. William Gates, Miss Bessie B. Geddis, Mrs. Andrew Herron, Mrs. H. S. Hetzel, Mrs. Charles T. Ingham, Mrs. Allen Klages, Mrs. Harry A. Roch, Mrs. Edward B. Lee, Mrs. Evan W. Meredith, Mrs. Elsie Breese Mitchell, Mrs. Frederick Newman, Mrs. William H. Oetting, Mrs. Will Rhodes, Jr., Mrs. J. W. Riley, Mrs. Harper Smith, Mrs. A. M. Spico, Mrs. W. A. Weldin, Mrs. Harry Wilburt, Mrs. Charles Willock and Mrs. John U. Wragg.

Jose Mojica comes to Pittsburgh loudly heralded for his voice of peculiarly fine timbre, his impeccable diction and magnetic personality, and the Tuesday Musical Club accounts his appearance as the most important event of its current season. The recital will be given in Carnegie Music Hall, with Troy Saunders assisting the singer and contributing a group of piano solos.

NO prettier appointments have ever marked a Female College Association meeting than those which were used for the Christmas session yesterday in the College Club. The tea table was especially attractive with its cloth of Italian lace, red tapers and centerpiece of deep red roses. Poinsettia plants were placed here and there throughout the room, adding their touch of Christmas color. A thoroughly enjoyable program was presented by Mrs. Walter E. Close, who sang and gave readings, and Mrs. Elmer W. Flaccus, contralto, both artists making a happy choice of program material. Mrs. W. D. James accompanied them. Mrs. Glen F. Curry was chairman for the day and was assisted during the tea hour by a number of other members.

MRS. C. T. KIBLER is chairman of hostesses for the tea which will follow Friday afternoon's program at the College Club. Assisting will be Mrs. Henry M. Hallett and Mrs. Thomas Hanna at the tea table and Mrs. Francis Harper, Mrs. William Hutchinson and Mrs. W. H. R. Hilliard. Miss Alice N. Parker will speak on "New Conceptions in Child Training."

* * *

MRS. T. J. PACE, Mrs. M. H. Demond, Mrs. J. R. Hermes, Miss Ellen McCarty and Mrs. L. P. Collins are in charge of the first of the January card parties to be held Saturday by the board of directors of the Pittsburgh Council of Catholic Women. Bridge, euchre and "500" will be played at each of these affairs, which will be held on successive Saturday afternoons at Council House under the general chairmanship of Mrs. T. J. Sweeney.

* * *

AT their next meeting, members of the Monday Club of Carnegie will choose their topic of study for the 1930-31 season. Suggestions for the program were made yesterday at a meeting in the Y. W. C. A. for which Mrs. J. C. Cubbage was hostess and Mrs. Oliver Heck leader. Mrs. W. H. Ireland, Mrs. W. A. Love and Mrs. J. H. Mulvey wrote the papers, which were on Northern and Central Chile and the climate and scenery of Southern Chile, but Mrs. Love's paper was read by Mrs. H. F. Botsford.

NEW MODE IN COATS AND EVENING FROCKS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Dec. 31.—Coats are establishing new lows for the season. Every coat shown or seen seems to take a pronounced dip at the back. The majority of the new coats are caped, with the cape treated in many individual and interesting ways. For daytime, the black cloth coat trimmed with black fur remains popular, and for afternoon wear, the velvet coat with luxurious fur trimming appears to be the ideal garment, if its endorsement by some of the smartest women here is any criterion.

TULLE appears with pleasing frequency on the evening scene. Lately we have seen some dresses of tulle magnificently embroidered in red and gold and other striking colors. There is something delightfully fresh and youthful about this fabric, that makes it irresistable when presented in the prevailing mode, with its tight bodice and full and often bouffant skirt. Tulle, too, makes a flattering background for the sparkling gems and synthetic jewelry which adds to the gay glitter of present fashions.

WE SHOW today one of the very newest evening frocks of black tulle. It is trimmed with many bands of shiny embroidery and a black satin rose at the waistline helps to accentuate the demure appeal of this Lenief model. The very bouffant skirt curves up at the front and back showing a black satin underskirt. The decollete is shallow, with a wide spuare in front and a very deep "V" behind.

SUITABLE for formal afternoon wear is this very smart coat from Paquin. It is of wine colored velvet with a generous collar of blue fox, one of the most becoming and flattering of furs. The inevitable cape is snugly fitted over the shoulders and is drawn up and tied in a knot with ends at the center back. The coat is quite a bit shorter in the front, but takes a very sharp dip at the back. The sleeves are perfectly plain and untrimmed.

The much-heralded German dancers, Harald Kreuzberg and Yvonne Georgi, have come and gone, and Pittsburgh is richer by an esthetic experience such as it is likely never again to see, unless these same artists return. They gave their unique recital in Carnegie Music Hall last night before a representative audience, and when Pittsburghers not only applaud, but are moved to stamp their feet in wild enthusiasm, then they certainly have been deeply touched.

J. Fred Lissfelt

The dancing of this couple begins in a superb imagination. It threads its way into the fundamental designs and meanings of music, picks up color and history on its way, and comes to the observer so completely an inspired creation that he is rapport from the first steps. This dancing is like nothing else seen in pantomime. Basically there are old forms, a polonaise, a waltz, a mazurka, a leap—perhaps only in fragment—a sort of theme for the variations, which these artists spontaneously compose with a technique that knows no limitations.

CHILDREN OF FANTASY

This dancing is not acrobatics set to music; the dancers are not the heavyweights with knotted muscles who go a-prancing and flopping. They are two lithe children of fantasy, who have idealized and beautified the loveliest movements suggested by excellent music. How true they are to the line of music was most apparent in their variations of Mozart, where every trill and arabesque in that sonata, so laborious a task for piano fingers, was accurately executed in the dance.

The Polonaise, the Debussy "Em Bateau," and the Russian Dance showed an understanding between the two dancers, a rhythmic accuracy and symmetry of line that was a delight in itself. Miss Georgi has but slightly less abandon than her partner. In Milhaud's "Twilight" her quiet conception of fatigue reminded one of paintings in the wake of Puvis de Chavannes, which her dance of Salome proved her knowledge of Aubrey Beardsley. The Scriabine Mazurka was not without humor, and as finished an exhibition as any of the evening. Her "Spirit of Evil," danced to tom-tom and cymbals, depicted a relentless and sinister force towards destruction.

KREUZBERG AWES

We approach an appraisal of Harald Kreuzberg with awe. There is never a false note in his composition, and each picture creates new rapture. The "Master of Ceremonies" must have come from the pictures on an ancient Chinese jar. In "Revolt" he visualized the cosmic force of revolution, the elemental force within that kills us all. His "Spanish Impressions" were reminiscent of the bull ring and the patio. And his "Angel of the Last Judgment" stood in the wide heavens, swept through infinite space, and closed with the effacement of all form. It was prophecy.

The accompaniments, if anyone could listen, taught many a nice tid-bit of modern music. In the "Persian Song" could we imagine a more perfect marriage of the arts than in this combination of the gentleness of the quatrains of Omar, the colors of Persia, and the music of Satie? And fortunate indeed to have had the services of so clever a fellow as Friedrich Wilckens, who not only played good accompaniments, but wrote several of the most picturesque compositions. It was an evening for musicians, for painters, for actors, and for all who love beauty.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Another REDUCTION in Out of Town Telephone Rates

BECOMES EFFECTIVE JANUARY 1, 1930

EFFECTIVE January 1st, station-to-station day rates on telephone calls to points 60 to 300 miles away will be reduced. Some new and old rates are shown below.

This is the fourth reduction in out of town telephone rates within little more than three years and the second in less than a year. It is in keeping with the fundamental policy of the Bell System which is "to provide the most telephone service and the best at the least cost to the public."

The Semi-Annual Markdown of Men's Clothing

Suits and Overcoats—Involving the Larger Part of Our Regular Stock

$21 $31 $41 $51 $61

Thursday the Men's Store starts off the New Year with the twice-yearly markdown of Men's Suits and Overcoats, involving the greater part of its regular stocks.

Stocks this season are larger than usual, offering an exceptionally good selection of models, patterns and colors, in sizes for men and youngfellows—though, naturally, in a sale of this kind every pattern in not available in every size. Each garment is a standard Horne grade and the price reductions are unusually attractive.

The Suits are unfinished worsteds, smooth-finish worsteds, cassimeres, serges and flannels—fancies and plain blues and oxfords. Two-button, three-button and double-breasted.

The Overcoats offer fleeces, velours, twists, hard-finished and soft-finished fabrics. Single-breasted box coats, double-breasted box coats, ulsters and raglans.

PITT GAME ON COAST HOLIDAY RADIO HIGHLIGHT

Yoder, Former Tech Star, To Describe Play

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Sun-Telegraph Radio Editor.

THE Pitt Panther, eager to avenge two defeats suffered by Eastern teams in recent invasions of the West, will meet Southern California tomorrow at Rose Bowl, Pasadena, in what promises to be one of the most colorful broadcasts of the year.

Lloyd E. Yoder, who announced for WCAE after successfully captaining a Carnegie Tech team in 1927, will alternate with Carl Haverlin at the microphone. Yoder is now with the NBC Pacific Coast studios while Haverlin is an old-time announcer at KFI.

BROADCAST AT 4:30.

Yoder, who will announce the first and third periods, was chosen for the task because of his acquaintance with the personnel of the Pittsburgh eleven. Haverlin, who has followed the University of Southern California team closely for several years, will broadcast the second and final quarters.

The broadcast will start at 4:30 o'clock, although the game itself is not expected to get under way before 5 p. m., Pittsburgh time. The first half hour on the air will be devoted to a Graham McNamee description of the ending of the Rose Parade and the Battle of Flowers, a prelude to every New Year's Day football battle in the Rose Bowl.

"BIG BEN" TONIGHT

If weather conditions over the Atlantic are favorable, the WEAF network will relay the midnight gong of "Big Ben" in London tonight at 7 o'clock. The broadcast will start at 5:50, our time, and end at 7:15. If the attempt fails, WCAE will have the Black-Gold Orchestra as usual.

New Year's whoopee will not be very prominent on the radio. A Columbia System party through WJAS at 11, an All-Night Watch Service from KDKA at 11:30, a very cheerful "Message of the Bells" from WCAE at 11:45 with "Cheerio" as master of ceremonies and "Dancing Around the Country" through KDKA at 12:10 a. m., constitute the radio celebration of 1930. The KDKA feature at 12:10 will carry listeners from one end of the continent to the other.

As for us,

HAPPY NEW YEAR!—and let your conscience be your guide.

We Now Present

Helen Miller, Sheraden: Are Amos and Andy married?

Freeman F. Gosden, "Amos," is married and has a child a year and a half old, named after his dad. Charles J. Correll, "Andy," is married. Wives of the two stars are great friends and travel with their husbands.

Ex-President Calvin Coolidge will speak from St. Petersburg, Fla., on January 9 at 9:30 o'clock, KDKA in Pittsburgh.

"Val" McBrier, whose voice sounds so much like Cousin Lora's over the telephone, has resigned at WCAE.

DER SCHNITZELBUNK: Jim Hughes will revive his German Band in the Haller Period, on or about January 14.

Jessica Dragonette has signed a contract to appear exclusively in the Cities Service hour over WCAE every Friday night at 8.

Jessica was left jobless when Columbia took the Philco Hour and substituted new artists.

Whether Columbia is winning big features like Philco from the NBC or Columbia and NBC have merged and are splitting up good features on favorable nights, is a matter of conjecture in local studios.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

When a "68" street car stopped at Forbes and Murray yesterday for the traffic light, five patrons simultaneously pulled timepieces from vest pockets as a radio in a store nearby brought Francis Owen's announcement, "It is now 9:29, Eastern Standard time." Francis must have been right for each and every customer deposited his watch again with a wise look.

TODAY marks another great forward step in the history of the Ford car. For today the new Ford bodies will be officially introduced and a new beauty brought within reach of every one.

Take a little while today, therefore, to visit the showrooms of the nearest Ford dealer and see these beautiful new Ford bodies. Note the new roomy interiors, the new deeper radiator, the new hood and cowl, the new fenders, the new streamlines, the new wheels and tires, the Rustless Steel used for exposed metal parts—everything that contributes to this new beauty for the new Ford.

To outstanding mechanical performance, the new Ford now adds a new grace of line and contour. To motorists everywhere these new bodies are a further reflection of the Ford policy of constantly improving the car and of giving value far above the price . . . $435 up—f. o. b. Detroit.

New Year Theatrical Features Offer Enticing Variety

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

WE listened to a few members of the older generation the other day as they regretted the passing of what must have been the good old days at Schuetzen Park, which is back of Millvale. These oldtimers were moved almost to tears as they recalled the picnics and the Sunday afternoons at the park.

A colony of Germans established the park and made all feel welcome. On Sundays one brought one's family. While the women and children enjoyed themselves in their own way, the gentlemen lifted steins of good beer to each other, never suspecting that one day this would be prohibited.

Schuetzen Park still exists, but it is devoted for the most part to a rifle club. If the older members exhibit disdain for a mere rifle club on those hallowed grounds, they certainly should be pardoned.

Peter P. Walsh, Supt. of Police, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Pete: The town is full of talk that you're going to be promoted to be head man in the Department of Public Safety, but you can never tell about those things. We have no objection to that promotion. In fact, we'll supply you an issue which might help you ride into office on one of those waves of popularity.

It's this: Do something about those motorists who are forever splashing mud on the worn garments of us poor people. Set up this sign on the roof of the City County Building: "Five years in jail and black coffee for the guilty." Make 'em buy a new suit of imported cloth for every victim. Better still, take their mud-splashing licenses away from them.

We may be doing an injustice to the hired help of the Messrs. Houston and Laird, but it seems to us that taxicab drivers are among the chief offenders. Every time we see a cab rolling our way on a muddy day we run home and change suits.

This is the mud-sploshing season, Pete, and the most appropriate time for you to take action. Are you still there?

SIDEWALKS.

MR. MAURICE FALK, intelligent philanthropist, has discovered that giving away money in great sums has its difficulties. Hundreds write in with requests for this, pleas for that. A Negro minister in Alabama wants a new church, a West Virginia wife would like a new radio for her home.

"And if you send me an electric set," this West Virginian requested, "you'll have to have the house wired, because we don't have electricity."

A Pittsburgh bootlegger who was sent to jail after a bitter court battle sent his lawyer this sarcastic Christgreeting: "A merry Christmas to you; having a fine time and wish you were here."

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 31. THE coast guard kills three.

We don't know what the score is now, but I'll bet the U. S. "dry" Navy is way ahead.

Rum running is unlawful, but does it call for the death penalty?

This most recent case means that three or four cafes will be without liquor New Year's Eve, read that and weep.

Here's an idea for Washington: The government spends millions of dollars yearly trying to enforce the Eighteenth amendment. Why not use the same money to purchase all the liquor brought in by the rum runners?

Then, when there is a shortage — we could sell it to the bootleggers at a big profit.

In that way you stop unwarranted shootings—do away with bribery and dishonest federal officers—and send the Senate back to the investigation of the Wall Street crash.

P. S.—I believe prohibition is not a success.

As Ninon Meets Don Juan In Hatvany's "Love Duel," They Reform Each Other

By GEORGE SEIBEL

COME, let us write a play, said Lili Hatvany, for I have an idea. Wouldn't it be great if Don Juan was to meet Ninon de Lenclos, and the two should fall in love with each other? There ought to be material in that for at least three acts.

George Seibel

So Lili Hatvany wrote a comedy in three acts, called "The Love Duel," and Zoe Akins made an American adaptation of it, and Ethel Barrymore played it last night at the Alvin.

Don Juan is merely called "He," and Ninon is called "She," and for three acts they do their best to make each other suffer. They could have done it much more effectively by getting married—but there wouldn't have been any trick in that. So for three acts they practice a variety of mental sadism—which word is not derived from "sad," although they become sad enough.

By the beginning of the second act she has taken to coffee, aspirin and cigarets—while he is thinking of marrying a fat widow cousin for her money, to have an heir to continue his name.

"What's all this about?" is a question asked in the first act.

"Nothing—nothing at all," is the answer.

Not as Bad as They Seem

The trouble with "The Love Duel" is that the two principal characters are frauds. This terrible Don Juan played so gallantly by Louis Calhern is really as innocuous as Little Lord Fauntleroy. And this callous Ninon portrayed so touchingly by Ethel Barrymore is really as conventional as Beatrice Fairfax.

They are playing a game. They are going to trample on each other's hearts. They are going to make each other suffer. And it all ends like a sentimental romance. The only thing lacking is to have the sophisticated Ninon sit down at the Klavier and play Brahms' "Wiegenlied."

There are epigrams, of course, and the second act has a dramatic situation that is effective, though somewhat frayed and faded. But in the first act there is considerable hesitation and awkwardness. If that convenient screen had not been there, behind which "She" happens to be resting just when "He" meets a discarded flame, there wouldn't have been any play. And in the third act the situation is even more embarrassing.

"I have forgotten what I wanted to say," says one.

"So have I," replies the other.

The heroine has taken refuge in an Alpine chalet, but everybody happens along just at the proper moment to finish the play as the Watch and Ward Society would have it end.

No Lady Molnar

"The Love Duel" is not a great comedy. Lili Hatvany is no Lady Molnar. She does not convince us that her heroine is an irresistible siren, who even draws after her "a doctor so famous that all his patients follow him wherever he follows her." Nor does she convince us that the formidable Casanova we hear about would be very dangerous in a ladies' seminary.

The trouble is that the play is built around an idea. It is the old theorem of the irresistible force and the immovable obstacle. The logical result would be inertia. If there weren't such clever people playing this comedy, inertia would be the result. But Ethel Barrymore could play an adaptation of Euclid and make it thrilling. And Louis Calhern could do Caliban with seductive suavity.

Mary Loane as a foolish flirt and Harry Plimmer as the sentimental Herr Doctor are the only other people who have anything much to do. But Watson Barratt has provided three settings remarkable for atmosphere and solidity. It is all so well done, so smoothly played, so artistic in shading and tempo, that one is inclined to overlook the cruel truth that the play is old romantic stuff from the period of "St. Elmo" and "East Lynne," draped with some psychology from Schnitzler and some paradoxes from Molnar.

We missed only the "Wiegenlied" from Brahms.

Holiday Party In Moore's Inn

A New Year's party will be held at Walker Moore's Inn, Broad and Collins avenues, East End, tonight. Moore, who will act as master of ceremonies, has completed a program of surprise entertainment events.

Washington Arms Has Dance Tonight

There will be a New Year's Eve dance in Washington Arms, Washington boulevard, tonight. The program will begin at 9:30 o'clock. The Pied Pipers will furnish the music.

Warners Present Special Shows Tonight

The advent of the New Year is to be acclaimed in three Warner Brothers' houses tonight with special shows. At the Enright and Stanley additional acts have been secured to augment the regular program and a total of 10 acts will appear in each of these theaters. These extra performers appear at only the three shows after 6 p. m. Jay Mills and Dick Powell, masters of ceremonies at these two houses, will be prominent. At the Grand the regular performance will be presented with an additional midnight show.

SHARP PLAYERS HUNT GARTER AND GET ACROBATIC

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"Getting Gertie's Garter" is the new George Sharp presentation in the Pitt. It is a comedy. And more than that it is an acrobatic feat. In and out of barrels, hay stacks and grandfathers' clocks tumble Mr. Sharp's emoters. Up and down ladders and stairways they scurry. And the causes of it all are an elusive little garter and a wife who wants to be compromised. "Oh for a night of sin," sighs the blonde Mabel Kroman in the wife role—and the audience howls with glee.

The production really isn't much of a play. But it is an evening of fun for an audience—and manual labor for the players. At least it was last night for they were called upon to help set up the scenery. This scenery is a barn and it evidentally caused a little trouble in being assembled. The minutes ticked away, the curtain stayed down and the audience showed little flares of impatience. Suddenly, the blonde presence of Miss Kroman breezed before the curtain. "We can't get the d—n barn built," she said. And like magic the audience laughed and was in a grand and good humor again.

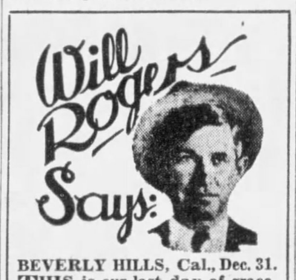
Who Has the Garter?

The play is in three acts—two laid in a bungalow and one in the afore-mentioned barn. To the bungalow come a pair of newlyweds. They want to be alone. But they aren't. A couple of other wives and a couple of other husbands are present—unknown to each other and the newlyweds. Also a French maid, a seedy looking butler and a wrathful brother. And somehow, the whole lot of them become involved one way or another with a garter that was presented to the bride by one of the husbands other than her own.

Comedian Forbes

Gus Forbes' character work in the comedy role of butler is the outstanding performance. This butler part is many makeup boxes away from a Mr. Wu or a Music Master. But Mr. Forbes bridged the distance with ease. Incidentally, he proves himself a master in the art of eye squinting. And it is an art. Miss Kroman gives herself and the audience a good time when she starts running around in a horse blanket. Edith King, leading woman; Harland Tucker, leading man, and Robert Fiske, Catherine Maison, Lucette Parker and Billy Link do as much, perhaps, as is possible with the parts they portray. As for Hugh Banks, he is, as usual, very much Mr. Banks.

But, after all, don't forget the acrobatics. And these Sharp emoters are good acrobats.



BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 31. THIS is our last day of grace, tomorrow we are obliged to read the usual New Year's prosperity apple sauce, by our same prominent men, who are always rich enough to see a great year coming up.

And to show you they don't know any more about it than Clara Bow, last year they had their usual hokum predictions, and in October we lost half as much as it cost to put on the war, yet not a one of these predicted it. So just for a change, let's let every man do his own predicting according to his own conviction and viewpoint.

The poor haven't many rights, as it is, so let's at least let 'em predict, especially as that's all they are going to get. We know that the new year will look fairly rosy to Mr. Rockefeller, Schwab, Owen D. Young, Charlie Mitchell, Otto Kahn, Amon G. Carter, Dwight Morrow, Knute Rockne, Andy Mellon, Bishop Cannon and Tex Guinan, but how is it going to look to just old plain Joe Doakes,

Yours,

Will.

COMEDIAN CARRIES FURNITURE STORE ON PENN STAGE

One of the most ingenious and amusing acts seen here in a long while kept the audience at the Penn-Loew gasping and laughing yesterday while A. Robbins was on the stage. This comedian carries a furniture store and music shop in his pockets, changes his sex several times, produces all sorts of harrowing effects out of his trick instruments, and affords a welcome relief to the monotony of most variety.

Another bright spot in a bright hour is the toe dancer Vivien Fay, who is a little ballet all by herself, when she isn't surrounded by the 16 Fred Evans Girls.

Whirlwind Adagio

After a poetic tableau of an alchemist's dream—one flapper thought they were making moonshine—the Stone and Vernon adagio foursome gave a whirlwind performance in which the girl is tossed about like a tennis ball, swims like a goldfish and flies like a goldfinch. It is dextrous and thrilling.

Yorke and Johnson also make a hit with their singing of the Painted Dolls' Wedding and the St. Louis Blues in Metropolitan style.

Haines In the Navy

The talking screen presents William Haines and Anita Page in a farce called "Navy Blues." He is a very amusing compound of impudence and imbecility called a sailor, who would last about 15 minutes in any navy. She is a sweet simpleton mentally age eight. If two such beings could exist, very likely they would act about as they do in this film farce. The audience laughed uproariously—making it a sort of naval holiday.

Then Elias Breeskin, Dick Leibert and Nat Nazarro, who danced cleverly, brought us back to land and sense.

PENN OFFERS SAME SHOWS AS CAPITOL

W. A. Finney, western division manager for Loew's Theaters, has received the following letter from Edward Bowes announcing the fact that arrangements for presenting Capitol Theater stage shows in the Penn Theater in Pittsburgh have been completed:

Mr. W. A. Finney,
Loew's Penn Theater,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

My Dear Mr. Finney:

I am happy to inform you that arrangements have been completed whereby the complete weekly stage presentations will go directly from the Capitol Theater in New York to the Penn Theater in Pittsburgh.

Our complete, elaborate productions, scenery, costumes, master of ceremony, the ballet corps, chorus and individual artists, will go forward to you without alteration or change.

In other words, your patrons will view precisely the same entertainment that has been presented on the stage of the Capitol Theater in New York, and which, if I may say so, is conceded to be the finest of its kind.

I know our many friends in Pittsburgh will appreciate and enjoy these presentations and we, on our part, will take great pride in making them as fine as possible.

With kindest personal regards, I remain,

Sincerely yours,
EDWARD BOWES.

The first of the Capitol Theater presentations will open in the Penn Monday.

Air Line Reduces Passenger Fares

DETROIT, Dec. 31. — (AP.) — Reductions in passenger fares on airplanes operating between Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago were announced by the Stout Air Lines. The new rates, which become effective January 2, were said to be but slightly in excess of railroad fare plus Pullman charges.

"Children of Darkness," New Drama in Nixon, Will Awaken You in Last Act

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

SHOULD it be your intent to attend "Children of Darkness," new play by Edwin Justus Mayer, in the Nixon, and should you walk in about the middle of the first act, it is unlikely any frowns will greet you as you make your way through shins to your seat. It is quite likely you will get a smile of thanks for relieving the tedium. Should your entrance be delayed until the second act is well under way your welcome probably will be even more gratefully acknowledged. But don't delay beyond the beginning of the third act—if you do you'll miss the play.

If you assume from this introduction that I am trying to imply there are a lot of dead spots between the beginning of the play and the beginning of third act you are wrong. There are not a lot of such spots—only two, the first and second acts. And that's too bad, for Mr. Mayer has filled them with what is called brilliant writing, epigrams and the like. But listening to two acts of early eighteenth century wisecracks (the time is May, 1725, the place, London) is conducive of nothing but somnolence.

Mostly Rascals

The title is said to have been suggested by one of the lines—"that one should welcome all experience eagerly, whether one is burned or not—else one is a child of darkness." But there is a better reason than that. The characters are all, with one exception, rascals, veritable children of darkness. Several are prisoners because of their rascality, but jailed or jailers, all are of the same stripe, with that exception aforestated, a poet imprisoned for debt. It ought to be a good play. It adheres to the Greek formula as to unity of time, place and action. Its characters are all interesting. The trouble, as I see it, is that Mr. Mayer makes them talk too much. And then betrays them by having one of the characters say so in the final act.

Yet the producers play fair with the audience by having most excellent actors do the talking. They are headed by Basil Sydney and Mary Ellis, each competent in the art of the mummer and each engaging as to manner. Mr. Sydney is a suave blackguard, imprisoned for debt, although, by his own confession, his crimes are numerous. Miss Ellis is a baggage—wench, one of the less admirable characters calls her.

Pleasant Antidote

She's a charming and saucy wanton, daughter of the jailer, a pleasant antidote to confinement for Count De Ruse, otherwise Mr. Sydney.

Charles Dalton, as Jonathan Wild, condemned outlaw, gives an energetic portrayal of a man so wise in the ways of criminals that he will not be duped, yet weak enough to "buy" a pardon with funds that do not save him but free the poet, although the count had plotted to be the beneficiary and had relinquished the boon.

The complete sardonic touch, however, is imparted by Eugene Powers, poisoner of his family, who, with the poet freed and the count departed tragically, sees his way clear to enjoy the company of the lass he calls wench. His portrayal is perfection of the abhorrent, refinement of cruel sensuousness. Walter Kingsford, as the jailer and J. Kerbey Hawkes, as the poet, play well their parts.

WORLD LEADERS TALK FROM NEWS SCREEN

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—Three great leaders, two of war and one of peace, speak from beyond the grave to Newsreel theater audiences here this week. Stresemann, of Germany, and Foch and Clemenceau, of France, died in 1929. They live again for a moment, coming from out of the tragic past to plead for future peace.

The New Year is also welcomed joyously. Girls assembled from many lands wish the world the customary "Happy New Year" in their native tongues. Jack Johnson, the colored man who once was heavyweight champion, promises that his 1930 knockouts will be musical. He is now the leader of a jazz band.

Muley Mohammed, sultan of Morocco, rides in veiled state to the tomb of a Moslem saint while his white-robed lancers clear the way. The Aga Khan, lord in Islam from the Philippines to Cairo, is more disappointing. He prosaically weds his western bride in a French town hall.

Dr. Lorenz, the wizard of bloodless surgery, is optimistic concerning the future health of the race. Dr. Shirley Wynne, New York City's health commissioner, is less hopeful. He warns against holiday liquor. Along Joe's Havana bar the customers are lined 10 deep.

New Year's Dance In Aldine Ballroom

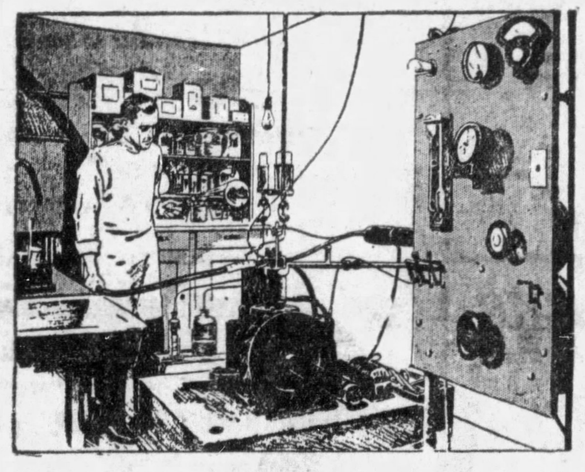
Made to sell at a higher price

but now sold at the price of regular gasoline



THIS MACHINE CAN'T LIE!
When we tell you that ORANGE AMERICAN GAS has an exceptionally high anti-knock rating—we're not making claims—we're stating a fact. This is the machine that proves it—the machine on which comparative tests of all gasolines are made every day—a machine which delivers cold, scientific facts—the machine that definitely establishes the pre-eminence of ORANGE AMERICAN GAS among all gases selling at the price of regular gasoline.

THEY say you can't get something for nothing in this hard-boiled world today! But here's one case in which you can--and do!

ORANGE AMERICAN GAS was made to sell at a higher price than ordinary gasolines--and in many territories it has. But now in this town you can buy it at the Yellow and Black Pumps for the price of ordinary gasoline.

Just think what you get for your money! ORANGE AMERICAN GAS has an exceptionally high anti-knock rating! And much more than that! Quick starting when the thermometer's low--unusual flexibility in traffic--quick-on-the-trigger pick-up--tremendous hill-climbing power--smooth-as-silk running under all conditions!

A real bargain--this ORANGE AMERICAN GAS. And sales increasing at a mile-a-minute pace prove that local motorists realize it!

COUNCILMAN'S AUTO STOLEN

Wilkinsburg police today are seeking two young men who stole an automobile belonging to Councilman Lee Mechling from in front of his home, 418 Todd street, and abandoned it two hours later, after crashing with another car.

The youths, one with his head bandaged, were seen fleeing from Mechling's car after it collided at Rosedale and Tioga streets with a machine driven by Harry McMillen, of Ambridge, Pa.

Police reported finding a flattened bullet in the abandoned car and are checking to determine whether any holdups or robberies occurred in the district during the time the car was missing. Both machines were damaged in the smashup.

Obituary

John A. Lambing.

John A. Lambing, 87, a veteran of the Civil War, died yesterday in the home of a daughter, Mrs. R. M. Smith, 156 South Linwood avenue, Crafton. He served in the war with Company M, Fourteenth Pennsylvania Cavalry. He was a pioneer in the oil and gas industries of the state. He was a member of Duquesne Council No 264, Knights of Columbus, and the Fort Pitt Assembly. He leaves four daughters, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. V. J. Doran and Mrs. H. A. Bigley, of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. D. J. McCarthy, of Elgin, Ill.; two sons, Joseph A. and William, of Pittsburgh; a brother, the Rev. M. A. Lambing, of Scottdale; three sisters, Mrs. Mary McSherry, of New Kensington; Mrs. Rosalie McCann, of Greensburg, and Sister M. Ildefonse, of the Order of the Sisters of Charity; 22 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Burial will be from the residence of Mrs. Smith, with requiem mass in St. Philip's Catholic Church, Crafton, Thursday morning.

George Nelson.

George Nelson, 74, former chief of police of Chartiers Township, died last night at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Samuel L. Douglas, 22 Tarner street, with whom he had lived 30 years. When the township became a part of Pittsburgh, in 1917, he served on the city police department, being connected with the West End Station. He was a member of the First United Presbyterian Church of Carnegie, and the Junior Order, United American Mechanics. Besides Mrs. Douglas he leaves four other daughters, Mrs. Harvey Sweeney, of Pittsburgh; Mrs. John M. Douglas, of Crafton; Mrs. James A. Whitley, of Woodville, and Mrs. Robert C. Wilsher, of Carnegie, and a son, James B. Nelson, of Pittsburgh. Burial will be Thursday afternoon.

Clifford M. Diehl.

Services will be held late today in Aeberli's Funeral parlors for Clifford M. Diehl, 54, former North Side resident, who died Saturday night on a railroad train at Mingo Junction while en route to his home in Youngstown, O. Burial will be in Highwood Cemetery. Diehl had been a traveling auditor for the Youngstown Steel and Wire Company and earlier had been employed here by the Schoenberger Steel and Wire Company and by the American Steel and Wire Company at Donora and Sharon. He leaves his widow, Mrs. May McQuade Diehl; a daughter, Miss Nancy Diehl; his mother, Mrs. Amanda Diehl, and a brother, F. Norman Diehl, of Columbus, O.

Blasius Funeral.

Funeral services for Michael Blasius, 61, of 2030 Lowrie street, will be held at the Herman & Son funeral home, 702 East Ohio street, tomorrow. He died Sunday. Mr. Blasius was a member of the German Beneficial Union. Besides his widow he leaves four sons, Theodore, Robert, Otto and Rudolph Blasius, and three daughters, Mrs. John Young, Miss Eleanor and Miss Hanna Blasius.

Rynd Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Margaret Rynd, 96, oldest member of the Hiland Presbyterian Church, Perrysville, who died Sunday, will be held at the home, 3204 Perrysville avenue, North Side, tonight. She was born in Perrysville and lived in that district all her life.

Mrs. Edith Wilhelm.

BEAVER, Pa., Dec. 31.—Mrs. Edith Eaton Wilhelm, 74, native of Pittsburgh and a daughter of the late Capt. John Eaton, veteran riverman and pioneer coal operator, is dead at her home here.

SALESMAN ILL FROM POISON

Samuel Klater, 38, a salesman of Pittsburgh, was in a serious condition in a Birmingham (Ala.) hospital suffering from poisoning, according to word received by Inspector of Detectives Frank R. Boyd from Chief of Police Fred H. McDuff, of Birmingham. Klater was found unconscious in his room and taken to the hospital, the telegram said.

Local authorities informed his brother, Murray E. Klater, of 5661 Beacon street, of the victim's illness. Klater was said to have resided at the Beacon street address

TAX INCREASE BILL SIGNED

Mayor Charles H. Kline today signed an ordinance that increases the property tax for 1930 to 26 mills on land and 13 mills on buildings and adds 2 cents to each of four classifications to metered water rates.

The tax raising ordinance was passed finally yesterday by Council over the opposition votes of Robert Garland, Charles Anderson and P. J. McArdle. President James F. Malone, who voted against the increases when the ordinance was considered in Finance Committee last week, is en route to California for a vacation.

The tax increases were favored by R. J. Alderdice, W. Y. English, John S. Herron, George J. Kambach and Harry A. Little.

The new tax rates were estimated to produce revenue that would be about $2,000,000 less than next year's expenses, estimated by Mayor Kline at $27,533,000, so that Council faces the problem of making substantial cuts in requested appropriations.

WOMAN HELD IN N. Y. HOLDUP

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—(INS.)—Mrs. Grace Savino was under arrest today in investigation of the holdup of the "testimonial" dinner to Magistrate Albert H. Vitale on December 7.

Charges of murder contracting, banditry, dope-peddling and official misconduct have grown out of the banquet "stickup" disclosures.

Mrs. Savino was questioned for hours concerning the "M. C." clue to the Vitale case—the clue that may lead to its solution—a message penned by a gangster, signed "M. C."

Detective Arthur C. Johnson is being tried for failure to act during the holdup.

Mrs. Savino is the wife of John Savino, who with two companions were arrested, accused as three of the seven bandits who held up the banquet in Roman Gardens. The police alleged the "stick up" was to seize from a Chicago gunman, who was present, a contract drawn up by Ciro Terranova, the "artichoke king," calling for the murders of Frankie Marlow and Frankie Yale, slain New York racketeers.

PITT-U. S. C. GAME RECALLS '28 FRAY

Plays in Rose Tourney Clash of Two Years ago, when Stanford defeated Panthers, 7-6

ALL-AMERICA GIBBY WELCH STOPPED — DICK HYLAND GAINS FOR STANFORD — KERN, OF PITT, MISSES TACKLE OF BIFF HOFFMAN

RAIN MAY MAR ROSES GAME

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Pitt Chance Looks Good. | Vance Remains Dodger.
Excels Plaid and Army. | Penn Loses on Sports.
Haskell Retains Dietz. | Rank Walker Greatest.

NO TEAM HAS WON ROSE GAME TWICE

WITH the big Tournament of Roses football game now only one day off, the situation presents no good reason for a change in the original opinion that Pitt has a good chance to win and probably will be able to nose out Southern California if the breaks are evenly distributed. The crushing defeats suffered on the Coast by Carnegie Tech and Army, both teams being steam-rollered in the second half after holding their own in the first 30 minutes of play, show the weakening effects of the California climate and make it clear that the job ahead of Dr. Sutherland's gridders is a tough one, yet the Panthers look good enough to get away with it after a hard fight.

Dr. J. B. Sutherland

Beating Pitt is a far different proposition from beating either Carnegie or the Army. It is no ordinary team, but one of the country's greatest in recent years that the Trojans will face in Pasadena tomorrow afternoon. Admittedly, a Northeastern eleven must be definitely stronger than its acclimatized Southwestern opponents to win in California, but judging from the performances of the regular season Pitt appears to have the edge in power that is necessary. Neither the Skibos nor the Soldiers had that edge.

THAT brings it down to a question of endurance, or lasting qualities, and here again the Panthers look easily superior to both the Tartans and the Cadets. For Sutherland has the needed reserve strength that Carnegie and the Army lacked. His second-string men are good enough to enable him to conserve the power of his regulars instead of wearing them out in the first half.

The fate of the Scots and the Generals showed Sutherland just what he has got to do. He must keep his team from spending itself in the first half and becoming a victim of the heat in the second. It's a hard contract for a visiting team in that climate, but Jock has the secondary stuff to do it with, and he has the coaching skill and brains to juggle it to best advantage. The Panthers will not be disgraced if they are beaten, in view of the handicap, but there is a good prospect that they will come out on top.

IF there were anything in colors, any superstitiously-inclined followers of Coach Howard Jones' machine might find their usual strong confidence a little shaky as they looked forward to tomorrow's game.

For the Panther standard is of Blue and Gold, and it is a fact that the only defeats charged against the Trojans during the 1929 season were suffered at the hands of teams wearing the same colors—California and Notre Dame. That item might count for something if college football players were as superstitious as the majority of professional baseball stars.

Howard Jones

ANOTHER omen that might be pointed out as clouding Southern California's chances tomorrow, if you take any stock in past performances, is the fact that no team—Eastern, Western or Southern—has ever won the Rose Bowl classic twice. And the Trojans already have a victory to their credit, while the Panthers have none. Oregon defeated Penn, 14 to 0, in 1927, but lost to Harvard, 7 to 6, in 1920; California downed Ohio State, 28 to 0, in 1921, but was held to a scoreless tie by W. & J. in 1922 and fell before Georgia Tech, 8 to 7, last New Year's Day.

WASHINGTON tied Navy, 14 to 14, in 1924, and was defeated by Alabama, 20 to 19, in 1926; Stanford beat Pitt, 7 to 6, in 1928, but lost to Notre Dame, 27 to 10, in 1925, and was tied by Alabama, 7 to 7, in 1927.

Alabama defeated Washington, 20 to 19, in 1926, but was tied by Stanford, 7 to 7, in 1927. No other teams have played more than one New Year's game. In their only previous Rose tilt, the Trojans defeated Penn State, 14 to 3, in 1923.

LONE STAR DIETZ, once a crack player on Carlisle's grid teams, made such a satisfactory showing as coach of the Haskell Indians this year with a young, green eleven, that he has been signed to a new contract coaching at Haskell for the next three seasons. He has also been given a substantial increase in salary.

Dazzy Vance

With Notre Dame playing a goodly percentage of its games at home next season, the Indians will make a strong bid for the rambling championship. They will not return to Pittsburgh, Duquesne having decided not to schedule them again in 1930, but they will travel a total of more than 10,000 miles in other directions, going to Wichita, Omaha, Stillwater, Spokane, Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Tulsa for seven of their 10 games.

WILBERT ROBINSON, who is again signing himself "president and manager of the Brooklyn baseball club" despite the efforts of the McKeever faction to oust him, has decided to keep Dazzy Vance. Possibly it's because no other club cared to take on Dazzy and assume the burden of his big salary. "I am strong for having good pitchers on a ball club and strongly opposed to letting any get away," said Robbie. "Vance is good for two or three years more of effective pitching, I am confident, and if he and Clark, Elliott and McWeeney come through next season, we may surprise some people." Just how he plans to induce Vance to accept the proposed cut in his $25,000 salary Robbie is not prepared to say at present.

THOSE who have been protesting against "commercialized" and "overemphasized" football in the colleges, and pointing to the "huge profits" in support of their arguments, may find some food for

PITT OPPOSES O. S. U. HERE TONIGHT

For the second time within a short space of time an Ohio State team invades Pittsburgh today to do battle with Pitt. It is the basketball aggregation, which will attempt to beard the Panther in its Stadium Pavilion den, tonight. The Buckeye football eleven bowed to Pitt on the Stadium gridiron this fall.

Howard Erwin.

Several members of the Ohio State football squad also are members of the basketball outfit. Wesley Fesler, all-America end, is a regular guard, and Larkins plays the other guard position. Bill Hinchman, Jr., of the football squad, is another passer. Howard Erwin and Evans are the regular forwards and Wrigley is the center man.

BOAST WIN OVER IRISH

The visitors come here fresh from a 29-22 victory over Notre Dame at Columbus last Saturday night and are primed to give the locals a tough tussle. They hope to be the first team to take the measure of Dr. Carlson's 1929-30 floor aggregation.

Two other district college basketball teams will be in action in New Year's Eve battle tonight. Geneva plays the East Liverpool team at East Liverpool, O., and Westminsteer hooks up with Adrian at New Wilmington. Wash-Jeff plays East Liberty Y. M. C. A. on the latter's floor tomorrow night.

With victories under their belts in the first two games of the season, against the Youngstown Y, last Friday night and St. John's College at Toledo on Saturday, the Carnegie Tech passers will stage a scrimmage this evening as the first work of their preparation for their contest with West Virginia University at Morgantown, W. Va., next Saturday night. They are extremely anxious to down the Mountaineers, who have taken them into camp in their last five meetings on the floor. Following the West Virginia game, the Tartans have to play Pitt, Penn State and Wash-Jeff, all within a week.

SKIBOS IMPRESSIVE

The showing of the Plaid in the first two games was pleasing to their new coach, Ralph Hogan. The forward positions are not causing the Tartan mentor any worry. Capt. Nease, who was the outstanding man in both contests, and Logan Webster, a Pittsburgh boy, are capable of doing a good job at forward. Center is ably taken care of by Merten and Fox.

For the guard positions, there are several good men fighting for a regular berth. Schumacher and High were given preference at the

RODGERS, ZIVIC TOP HOLIDAY RING CARD

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Either Pete Zivic or Jackie Rodgers will start the New Year right at Motor Square Garden tomorrow afternoon. The local bantams meet in an elimination test in the 10-round windup of the holiday matinee.

It is a clash between a boxer and a puncher. Rodgers has stopped his last five opponents and will be out to add the scalp of the veteran Zivic to his collection. If he doesn't take the cagy Pete early, he may find himself outpointed at the finish.

Freddie Edwards, of Huntington, W. Va., and Hans Roberts, local German heavyweight, box the eight-round semi-final. Ken Hargraves, of New Kensington, and Romeo Pacelli, of New Castle, are in the second bout and Sammy Paris, of the Hill, and Young Nanci, of Swissvale, meet

Panthers in Better Trim for Game Than In 1928—Sutherland

By DR. JOHN B. (JOCK) SUTHERLAND,
Head Coach, University of Pittsburgh.

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 31.—Usual Southern California weather, which apparently is delightful for everyone but Eastern football players, greeted the University of Pittsburgh squad upon its arrival here yesterday from the East.

Discounting the conventional pessimism which is supposed to characterize the coaching profession, I sincerely believe that Pittsburgh will meet one of the strongest elevens in the country New Year's Day, and I think that two tremendous handicaps—the extremely hot weather, and Southern California's wealth of reserve strength—stand in the way of a victory for the Panthers.

Respects Trojans

I have, since the season started, regarded Southern California as one of the greatest teams in the country. That opinion was confirmed by my assistant, Charles Bowser, who scouted the Trojans in their game with Carnegie Tech, December 14. We realize full well that U. S. C. has just about everything in the way of material and

WANERS EXPECT TO ENJOY BIG YEAR IN '30

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Anxious to greet another season, Little Lloyd Waner, ball hawk of the Pirate outfield, is spending a holiday in Pittsburgh.

"You betcha I'm ready—and Paul looks fine," said Lloyd today as he talked about the future.

"Paul is taking great care of himself in his desire to have another big season," continued Lloyd. "I guess a lot of folks think he did not have as good a year as he might have had; anyhow he is rarin' to go again."

Mrs. Paul Waner is not as fortunate as her husband in the point of health. The wife of the rightfielder has been in a hospital much of the time since they returned home.

HOPES FOR BIG YEAR

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 31.—The walls of Troy are manned today from rampart to rampart with the gallant Trojan defenders of Southern California, primed to repel with honor and glory the assault to be launched tomorrow by a Gold and Blue horde of Pittsburgh Panthers.

Tradition demands that the real scene of battle be shifted from Trojan territory, and the contest will be staged in the beautiful Rose Bowl here in Pasadena, the feature attraction of the annual New Year's Day Tournament of Roses. A capacity crowd of 70,000, which will fill to overflowing the local stadium, is anticipated at the classic battle.

RAIN PREDICTED

Frowning skies, which have been scowling and threatening since Sunday, promise a wet day for the meeting between Pitt and Southern California. The Panthers, installed 10-to-8 favorites in local betting circles, hope for a cold, though not necessarily dry day. If the weather remains as it has been so far this week, moderately cold, Pitt's chances of making good these odds will be correspondingly better.

The Panthers are in splendid physical trim. In their long workout in the bowl yesterday, all three elevens dashed about with a snap and zip that portends nothing short of evil for the Trojans. Whether it be due to the fact that they took the extreme Southern route in coming out here or not, the fact remains that the Panthers are not noticing to any great extent the change in climatic conditions.

But don't think the Trojans are not "hot." Coach Howard Jones told this correspondent yesterday that his men are in the best shape of the season. He is confident of success against Pitt. Reasoning that he again will be able to throw in superior and crushing reserve strength when the going is at its toughest.

REGULARS TO START

Coach Sutherland plans to hurl his regular troops into the fray right from the start. This means that Donchess and Collins will cavort at the ends; MacMurdo and Tully at the tackles; Montgomery and Capt. Dimeolo at the guards, and Daugherty at center. Baker will be at quarterback, with Uansa and Walinchus at the halves, and Tom Parkinson at fullback.

This array includes Pitt's four all-Americas, Parky, Toby, Monty and Dorchess.

Coach Jones, the quiet director of the Trojans, is not definitely committed on the forces he'll throw in Pitt's way at the start. The left guard spot is not settled, nor is he certain on his fullback. Tappaan and Arbelbide will go at the ends; Hoff and Anthony at the tackles and either Gallor or Baker at left guard, with Capt. Barrager at right. Dye is to be at center. Saunders is a cinch to start at quarterback, with Edelson and Pinckert at the halves and either Shaver or Musick at full. Shaver is the most likely choice.

ALL-AMERICA CHOICES

Southern California presents all-America gridders in Saunders and Tappaan. Tappaan is regarded as being one of the best ends to play on the Coast since

By CARL W. SHATTO.

Pittsburgh's ice Pirates, eager to start the new year with a victory, engaged in a long workout at Duquesne Garden today in preparation for their battle with the Ottawa Senators, here Thursday night. Goalie Joe Miller, finishing his first week as pilot, has decreed that the local puck chasers forego all whoopee making this evening and save their pep for their joust with the invaders from the Dominion.

Indications are that Miller will hand the managerial reins back to Hib Milks on Thursday, and that Milks, in turn, will hand them right on to Frank Frederickson, original player-manager.

Freddie, who spent 10 days in a Toronto hospital undergoing treatment for torn ligaments in his knee, was released yesterday afternoon and arrived in Pittsburgh this morning. He held a conference with Milks and Miller this morning, and witnessed the workout of his skaters this afternoon. He will direct the Bucs from the bench in the Thursday night fracas, but it is not likely that he will be able to don skates again for about two weeks.

MILKS TO RETURN

Milks, sterling forward who took over the duties of pilot and the center job when Frederickson was ordered to the "penalty box" by a physician, followed his boss down the thorny path of misfortune last Thursday, when he was ordered to bed with a severe attack of grip. Hib's recovery has been very rapid, and he is confident that he will be able to get back in harness in time to assist in the welcoming of the Senators. Milks still is quite weak, and it is certain that his appearances on the ice will be limited to a very few minutes.

While Milks is in action, Jerry Lowrey will perform at left wing and Harold Darragh at right wing. When Milks' strength gives out, Lowrey will return to center ice and Bud Jarvis, a hockey find if there ever was one, will be moved into the wing spot vacated by Lowrey on the front line.

NEW PIRATE IN DEBUT

Gordon Fraser, husky defense man obtained from Les Canadien in exchange for Bert McCaffrey, is to make his first appearance as a Pirate before a Pittsburgh crowd. He will team with Rog Smith at defense in the starting lineup, and Johnny MacKinnon, who is trying to shake off the ill effects of an ankle sprain, will be available for relief work.

An interesting duel will be provided when the spares swing into action and two young forwards who did much to win the local amateur league championship for the Philadelphia Company last season square off as foes. Ren Manners, Pirate center, and Wally Kilrea, Ottawa right winger, are the players in question. They both vaulted into hockey's "big time" at the start of the present campaign, and both are regarded as big leaguers of exceptional promise.

Hec Kilrea, brother of Wally and the National League's leading goal-getter, mighty King Clancy, who is pacing all defense men in scoring, and Frank Nighbor, pokechecker extraordinary, are other celebrities who will help to make Ottawa's 1930 debut here an auspicious occasion.

PITT BATTLES OHIO STATE

start, but Weiss, Traa and McCurdy all did fine work when they got into the contest, as did Jimmy Leonard, midget of the team. Leonard is ordinarily a forward, but because those positions are well taken care of, he was tried out at guard against St. John's College and his playing was a revelation.

Coach Chick Davies' Red and Blue basketeers, of Duquesne University, will match their strategy with that of the Purple passers of Alfred University on Friday night in Bluff gym. The New York team is rated as being able to demonstrate the fine points of the floor game in an expert manner. The Dukes showed well against Adrian College last Friday night and are primed for the Purple.

Snabs Parry showed well at the defensive art when paired with Brud Stephens, acting captain, during last week's defeat of the Michigan team, while the performance of Joe Vernon and Bunk McGeever, who have been running neck and neck for the center post, leaves them still a toss-up as to which has clinched the position.

The probable lineup for the Pitt-Ohio State game tonight:

Pitt.		Ohio State.
Zehfuss	F	Ervin
Wrobleskie	F	Evans
L. Cohen	C	Wrigley
W. Kowalik	G	Larkins
Arture	G	Fesler

CLIFF BARTON

When young Cliff Barton, Pirate hockey wingman, came here at the start of the season from the Port Arthur amateur champions, he startled officials of the club by asking that he be assigned No. 13 on his uniform, a number shunned by all other players in the circuit. Recently, however, he decided he wasn't setting the league on fire and so asked that the number be raised, which it was as shown above. He now appears on the program as Pirate No. 14. Insert below is a closeup of the former jinx-defier.

thought in the University of Pennsylvania's financial report on athletics for 1928-29.

Despite the fact that the receipts in 15 sports totaled $910,653.13, and the income from all sources exceeded $1,000,000 for the first time in the university's history, Penn actually went into the red on athletics. There was a loss of $30,552.04, and permanent improvements cost $15,416.77 more.

FOOTBALL yielded a big profit, it is true, the velvet totaling $463,807.11 out of total receipts of $801,403.19. But what of the other sports? Only one finished with a balance on the right side, that being basketball, with a profit of $12,033.71. Track lost $21,000, baseball $20,000, and rowing (always a dead loss, with no receipts), boxing, fencing, golf, gym team, ice hockey, lacrosse, soccer, swimming, tennis and wrestling all showed heavy losses.

It must be borne in mind that all of these sports depend upon football's profits for their existence. What is true at Penn is true at all other colleges. If it were not for football with the big gates against which the reformers protest, the other sports could not be carried on.

Mickey Walker

LEAVING out of the reckoning the question of poundage or class boundaries, whom would you pick as the best fighter in the present-day crop? A poll of 75 boxing authorities, taken by Wilbur Wood, gives that distinction to Mickey Walker, former welterweight champion and now holder of the world middleweight title. Pound for pound, and inch for inch, Walker is rated the greatest battler of the lot, by a margin of six votes over Kid Chocolate. Eight of the 75 selectors who were asked to vote failed to make a choice. The 67 other votes on the best all-around fighter, regardless of class, were distributed as follows: Walker 18, Chocolate 12, Jack Sharkey 9, Jimmy McLarnin 6, Sammy Mandell, Jackie Fields and Al Singer 5 each, Max Schmeling 2, and Earl Mastro, Dave Shade, Tony Canzoneri, Tommy Paul and Eugene Huat, 1 each.

Taking undisputed possession of first place in the Allegheny County League as a result of the decisive defeat of the Fintex aggregation by the Homestead Ackermans last night, the Sianos have a golden opportunity to strengthen their advantage tonight when they invade Duquesne to meet the Duquesne Lafayettes.

The Sianos have been showing steady improvement since taking one on the chin at the hands of Fintex and they should present a strong front against the Duquesne Lafayettes. The Lafayettes, for three years champions of the league, have been going none too well and unless they show a decided improvement tonight they likely will bow to the local Italians.

The Sianos, who started the season under the name of the Franchinas, have suffered only one reverse so far this season, losing to Fintex in a game that found the majority of the regulars out of playing condition. Since that contest they have been playing championship ball.

Tomorrow night the Lafayettes will play their second league game of the week when they invade the South Side Market House to meet the Goldensons. The Goldensons defeated the Lafayettes at Duquesne earlier in the season and they will be out to make it two straight over the champions. It seems every club in the league is taking a fall out of Ed Minnick's Scarlet Hurricane.

Dribbles

Nate Lippe, star forward of the Fintex team, has been signed for a tryout with the Cleveland Rosies and will be with the American League champions tomorrow night when they meet the Irwin All-Stars at Irwin High School. Lippe played a whale of a game against the world champions here several weeks ago.

The Sianos do not intend to finish their County League season with their present squad of players, according to well-founded reports. The County League leaders are reported dickering for the services of Montgomery and Clark of the Ray Schneiders.

Whitey Siljander, former all-scholastic star at Schenley High School, who has been playing a remarkable game for the Irene Kaufmann Settlement House in the Central Pittsburgh League, turned down an offer to finish the season with the Ray Schneiders in the West Penn League.

The Greater Pittsburgh Institutional League will open its basketball campaign tomorrow night when the Homewood-Brushton Y. M. C. A. quintet invades East Liberty to meet that team in the preliminary to the Wash-Jeff battle.

Dave Kerr, veteran American League star, leads his Cleveland Rosies against the Scottdale Buicks in Scottdale tonight. The Rosies were highly impressed with the showing the I. K. S. passers made against them last night. The Rosies rated the Settlement passers the best amateur team they have faced on the court.

The I. K. S.-Equitable Life game in the Central Pittsburgh League has been postponed by mutual consent of the managements.

Manager Sammy Goldenson of the team bearing his name in the County League expects one of the largest crowds of the season at the Lafayette game tomorrow night in the Market House. The two clubs have been rivals for a number of years and their games always keep the fans on their toes from start to finish.

The Homestead Ackermans may not win the County League championship this year, but Johnny Sullivan's boys likely will have considerable to say who will. All Moon Klinzing and his supporting cast have done so far this season is to take two from the Goldensons and one from the Fintex team.

Kline Sends Jock Load of Moral Support

Mayor Charles H. Kline today wired a load of moral support to Jock Sutherland, Pitt football coach. The Panther gridders are at Pasadena, Cal., to meet the Southern California eleven in the annual Tournament of Roses game there tomorrow. His honor's message follows:

doubles, 15 triples, 15 homers, 200 hits, besides driving in 100 runs; yet he feels that he can do even better than this.

Lloyd outbatted his brother by something like 20 points in the past season and he led both leagues in three-baggers with 20 of these majestic punches. In the field he was one of the best in the game.

The brothers will hardly have any real opposition for their relative positions next season, although the club will have a flock of reservists for the pasture. At this time, Adam Comorsky stands out as the most likely candidate for the leftfield job with Jim Mosolf and Fred Brickell ready to dislodge the Polish Flyer.

COMMY SHOWS PROMISE

At times last year Comorosky was the best leftfielder in the league; around the circuit the fans raved about the fielding of the bowed-legged miner with all the speed.

Mosolf also is fast, but he is far removed from Commy in the line of hauling in all sort of drives. On offensive this lefthanded socker looks like what the doctor ordered.

Chillysauce

Said Steve McKeever to Uncle Robbie, "Beheading you is my pet hobby." "You ought to get another cleaver," Said Uncle Robbie to Steve McKeever.

New Year's resolutions:

Knute Rockne—A sincere intention to keep Frank Carideo on the first team of 1930.

Pat Malone—No more fast balls on the inside to Mule Haas if we get in the series again.

Solomon Grundy—Plenty of lobbying even if I have to do it in the open.

Art Shires—Nix on the bouts with those 220-pound birds.

E. V. Babcock—No more spats with Buck McGovern.

Buck McGovern—Not more than three fights a week with Babcock.

John McGraw—All deals like the Grimes-Aldridge are "out."

FORMER TECH STAR WEDS

Glenn Moorhead, former Carnegie Tech football star, and Miss Alice Elizabeth Sauer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Sauer, 466 Orchard avenue, Bellevue, were married at 10 o'clock this morning in St. Francis Xavier Church, North Side. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. P. J. Maher.

Moorhead, one of the best halfbacks ever to wear the Plaid of Tech, finished his college football career in 1928, and was graduated from the local institution last spring. Until September 1, when he accepted a position with the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, in Akron, O., Glenn resided in Flowers avenue, Bellevue. He and his bride have been sweethearts since their high school days.

Miss Sauer is a graduate of Sullins College, Bristol, Va.

The bride and groom left this afternoon for a honeymoon trip to Washington, D. C. They are to tour through the South before returning to Akron, where they will make their home at 64 Hawthorne avenue on February 1.

Barbuti Married Since Last March

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Ray Barbuti, Olympic 400-meter running champion, and Miss Marian Sylvia Hicks, sister of Helen Hicks, star golfer, have been married for more than nine months without the knowledge even of close friends.

The information came out today when the Olympic hero revealed that the wedding took place March 24 at the Episcopal Church in Great Neck and that he and Mrs. Barbuti now are residing in Kew Gardens, in Long Island.

Barbuti, who starred in football and track at Syracuse University as well as winning America's only flat race victory at Amsterdam, now is in the insurance business in New York.

SMACKEY TO BOX DORIS

Johnny Smackey, of Canonsburg, has been matched to box Mickey Doris, of Johnstown, in the semi-final to the Tom Malco-Joe Colombo bout at the Moose Temple Friday night.

Beginning tomorrow, all boxers in Pennsylvania must wear the regulation tights and pneumatic protection belt prescribed by the commission. Each boxer must have two sets of trunks and will wear the colors allotted him before each bout. This rule long has been in effect in New York State.

Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, and Young Corbett, Coast southpaw, have been signed to box at the baseball park in San Francisco, February 22.

Dempsey Asks Title Status for Bout

CHICAGO, Dec. 30.—(AP.)—Jack Dempsey today appealed to the National Boxing Association to recognize the winner of the Leo Lomski-James J. Braddock fight at the Chicago Coliseum, January 17, as the light-heavyweight champion of the world, provided Lomski is victorious over Maxie Rosenbloom in New York next Friday.

Promoter Dempsey plans to present the winner of the Braddock-Lomski bout a championship belt if the N. B. A. will give its sanction.

Clyde Chastain, Dallas (Tex.) middleweight, has been matched with Haakon Hanson, Norwegian 160-pounder, for a 10-round bout at the White City arena here next Monday night.

W. C. FOWNES IN PINEHURST GOLF FINAL

PINEHURST, N. C., Dec. 31.—William C. Fownes, Jr., of Oakmont, Pittsburgh, winner of the national amateur championship 19 years ago and onetime president of the United States Golf Association will face George T. Dunlap, Jr., of New York, medalist and defending titleholder in the final of the twenty-seventh annual midwinter tournament over the No. 2 course here today. Fownes yesterday eliminated another of the field of brilliant college players when he defeated Walter M. Swoope, of Philadelphia, a member of the Yale golf team by 3 and 2.

The card for the Fownes-Swoope match:

Out—
Fownes	4	5	3	4	4	4	3	6	4	—37
Swoope	5	5	4	4	4	3	4	5	4	—38

Swoope	3	3	5	4	5	3	6

In the second division Ray Babcock, Oakmont golfer was beaten by G. W. Sprague, of Maplewood, N. J., by 3 and 2. In the fourth, A. P. Dysart, of Pittsburgh, lost his match to G. A. Reed, of Winchester, Mass., by 4 and 3, and in the fifth, Lawrence Barr, another Pittsburgher, was beaten by H. P. Hotchkiss, of New Haven, 5 and 4.

COACHES FAVOR 1929 RULES

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—The members of the National Football Coaches' Association went on record at their meeting yesterday as favoring no changes in the football rules. A resolution was passed to the effect that the coaches believed that the rules should be allowed to stand as they are. Several proposed alterations had been considered before this decision was reached.

W. A. Alexander, of Georgia Tech, was elected president of the association, and other officers were chosen as follows:

Vice president, J. F. (Chick) Meehan, New York University; second vice president, C. W. Spears, Minnesota; secretary-treasurer, C. W. Cowell, University of New Hampshire.

Three coaches were chosen to serve in an advisory capacity on the National Football Rules Committee—Bob Zuppke, of Illinois; Glenn S. (Pop) Warner, of Stanford, and J. B. Sutherland, Pittsburgh.

Two Swim Titles At Stake Tomorrow

Two A. M. A., A. A. U. swimming championships will be decided at the Erie Y. M. C. A., tomorrow. They are the 220-yard junior and senior free style events. Russell Lindberg, of the Homestead Library Club, will try to snatch the title from Allen Cross, of the Erie Y, whom he defeated in a 500-yard race at the P. A. A. recently.

STANFORD STAR OUTSHINES CAGLE

Chuck Smalling, fullback of Pop Warner's Stanford eleven, carried too many guns for the Army and was the outstanding hero of the Cardinals' 34-13 victory over the Cadets before a crowd of 71,000 at Palo Alto last Saturday. Above he is shown going through the line for a sizeable gain, while below he is stopping Chris Cagle, the Army hope.. His brilliant play dimmed the light of the great Cagle throughout.

GERMAN SPORT, CELTICS TO BATTLE

By TOM BIRKS

The only soccer game scheduled tomorrow will find the first semi-final game in the local cup ties, the fighting Pittsburgh Celtics meeting the German Sport Club at the Carnegie High School grounds.

The game will be called at 2:30 sharp, and according to notices the game will be preceeded by a school game, featuring Bridgeville High and the Heidelberg School. This local school game probably will attract the fans from around the Panhandle second district.

While the German Sport outfit is without a doubt the best team from a scientific standpoint, the Celtics are a real cup-fighting aggregation that goes out to get goals and goals win cup ties. If the Sport boys concentrate on getting goals instead of playing fancy football they have a chance to win.

REPRISALS THREATENED

Rumors are floating around town that reprisals are in order for this business of telling the truth in local soccer channels. It is going to be stated right here that the Sun-Telegraph column has no connection with any league national body, referees' body, or any committee connected with soccer. This business of acquainting the fans with all decisions and other unethical moves will be kept up regardless of what officials think.

There seems to be quite a little storm in a teacup among a certain coteries regarding the Gallatin-Cecil protest, and the first announcement that the protest was lodged over the substitute rule did not come from these columns. This column picked up the decision and tore it apart as violating the rule, and now we have the belated statements on the same day from two quarters, that protests would not be granted for players failing to report. The other report stated that players must report to the referee. So it is very evident that the boys still have their signals crossed. The Sun-Telegraph gets no official decisions from any cup committee. The publicity committee possibly feels that this is not necessary. So if these decisions are worded wrong when given the right kind of publicity, why blame the soccer writer?

COULD HELP SPORT

If the West Penn officials really want to do something worth while for soccer, they might get busy and help the Pierpoint Motors' football club get that $200 which was not paid at the Detroit game with the Walkerville club, or insist that the Gallatin club be given the trophy for winning the Monongahela League title last season, or demand that the Holley Carburetor club acknowledge the letter sent by the Pierpoint Motors club asking for a guarantee for the trip to Detroit. They might also ask Secretary Cahill, of the cup committee in New York, why he is taking a stand for Holley when he apparently does not know the facts in the case, or why the national secretary does not refer to the letter sent by the Pittsburgh club asking for its help in getting that $200.

The West Penn can do a lot for its clubs in this district if it cares. So let us have a little action.

ALABAMA BIDS FOR BAGSHAW

SEATTLE, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Enoch W. Bagshaw, former football coach at the University of Washington, said here last night that he had been offered the position of head coach as well as director of all athletics at Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, Ala.

Bagshaw, who resigned as grid mentor at Washington at the end of the recent season after a year's controversy with the students and alumni, said he was interested in the Alabama position but that he did not know yet whether he would accept.

GAME ON AIR

ability that any teams in the history of the game has shown. We have made the long and tiresome trip overland with one thought in mind—to give Southern California the best we have. Whether that will be sufficient to gain us a victory remains to be seen.

Two years ago, when we were defeated by Stanford, 7 to 6, in the Rose Bowl, weather conditions were such that I marvelled at the way our players stayed in the game, fighting to the end, although they were weak and nauseated from the extreme heat. I suppose we must expect the same torturous temperature to prevail tomorrow. We are better prepared this time, for we have special lightweight uniforms. Our physical condition is just as good, and I think our reserve strength slightly superior to that of our 1927 squad. But I know the handicaps we have to overcome, and our players likewise realize the difficulties we must cope with.

Fears Saunders, Duffield

Coach Jones has two combinations he can use against us—one is speed, the other is power. Russ Saunders, undoubtedly one of the greatest running backs of the past decade, has run wild in the last two or three games. Saunders hits like a bullet, and, once in the open, is more likely than not to sprint for a touchdown.

Duffield, who is said to be the equal of Saunders in every respect, is another crack ball-carrier who undoubtedly will cause Pitt trouble. And Jess Hill, a :09 4-5 100-yard dash man, has recovered from an injury incurred in mid-season, and will be available for duty against us.

If the three ball-carrying stars mentioned all were the Trojans have, the outlook might be brighter, but with such players as Shaver, Musick, Moses, Edleson and Pinckert to throw against us, Coach Jones has an outlay of backfield strength which has never been surpassed.

I understand Southern California has a fine line. Tappaan, the left end, must be an exceptional player, and from all reports, Captain Barrager, Arbelbide, Anthony, Dye, Galloway and Hoff are stars of the first rank.

Not having seen Southern California play, I am not qualified to pass an opinion on the probable outcome of the game. The Pitt team has gone undefeated because it has a fighting heart. It is not a "wonder" team by any means. Sheer courage and determination carried the Panthers to the Eastern championship.

I think our first line is the equal of Southern California's forward wall. In Pug Parkinson, fullback, and Toby Uansa, halfback, we have backfield men who should hold their own with the best Southern California has.

Strength in Reserves

But the Trojans' great strength lies in their marvelous reserves. We cannot match Southern California in point in numbers. We have brought 32 players along from Pittsburgh. Good as these men are, I know they have not the experience nor the natural ability of Coach Jones' squad.

Regarding the climate, we can do nothing but make the best of it. We have come from one extreme of temperature to the other.

Obviously, I am not too confident of victory. I know the great power of the Southern California attack. I know that climatic handicap, and I know that toll a long transcontinental trip takes of a football squad.

But Pittsburgh will give the best it has. If we win, we shall have beaten possibly the greatest eleven in the country today. If we lose, we shall have lost to a team of genuine sportsmen, coached by a master strategist, and there will be no alibis.

RAIN MAY MAR ROSES GAME

the days of the famous Brick Muller.

The Pitt plan of attack is expected to vary from that employed by both Carnegie Tech and the Army in their games with Southern California and with Stanford. Where these elevens came out here and broke their hearts with mad first-half attacks, Pitt is expected to lay back, playing a safe and sound, though not too exertive game the first two periods and then give the Trojans all 22 or 33 barrels in the second half. It appears to be a right smart idea.

After having watched two Eastern teams fall by the wayside in the second half, after brilliant early attacks, the take-it-slow propostition looks very good to me.

The best basis of comparison that may be had relative to the merits of the competing elevens is offered by the comparative scores of their triumphs over Carnegie Tech.

Southern California put on a great second-half act to crush a Tech team that kicked the dickens out of it in the first two periods. Pitt ran up 34 points on the Tartans before being scored on. And Tech did not tally on the Panther varsity.

FOLLOWS PAGEANT

The game, scheduled to start promptly at 2 o'clock, will follow the beautiful rose pageant.

Tomorrow's game against U. S. C. is Pitt's second venture in the Rose Bowl for the tournament classic in three years. In 1927, Pitt sent a team out here that held Stanford to a 7-6 count. And that is one of the principal reasons that Pitt is a favorite today. The folks here can't forget that ball game. The Panthers played Stanford in 1923 at Palo Alto, winning 16 to 7.

LITTLE'S POST GIVEN MILLS

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Georgetown joined the ranks of colleges which favor the Rockne system of football coaching today by selecting Tommy Mills, assistant to Rockne at Notre Dame since 1926, to succeed Lou Little as head football coach. The announcement that Mills had been selected for the post was made by the Rev. Joseph O'Brien, faculty director of athletics at Georgetown.

Mills will serve for a term of three years, Father O'Brien said. The selection came as a distinct surprise as Mills was not well known among the ranks of coaches and had not been mentioned as a possible successor to Little, who resigned recently to coach at Columbia.

The new Georgetown coach is a graduate of Beloit College, where he got his football experience. He played in the backfield. After he was graduated in 1905, Mills studied law for a while at the University of Wisconsin, then turned to football coaching at Omaha High School.

After three years of high school coaching, Mills went to Creighton University at Omaha in 1916 as head coach. He served there five years before returning to his alma mater, Beloit, as head coach. In 1926 Knute Rockne invited him to become an assistant at Notre Dame and he has been there since to the end of the 1929 season. A large part of his duties at Notre Dame were concerned with scouting rivals and for that reason he did not become well known as a coach.

He also aided Rockne in coaching the Notre Dame varsity in between scouting tours and also served as coach of baseball, boxing and wrestling teams. He is a member of the National Boxing Committee.

SOLOMON SCORES KAYO

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 31.—Staging a fast comeback after a prolonged absence from the ring, King Solomon, Panama heavyweight, slashed his way to victory over Frank Montagna, of Madison, N. J., here last night. Solomon was awarded a technical knockout in the eighth round when the referee stopped the battle because Montagna had received a severe cut over his left eye.

GRID GAME IN SOUTH

ATLANTA, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Football teams from the upper and lower regions of the Southern Conference compete here tomorrow in a Shrine charity game.

Stumpy Thomason, Georgia Tech's halfback, is captain of the ardinal team from the South, and Gene McEver, scoring ace from Tennessee, leads the Northern Blues.

Miss Pat by Elenore Meherin

CHAPTER XLVI.

STEPS running inward from the mouth of the cave. Quick, light steps. Hands tapping along the wall.

Pat pressed herself deep into the niche of rock. Her heart flew about and the arms holding the little boy were leaden.

Automatically her lips kept urging against his cheek:

"Hush—you're a big boy—you're a soldier—hush—" while her madly straining ears drank in like bitter death these pursuing steps; these tapping fists.

They seemed to have stopped right there on the other side of the wall. Their voices cut through it with afflicting sharpness.

Ace: "Looks like a big son of a gun—probably half a dozen galleries. Better go back for the flash."

And lose the rest of the day? Put off the start another twenty-four hours? You—damn—fool! I tell you the little . . . used the radio! I know I didn't leave that cover off! It's find her and shut her up or leave her here to squeal and send us across for life! Gimme that lighter! She's not gone far. She'd not dare!"

"She dared that leap!"

"Gimme the lighter!"

Muffled steps gliding down the incline.

Pat sank her face against the soft baby cheek. In half-fainting suspense she murmured:

"Hush—they won't find us—hush," timing her words to those steps cautiously, ruthlessly approaching.

A pause. An instant of flashing silence followed by an abrupt, shocking sound as of a body falling. Then a curse—a wild, screaming curse. The whole cavern echoed with the groan—prolonged, infuriate, agonized.

Slim had fallen. He didn't see that drop. He went down it.

Pat's brain whirled with the black, dizzy image. Slim coming suddenly to that break, toppling over it, lying there crushed.

She brushed her eyes against the child's soft hair. She told herself, weeping:

"That ends it! They're finished!"

And she listened, almost suffocated, to Ace proceeding with enraging slowness down the incline; listening to Slim's blasphemous, appalling moans.

"God—where are you?"

"Gimme a hand—damn you!"

"Can't you stand? Great God—you've not broken it?"

"Shut up! Gimme a hand!"

A long, shuddering quiet—then thump, a body dragging with sickening thuds along the rocky floor.

"Here—I'll lift you—got the lighter?"

"Dropped it—go on—drag along . . . get me out—"

Thud—thud. Now and then a first tapping at the wall. This fist seemed almost to strike on their heads. It came nearer. It brought Pat upright with a jolt.

And it brought the child's hands squeezing like little claws at Pat's neck; it brought his voice in a shrill, frantic whimper:

"Make them stop—make them go!"

She sank low to the floor, the child half buried in her arms—her lips smothering him. She sobbed against his mouth:

"Hush—oh, hush—"

She was too withered now to think, even to wonder. Had they heard?

A silence that charged like an electric shock now held the cavern.

And at once—surely at the wall just behind her came a light tapping. Then a sound, Ace's voice coaxing. Very gentle—very winning:

"Hello, Billy. Pretty dark in there, isn't it? The bugaboo's gonna catch you. Better come out. Ace will give you a nice bar of chocolate—nice bacon—nice glass of water. Are you thirsty, Billy?"

Pat imploring, holding him to her:

"Don't answer—mousey, dear—hush—little pussy—hush—"

She began to crawl—flashing her light and crawling further back—further away with him.

"Billy—answer! There's a terrible black giant lives in this cave. He's gonna eat you up. Scream and I'll come get you—"

"Hush—Billy—hush—he's fooling—he only wants to find us—he's the giant—"

She crept on—she wouldn't move her mouth from the child's lips. He was crying now—he was pushing her from him.

But she went on with her mad, wooing appeal. She kissed him. She crept on and on.

Ace's voice grew fainter. Suddenly, mysteriously it was lost.

Then Pat lay quiet with the little boy hushed and folded in her arms.

After a long, long while she murmured:

"They've gone, pussy. But they'll come back—they may come back. No matter what happens, don't talk—don't say a word."

"Is there a giant here?"

"No, this is God's cave. An angel lives here—a beautiful angel. She'll take care of us."

"And will we see her?"

"Yes—after a while, we'll see her. But you mustn't talk—don't say a word."

"And will she bring us water? Will she give us something to eat?"

"Everything—she'll bring us everything."

She hushed him. Her brain was busy with its own black torments. She thought: "We're safe. I've taken the only good flashlight left. He'll not dare thread his way back with matches. I'll go away a little farther away from this sounding board."

And she gathered up little mounds of earth, talking to herself as she worked. These little mounds would mark the way back. She'd leave them at short distances—every 10 or 15 feet. Better to go on. If Ace did return with that other wavering flash, he'd have no trouble finding her. She was but 20 feet from that arch where Slim had fallen.

They'd want to make away with her . . . ah, Slim guessed she'd sent out a radio message. Pathetic message! Who would ever hear it! Who would ever track her to this dungeon?

And they'd want the child. She remembered the gleam in Ace's drunken eyes when he said:

"Losha fun with $10,000. Whash a lil' kid worth, anyhow!"

There were half a dozen of these little mounds now. She was farther in—buried in Plutonian dark.

She took Billy in her arms and crooned to him.

He was hungry. She glanced at her watch. It was 1 o'clock. She took a can of the milk from her pocket—a bit of the hardtack and some of the deviled meat. She fed him. But her own tongue was thick—her throat was scorched. It refused a single morsel of the food.

"Sleep a while, pussy," she urged. After a long while he did.

Then she went into a kind of dreaming doze. She dreamed that Guy got her message—that he was flying to her. She saw his silver plane.

She was leaden with weariness and dropped into these intermittent slumbers. The dark had weight. It moved about her like a presence, pressing down with heavy hands. She kept starting from these vague, half-waking dreams with terror; imagining voices whispered; steps advanced.

All at once she sank in collapse against the damp cavern walls. There WERE sounds. There was Slim's voice. She heard it as though the partition between them was but paper. He groaned. The groans intensified.

Terrible, assaulting sounds .....like that wounded soldier who lay dying two whole days in No Man's Land. Just before last Monday Pat had read this book—Remarque's book on the war. And that soul-hurting picture of the broken fellow lying out there and calling on his comrades. But none of them could reach him. And he had to die through a long 40 hours. Slim sounded like that.

He must be fearfully hurt. Suddenly he spoke: "Can you fix the light?"

"Dunno."

"Does the crack extend?"

"Yeh."

"Why can't you get them? God let me get these fingers on her! Gimme a drink."

Quiet—a dead blanket of quiet. Then back there 20 feet or so, a muffled, digging sound. This gave place to a series of resounding thumps as though someone went along pounding at the rock. The digging was renewed.

Like an animal, half insane with goading, Pat crouched. Surely they couldn't hope to hack through the cavern wall. It was late—dark now. They were still here. They'd be here all night. This prospect laid on her with appalling weight. Suppose the two men couldn't get out?

If Slim had broken his leg, as she imagined, even a panther like Ace couldn't carry him up the all but perpendicular mountain. Even lithe and untrammeled, every step was fraught with peril. They knew it. They'd have to find an easier ladder up the precipice than the one down which they'd climbed.

Had Ace spent the afternoon searching for this?

What if there were no possible exit? And they'd remain here indefinitely. Camped at the mouth—menacing—inescapable. While she and the little boy starved in this black, living grave. Starved, and grew crazed. And died.

It couldn't be her fate, and this little child's fate, to be walled in here, to lie waiting while slow, ghastly death crept over them.

She was suddenly aware of his fingers shivering and his cheeks wet. She crept back, flashing her light with enormous caution. She whispered:

"Don't cry, Pussy."

He answered with a choking whimper, the words way down in his throat. "Well, I'm cold. Why can't we get out? I want it to be light. I wanna be warm."

Pat sank her face against the soft baby hair. She prayed, frantic: "God, don't let him shiver so. Oh God, don't let him die on me!"

She crept on blindly, persistently. Ace had some hope or he wouldn't be working at the cave. He was wise in the lore of mountain and wilderness. There might be a fissure here. And he was cutting along it.

Presently she lost the sound of digging. She waited ten or fifteen minutes. Then she was taut, drenched with alarm so incisively did the dread, ominous hacking recommence.

It went on and on till Pat was half-crazed, half swooning with suspense. All night the ghastly sound continued.

Nearly a thousand miles distant another man sent messages that Tuesday through the air—the query Guy asked Lee Templeton to radio everywhere.

"Has anyone picked up an S. O. S. from Patricia Dawn? Wire collect—immediately."

SHOP
EVERY BEAUTIFUL SHOP-WINDOW IS LIKE A PERSONAL GREETING!
THE HOLIDAY HEART OF THE WORLD!
GOOD WILL KEEP THE FRIENDLY HOLIDAY SPIRIT IN EVERY DAY OF THE YEAR!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

THE Holiday Spirit is Good Will!

It prevails everywhere at this time of the year.

The tiniest shop and the mightiest station hang wreaths and garlands touched with red to express their good will toward all who see.

Everyone is thinking of someone. The stranger greets us with good wishes.

Even the bitterest heart must feel the friendly good will everywhere about him.

The holidays give us the privilege of expressing our good feeling toward all, and letting everyone know they are in our thoughts and we wish them well.

How much happier the rest of the year could be if we kept the Holiday Spirit aglow!

If we would obey that good impulse that can change misunderstanding to joy—every day of the year.

A Continuation of Love's Embers

Noel, to Still Father's Suspicions, Agrees to Madge's Plan

I WAITED patiently for Noel Veritzen to regain his self-control. But my heart held a far different emotion than patience—something, indeed, akin to fury against the boy's father to whom he just had chokingly referred. Patiently Philip Veritzen had been bedeviling his son about his feeling for Mary, and the sensitive lad, caught in the toils of a distasteful betrothal, and seeing the girl of his heart entangled in a similar engagement, was goaded to desperation.

When he finally lifted his head from his hands and looked at me, I was shocked into a startled little exclamation. His ravaged face was drained of color and his eyes were dulled with pain.

"Noel! You are ill!" I exclaimed. "What can I——"

"It is nothing but a headache," he protested, "and it will soon pass. But what am I to do, Mrs. Graham? I thought my father would be satisfied when these engagements were announced, but he was in a rage last night after we left here. He said that no self-respecting girl, especially a royal princess, would stand for such luke-warm attentions, and he accused me of showing my feelings for Mary so openly that everybody could see them. He says that if Olina breaks the engagement, he will know that I am at fault, and that he will hold Mary and me responsible. You know what that means. I shall be practically penniless, and Mary——"

"Suppose you stop worrying about Mary right now," I said crisply, purposely keeping all sympathy out of my voice. "She is perfectly capable of taking care of herself. She will cure Prince Georges of his infatuation for her, and at the same time keep his friendship. It is your problem which we must consider and at once. I am surprised——"

I did not finish the sentence. It was not advisable to tell the boy that his father had promised to let me deal with him, especially as Phillip Veritzen's promise had been reduced to zero value by his angry invective against his son.

"I am going to ask you to do a hard thing, Noel," I said, quickly. "We have spoken of the scheme before, but now is the time to put it concretely into action. Can you control your eyes, your face and your voice for the next few days, can you betray no hint of your feeling for Mary, and at the same time pay such devoted, apparently jealous attention to Princess Olina that she will have no opportunity to see or talk to anyone else except yourself?"

He looked at me blankly for a second, then his shadowed eyes lighted, and a little smile quirked the corners of his mouth.

"You want to make her sick of the very sight of me, I gather," he said.

"Exactly," I told him, smiling. "Especially do I want you to exhibit jealousy of Prince Georges, but make it clear that it is on Olina's account, not Mary's. It's going to be a hard task to convince your father that you are in earnest. You must not let your role slip for an instant. By the way, what did you tell him when he accused you of betraying your feeling for Mary?"

"I never have a chance to tell my father anything when he is in a rage," Noel said simply. "He says what he has to say, then goes to his own room."

"That was fortunate in this case," I said, "for it absolved you of the necessity of disclaiming your affection for Mary. Now I shall make it a point to see him today and, casting my scruples for truth into the good cause, I shall tell him I think he is mistaken about your feeling, and that in reality you are much in love with Olina. If you play your cards right, I do not believe he will question your devotion to her again."

"I will do anything you tell me," the boy replied fervently, "anything to get out of this tangle. But—Mary—will she understand?"

"I will see that Mary understands—fully—" I promised, and Noel squaring his shoulders and looking desperately determined, started for the dor.

"You might call this comedy 'The Princess Pursued,'" he said with a smile which gave me as much astonishment as pleasure. But I felt easier about Noel from that minute.

I was not so easy about the other three. If I had approved the international matches and wished to further them, I would have been content, for Harry Underwood's irritated comment was absurdly pat:

"The place is getting to be a bally dove cote," he said. "You can't step without stumbling over a pair of billers and cooers."

I found myself distinctly worried. I knew Noel's attitude. I guessed Mary's, although so absorbed in Prince Georges did she appear, that I wondered if her girlish imagination was in thrall to a throne, and purposely I delayed telling her what lay behind Noel's apparently whirlwind wooing of Olina. But except for that one dismayed exclamation of surprise upon the night of the betrothal dinner, there had been no indication from either of our young royal guests that they were other than blissfully content with their lot. Was the little chap with the arrow stacking the cards against us?

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Golf Widowlogues

"OH, I do hope they'll be happy!" sighed Mrs. Divot, surreptitiously dobbing her eyes, as she and Mrs. Green walked under the canopy to their waiting car. "A wedding always makes me so sort of choky and panicky."

* * *

"Happy!" repeated Mrs. Green, tucking the robes around them. "Why shouldn't Ed Bunker and his wife be happy? They're both good golfers!"

"But, just ONE taste in common doesn't make a marriage!" protested Mrs. Divot, doubtfully. "And off the links they're as different as a Polar Bear and a South American Chihuahua. She likes bridge and dancing and light novels, and he goes in for Anthropology and smokes a pipe!"

"Don't worry about them, darling!" Mrs. Green said soothingly. "A little golf will hold them together, closer than all other ties that bind!"

"Golf isn't just a game of skill, you know—it's a whole philosophy! It's a game that demands more patience and poise and fairness than any other in the world; a game that requires a level head, a steady hand and a cool temper. If a golfer doesn't acquire these he'll always be a duffer. And if he DOES, he'll be more than a good golfer, he'll be a GOOD SPORT!"

* * *

"Next to marriage, there is no other vocation on earth, in which the spirit of sportsmanship—nerve, honor, fair play and a square deal—is so vital, as in golf.

"But marriage requires such a lot of FAITH, too," insisted Mrs. Divot.

"Not so much as golf!" laughed Mrs. Green. "Faith grows so naturally on the fairway, that people don't even notice it's blooming. Faith in each other and—in yourself. Why, my dear, if you haven't faith in the one you're paired off with, you've lost the match before you start!"

"And that goes for matrimony as well as golf," agreed Mrs. Divot heartily.

"Amen," said Mrs. Green. "If you can't trust a man better than your own eyes—if you have not more faith in a woman than you have in your own ears—don't tee off in golf or matrimony! You'll foozle the very first shot. A partner, in golf or matrimony, like medicine and religion, should be taken with blind faith.

"All of which is just good sportsmanship! If you're a good sport you just naturally believe in your partner; you just naturally build your partner up and act as his or her cheer-leader.

"A good sport shouts 'Great shot!' when partner makes a long drive true to the pin, and 'Good try!' when partner sclaffs or tops. A good sport always boosts—and never bullies—on or off the links. And, that's why I say that, in spite of Anthropology and bridge, the Bunkers are going to play a wonderful twosome over Life's Course! All good golfers make good husbands and wives—and go to Heaven when they die, darling!"

"But they won't be happy there," laughed Mrs. Divot, "unless there's a fairway, and they can button their wings back, and make a perfect score!"

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Resolve to Win Health.

THREE hundred years ago tomorrow, young children, the first-born of Plymouth, were celebrating New Year's Day. With all its sacrifices, life to them was just as sweet as it is to our children, born three centuries later.

After all, it is not the year or the generation in which we live that determines our happiness. It is the spirit with which we face life that determines our contentment of mind.

DR COPELAND

On this New Year's Day every newspaper in North America will record the achievements of the year just ended. Every paper will record prophecies of the year to come.

They will talk about money, about invention, about discovery, about politics. The acts of Congress, Wall Street, the World Court, Disarmament, the Eighteenth Amendment, and a thousand other things will engage the serious attention of able editors. Columns will be written to illuminate our minds regarding each and all of these matters.

But, in the last analysis, these are not the final things. Today, tomorrow, next year, and from the beginning of time there are and have been but two things of vital importance: The state of your body and the state of your soul—what else really matters?

What is a man profited if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul? What is a man profited if he gain wealth and education, lands and degrees, if he has not health?

I have nothing but praise for all the wonderful achievements of the past. I am eager for those things that make for progress and the welfare of the race. But, Oh my countrymen, why are we so neglectful of the individual and public health? What is better for you and for the nation than to be rich in health and vigor?

To a remarkable extent the physical health has to do with the mind. That old saying from Junius Juvenalis is worthy of serious thought. He speaks of the sound mind in the sound body. There is no doubt that the sound body is likely to be governed by a sound mind. In many instances, evil thoughts and wicked deeds may be traced to physical disease.

To determine to cultivate health is one of the best resolutions. Let us join in that resolve today.

Answers to Health Queries

MRS. G. G. Q.—What causes inflamed and bloodshot eyes?

A.—Have your eyes examined by a specialist. It is probable you are suffering from eye-strain.

MRS. T. C. Q.—Is it dangerous to have an oversupply of sugar in the blood? Is this condition curable? Will it be necessary to diet for all time if this condition exists?

A.—Yes, but the extent of the trouble determines the degree of danger—proper treatment should bring about improvement. Whether or not the trouble can be definitely cleared up depends upon the seriousness of the individual case. It is necessary to restrict the diet as long as there is a trace of sugar. Your doctor will advise you.

MISTY. Q.—What causes headaches?

A.—The common causes of headaches: Eye-strain, infected teeth, tonsils and sinuses, constipation, indigestion, auto-intoxication, high blood pressure, kidney conditions, or catarrh.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Civil Wedding

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. My sister is going to be married by a Justice of the Peace, and my husband and I will be witnesses. Should my husband sign for me, or should we each sign?

2. Then do I congratulate the groom and kiss my sister?

3. When should I give the wedding present? MRS. C.

EACH should sign. Separate signatures are best, and usually demanded.

2. Yes. But you should kiss your sister first.

3. Before the wedding, about two weeks.

Bride's Parents Are Hosts

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it proper, in wording a wedding invitation, to mention only the bride's parents' names as inviting the guests to the wedding? The groom's parents are foreign born and old-fashioned and feel slighted.

SAMUEL.

IT is the custom in this country for only the bride's parents' names to be on the invitation, since they are the hosts of the occasion. If this is carefully explained to the groom's parents, by the groom himself, I am sure that they will understand that it is better for them to follow the customs of the country that they have adopted. Perhaps the groom could show them representative invitations that are good form, and accepted form, in this country. That old saying, you know, "When you are in Rome, do as the Romans do," is best to follow in social questions of this kind.

Avoid Awkward Suggestions

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When a boy takes a girl out, is it right for the girl to say that she will pay her share? We have had many arguments over this, and will thank you for any information you may give us. M. B.

SINCE the boy is the host, it would, I am sure, embarrass him for his guest to make such an awkward suggestion. If the girl hesitates to allow the boy to spend an overly amount in her entertainment, she can gauge this by making the entertainments not costly ones. Always the thoughtful girl will realize that this is her appropriate responsibility and she will often have to face this problem.

Horoscopes

Wednesday, January 1

VERY interesting and intriguing is the forecast from the planetary configurations, which accent the unusual and singular. There may be some surprising change or journey, and also the romantic concerns of life may give piquancy or excited interest to events. But, also, all matters should thrive and bring much gratification, with growth promotion, expansion and prosperity in employment, industry and labor. All affairs should flourish and bring happiness.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of great advancement as well as pleasant adventure. Employment, industry, business, finance are under benignant sway and affectional or personal affairs may be romantic and intriguing.

A child born on this day will be assured of place and positions in life, with all opportunities of business and social advantages sustained by its own ambition and versatility.

Thursday, January 2

THE new year is inaugurated under very fair auspices for social activities and a general spirit of liveliness and initiative. There seems to be a sign of much extravagance, excess and reckless expenditure, with some financial hazards. However, there is a fortunate configuration for making contracts, and for all manner of writings and publications.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of activity and enterprise, with new contracts and agreements under encouraging aspects. All that pertains to writings and publishings should thrive, but otherwise there is forecast of financial hazard. Personal affairs will be prominent and happy.

A child born on this day should be versatile, clever and enterprising but may need to be trained in thrift and economy. It will be popular and of good social standing.

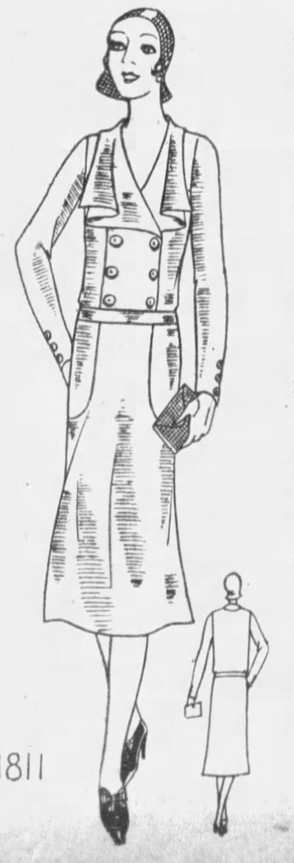
"Stunning Satin Frock"

Pattern 1811

Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS



The model sketched today is charming in its smart interpretation of the mode. The gracefully flared collar is most becoming and the panel effect front creates slender lines that follow into a lovely flared skirt. Buttons are cleverly placed to produce a double breasted bodice.

Design 1811 may be fashioned of satin, silk crepe, jersey or novelty wool. Shades that are shown for early spring wear include beige, old gold, rose-pink, dahlia, claret and brown. Black, and small prints are very smart, too.

May be obtained only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 14 requires 3⅜ yards of 40 inch material.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model. The pattern has ample and exact instructions. Yardage is given for every size. A perfect fit is guaranteed.

Patterns will be delivered upon receipts of FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped or stamps. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE wanted.

The NEW WINTER FASHION BOOK is FIFTEEN CENTS, but only TEN CENTS when ordered with a pattern. Address all mail and orders to Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West 17th St., New York City.

2,000 DOMINATE BIG BUSINESS OF NATION

Ownership Now Diffused But Joint Directorates Narrow Down Control

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—President Hoover's request for the co-operation of trade executives in his program of modifying the business cycle marked a formal acknowledgment by government of the flow of power to the managers of the great corporations.

Although ownereship of big business has since the war been diffused among millions of investors, the actual voice in the direction of big companies has been concentrated in the hands of about 2,000 individuals who through interlocking directorates constitute the managing boards of key enterprises. These men are new economic sovereigns, and one of the problems in the real politics of the nation is to attune the activities of these men to social purposes.

A. A. Berle, Jr., of the New York bar, warned the responsible economists, meeting here under the auspices of the American Economic Association, of the fact that the law had not yet taken cognizance of the new distribution of power. He thought that the new trend could be directed toward useful public ends. The recent formation of a business council to stabilize conditions constituted a step in the right direction.

WEALTH CONCENTRATED

"Large corporations," Mr. Berle pointed out, "have become the dominant type. This means that the bulk of the nation's wealth is concentrated into a few units, and that the property involved is dominated by a relatively small group of men. At the end of the last year there were less than 2,000 directors of the 200 largest corporations in America, and those men controlled between 35 and 40 per cent of the wealth of all corporations.

"While this concentration has been going on, the state has practically abdicated its authority in favor of corporation management. This means that these men have virtually acquired the power to take away private property, analogous to the power of confiscation under the older forms of government.

"The methods used include the power of the corporation to issue no par value stock at any price it chooses; the classification of stock with the power to shift dividends between classes; the power to withhold dividends when they are earned; the elimination of preemptive rights to subscribe to stock; the ability to control market and underlying values through stock purchase warrants, and even the retention by the management of 'blank' stock—notoriously in Delaware—which the management may give any rights it pleases, however much, they may cut into the rights of already outstanding stock."

PARTIAL SUPERVISION

Mr. Berle conceded that the federal government in the case of the railroads and state governments in the case of public utilities had exercised some supervision and expressed particular confidence in the new policy of the New York Stock Exchange to scrutinize these matters.

As for the future, Mr. Berle, who has made intensive surveys into these matters, said: "With able economic analysis and a vigorous development of the law, we may evolve the equivalent of a new constitutional law protecting the members of economic empires, which some corporations have already become! Just as through the development of political constitutional law we have protected private liberty and private property."

The law has not yet taken special cognizance of the social importance of the rise of the small investor. Wise corporations will not only give representation on the director·te to employes, but also to "public" directors, who would stand aside from the management group and observe its efficiency, and its integrity in the interest of outside owners. The public directors should neither attempt to take over management nor to become obstructionists while all goes well, but they should serve as watchdogs for the inert and unorganized small outside investors. To be effective, such directors should have the privilege of calling for indepe..dent audits out of corporate funds.

"RIGHTS" WITHDRAWN

Before the break in the bull market, many companies exploited the appetite for common stocks by offering new shares on rights to their own stockholders at high prices. This practice raises the question whether corporations should undertake to exploit their own stockholders. The wholesale withdrawals of ill-judged rights after the crash indicated that numerous companies, taking advantage of bull speculation, were offering new stock at unwarrantably high prices. One company, whose shares are scattered throughout the land, had to withdraw the privilege to subscribe to new stock at 45 because its outstanding stock collapsed to 20.

The recent popularity of common stocks was largely ascribbable to the belief that directors acted chiefly in the interest of common stockholders, rather than identifying themselves with the bondholders or preferred stockholders.

In spite of the recent sharp slump, the year which closes tonight represents a peak year in industrial activity and corporate profits.

Forbes

The Economic Lessons Left By Dying Year.

By B. C. FORBES—

THE year now folding its wings has taught many of us wholesome, if temporarily somewhat bitter, lessons. We should be able to profit from them during 1930.

What are some of the chief of these lessons?

MILLIONS of individuals, high as well as low on the social scale, were becoming poisoned by false economic notions a year ago and during the greater part of the expiring year. The sustained rise in the tide of stock speculation and stock prices was carrying many people away from their mental moorings. Virtues taught at mother's knee were losing their hold; they were coming to be ridiculed. Principles and axioms that had stood the test of ages were being thrown overboard.

The way to wealth and happiness no longer lay through diligent study, intelligent thought and forethought, industrious toil, perseverance, the cultivation of a winning personality, the making of worthwhile friends, wisely-selected reading, foresight, mastery of teamwork.

All these were becoming hopelessly old-fashioned, outworn, ineffective. They belonged to a former age.

THE royal road to riches lay through speculation.

CHAIRMAN of corporations and charwomen, multimillionaires and mule-drivers, bankers and bootblacks, officials and office boys, superintendents and stenographers, builders and bellhops, presidents and porters, executives and elevatormen, doctors and doormen, scribblers and scavengers, tellers and taxidrivers, financiers and farmers, employers and employes, rich and poor, educated and ignorant—all were gaily indulging in the intoxicating game of getting rich without work, of getting something for nothing. All had discovered a rainbow with a sumptuous pot of gold at its end.

WHY, therefore, not eat, drink and be merry? Why not revel in luxuries not before attainable? Why stay chained to the daily task and let others be whisked on an escalator to the hilltops of wealth? Was not Wall Street an inexhaustible gold mine which called for neither drilling nor digging?

WELL, 1929, finally dispelled drastically all such delusions. It rudely awakened many from their dreams induced by the opium of speculation. Painfully they were precipitated back to first principles. The new era vanished overnight. Stark realities returned. The glittering balloon of paper profits burst. The daydreams of untold wealth turned into a nightmare. Profits were transformed in a twinkling into debts.

SANITY has displaced insanity. We have descended from the clouds to mother earth. Old-fashioned virtues no longer look fantastic. Work, not Wall Street, has again become the key to success.

That is the most priceless lesson 1929 has taught.

TEN years has taught capital a fuller sense of its responsibility towards labor. It has began to dawn on employers that they cannot toss workers aside at any moment and in any number they choose, without creating conditions which, unless conscientiously handled, are destined to react unpleasantly upon themseives.

In other words, 1929, has done something to drive home acceptance of the idea of the brotherhood of man.

THERE have been other salutary lessons, but these two outsand. They are of such transcendent importance as to cause us to think not unkindly of the departing year.

Newton Steel Co. Plans Note Issue

CLEVELAND, Dec. 31.—A New Year's security offering by the Newton Steel Company is forecast in a letter from E. F. Clark, president, to stockholders calling a special meeting January 9 to authorize a $3,000,000 note issue. The offering, it is understood, will be made shortly after the first of the year by a banking group headed by the Midland Corporation of Cleveland.

According to the letter, the funds will be used to supplement the amount previously raised through sale of common stock for cost of construction of the new $7,000,000 plant at Monroe, Mich., and for working capital for the new division.

Daily Crude Oil Production Down

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 31.—The daily average production of crude oil in the United States for week ended December 28 totaled 2,595,320 barrels, a decrease of 25,260 barrels from the preceding week, according to the Oil and Gas Journal. Light oil production during the week decreased 13,919 barrels.

Lima Locomotive Gets Big Order

CHICAGO, Dec. 31.—As the first step in the Chicago Great Western Railroad's 1930 program of improvement, an order has been placed with the Lima Locomotive Works for 15 heavy freight locomotives, V. V. Boatner, president, disclosed today. The contract involves a total of approximately $1,600,000.

FORD CARS HAVE NEW FEATURES

New Ford bodies, with added beauty of line, roomier interiors and a variety of new colors and color combinations, are being presented to the motoring public of this city today. Many of the Ford dealers will maintain open house tomorrow and evenings for the introduction of the new cars.

The new Fords have a number of conspicuous features, not the least of which are gracefully sweeping lines and proportions usually associated only with custom coachwork, rather than mass production. Polished rustless steel makes its appearance in lamps, radiator shell, hub caps and cowl finish strip. Colors that have not been seen before in the Ford line accentuate these new developments of the body builder's art. Fenders are more generous in proportion and with an added sweep of line contributes to the trimness and smartness of the car, and a lower and fleeter appearance is immediately apparent.

New Galena-Signal Company Is Formed

FRANKLIN, Pa., Dec. 31.—Further steps were taken by stockholders of the Galena-Signal Oil Company of Pennsylvania at a special meeting here toward transferring all remaining properties and business to the newly-formed Galena-Signal Oil corporation. The Galena-Signal Oil Company directors voted to dissolve the company and to do other things incidental to winding up affairs of the company.

Officials indicated that the new co mpany, chartered in Delaware, will carry on the business of the Galena-Signal Oil Company without interruption.

United Traction Co. Receivers Appointed

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—Receivers were appointed by Federal Judge Bryant in United States District Court of Northern New York, for New York States Railways and United Traction Company. Benjamin E. Tilton, president of New York State Railways, and Wallace E. Pierce, attorney of Northern New York, were made receivers of the State Railway Company, while N. F. Towner, attorney of Albany, and H. B. Weatherwa, president of United Traction were named receivers for that company.

Bituminous Coal Production Down

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—Bituminous coal production in the United States for the latest week reported by the mines bureau and for comparable periods follows: week ending December 21, 11,156,000 tons; preceding week, 11,593,000 tons; same week last year, 11,096,000 tons.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—The bond market was noticeably firm on the last day of a year which had seen prices severely depressed during its first three quarters by the high interest rates accompanying speculation in stocks.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows. 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

MARKET SOARS IN YEAR'S LAST SESSION

Scores of Stocks Marked Up 2 to 20 Points as Bulls Take Over Control

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—The final stock market session of the year today found the bulls making a grand gesture of defiance after their reverses of the last two months by marking up scores of issues 2 to 20 points. The advance, which was most effective in the steel, public utility, railroad and electrical shares, took place on a relatively small volume of trading.

Cash sales for the purpose of establishing income tax losses were in unusually heavy volume, estimates of the number of such transactions ranging from one-fifth to one-third of the day's total trading. Cash trades are cleared today, making any losses taken deductible in 1929 incomes, whereas stocks sold in the ordinary manner are not cleared until Thursday, bringing them within the new calendar year.

STEEL OUTLOOK BRIGHTER

The day's business news threw little light on the trend of business. Iron Age, in its weekly review, pointed out that producers find encouragement in the undiminished demand of the railroads, the structural steel industry and the farm equipment manufacturers, and in fresh evidence of strength in the scrap market. It further sets forth that the last seven days of December saw ingot output at between 40 and 50 per cent of activity, compared with 85 per cent a year ago, but improvement is already under way and the current week will find production at 55 to 60 per cent in the valleys, at 60 per cent at Chicago and 65 per cent at Pittsburgh.

Midland Steel Products preferred was the spectacular individual performer in today's market, soaring 19½ points. Philadelphia Company ran up 12¾, Western Union 10¾, General Electric 8 and Columbian Carbon, Detroit Edison, American Water Works, Air Reduction, Auburn Auto, A. M. Byers, J. I. Case, Michigan Steel and Allied Chemical sold 5 to 7 points higher. Among the many stocks to advance 4 points or more were Republic Steel, Westinghouse Electric, Simmons Company, Atchison, Canadian Pacific and Jersey Central. U. S. Steel common, which sold down to 156⅜ in the recent reaction, crossed 170 for a gain of more than 3 points and then ran into some profit taking.

COPPERS SLUGGISH

Coppers and oils were rather sluggish.

Call money renewed unchanged at 6 per cent with indications that the rate would be maintained. Wall street is looking forward to a distribution of more than one billion dollars in dividend and interest payments next month.

BUSINESS PACE QUICKENS

CLEVELAND, Dec. 31.—Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland in its business review says in part:

"While business in the fourth district might be termed quiet, at present, some signs of an encouraging nature have appeared, particularly in the iron and steel industry, during the past two weeks. Increased inquiries have been received for material for first quarter delivery, and schedules at Youngstown plants have been advanced slightly because of a few automotive orders. Manufacturers' stocks of tires have been materially reduced by curtailed production, and are now only slightly larger than they were a year ago. A general spirit of optimism seems to prevail throughout the district, judging from reports received from correspondents during the past month.

"Business conditions in the fourth district for the year 1929 as a whole were unusually good.

"Operations at industrial plants attained peak levels and most concerns experienced the best year in history. Not only was the output of goods in unprecedented volume, but the earnings reported by many corporations have never before been equaled."

California to Spend $202,230,123 in 1930

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Dec. 31.—(AP.)—The sum of $202,230,123 is to be spent by the state, counties and cities of California in public construction work between December 1, 1929, and December 1, 1930, Gov. C. C. Young informed President Hoover, in reply to the latter's request for aid in alleviating the unemployment situation.

S. C. Reed Quits Oil Well Supply

S. Clarke Reed, vice president of the Oil Well Supply Company, has resigned as vice president and director of the concern, effective immediately.

Louisiana Standard Reduces Gas Price

Standard Oil Company of Louisiana reduced retail price of gasoline 1½ cents in Shreveport, La., to 18 cents inclusive of 4 cents state tax.

Stearns Company Discontinue Business

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 31.—Stockholders of the F. B. Stearns Company, manufacturers of automobiles since 1898, today voted to dissolve the company and dispose of the assets of the concern.

The assets include $400,000 in gold bonds of the Euclid Stearns Realty Company and considerable real property. Operation of the plant was discontinued December 2. this year.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Dec. 31.—With United States wheat at the Gulf of Mexico commanding the best price basis this season, the wheat market here displayed notable strength today. The gulf basis for No. 2 hard winter wheat was quoted as equaling the price for May delivery to ¼c under that delivery. Liberal chartering of vessels for wheat shipments overseas were reported as being made from Galveston and Houston.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅝c to 1⅜c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish.

Corn closed at 1⅜c net decline to ½c advance, oats 1c off to ⅝c up, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 10c.

YEAR'S EXPORTS EXCEED WAR PERIOD

Record-Breaking Foreign Trade Brings Sales to More Than Five Billions

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH, International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—Another record breaking foreign trade brought American sales abroad to about $5,300,000,000, from $800,000,000 to $900,000,000 more than purchases in other countries, the Commerce Department announced today. That means a total trade of close to $10,000,000,000.

"When adjustments are made for changes in the buying power of money, this record decidedly surpasses any attained even during the war and the immediate post-war boom," William L. Cooper, director of domestic and foreign commerce declared.

"This gratifying result was not brought about by any temporary causes. It marks the continuation of a movement practically unbroken since 1921 and 1922. The movement reflects the steady growing efficiency of American industry in production and of American merchants in pushing sales.

BUYING POWER GROWS

"It also indicates the high and advancing buying power of the people with the consequent increasing demand for those raw materials and foodstuffs, many of a luxury or semi-luxury character, which our own country is unable to produce at all, or only in insufficient quantities."

In the movement of gold, contrasted with the heavy loss in 1928, which reached a half-billion dollars, there was a substantial net import this year.

The gain in the export trade was confined in the main to the first four months, during which foreign sales were nearly $300,000,000 greater. In the remaining eight months trade showed less increase or actual decreases compared to 1928.

FACTORY GAINS

"As in most recent years, the most conspicuous feature of the trade of 1929 was the expansion in the exports of products of the factories," Cooper declared. "For the year, foreign sales of these commodities amounted to about $3,250,000,000, a gain of $300,000,000 over 1928."

Cooper pointed out that foreign sales of factory made goods increased about 90 per cent over 1922, and 200 per cent over the average years immediately before the war. The United States now leads the world as an exporter of manufactured goods.

The importance of this huge exportation of manufactured goods as a stabilizer of industry and employment is obviously very great, according to Cooper. Increases appeared in foreign sales of cotton manufacturers, lumber, advanced products of wood, paper, gasoline, heavy iron and steel, automobiles, chemicals, machinery and other articles. There was a lower level of exports of cotton and tobacco, pulling down the agricultural group.

PRICES RULE IMPORTS

The import statistics have been affected by price variations in the past four years. Rubber fell heavily in prices and there has been a downward tendency in the cost of coffee, silk, sugar and tin. The value of imports this year will surpass 1928 by 7 to 8 per cent, while the quantity increase will exceed 16 per cent.

New records for imports were established in silk, cocoa, rubber, tin, unrefined copper and newsprint. Rubber purchases reached more than 1,500,000,000 pounds.

Among the greatest increases in foreign sales was in Canada. Those in Cuba and Mexico showed a substantial increase. Exports to Europe, North America, Oceania and Africa were greater than imports to this country. South America and Asia also gained.

Rail Earnings Decline Below Last Year

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

BUSINESS is at a lower level than this time last year, but it must not be forgotten that this is usually a dull period. In measuring industrial activity, comparison should be made with last year, not with the exceptional months of last summer.

In these days of small inventories, railroad traffic is one of the closest measures of the actual rate of production and consumption. In the week ended December 14 revenue car loadings were 4.2 per cent lower than in the corresponding week of last year. In the week ended December 7 they were 4.8 per cent lower. Total loadings for the week ended December 21 are not yet available but the reports of individual lines indicate that a decline will be shown.

The depression results from two different factors. One is the reduced rate of industrial activity in almost all parts of the country. The other is the delayed movement of grain from the West.

Rail Earnings Off

THE decline in rail traffic was responsible for a sharp drop in the net operating income of railroads in November. Another reduction is expected for December. The first 48 railroads to report their earnings for November showed a decline of 26 per cent in net operating income as compared with a year ago.

The results for November represented a sharp reversal in the trend. During 1929 an uninterrupted gain in rail traffic was reported until the stock market break came to accentuate the fall depression. Earnings gained with increasing gross revenues since expenses were kept in line with the volume of business and in many cases increased efficiency resulted in economies.

Ratios Increase

IN November net railway operating income dropped more rapidly than the gross because of the fact that many railroads did not cut their operating expenses to any great extent during the month.

As an example of this the Pennsylvania Railroad reported November gross of $53,768,073 against $57,013,034 a year ago. But expenses were $41,822,625 against $41,540,200 in November of the preceding year. As a result net operating income dropped to $7,061,480, a decrease of $4,183,253.

In spite of the sharp loss of traffic in recent months, however, the Pennsylvania will have the biggest year in its history. The earnings for the first 11 months of the year are substantially ahead of last year. The latest estimates for 1929 indicate that about $9 a share will be earned on the stock which is paying $4 a year.

May Cut Shop Work

IF the declines in rail traffic continue, the roads will be likely to start cutting expenses in an effort to keep net income from falling much more rapidly than gross revenues. This would result in reduced employment in localities where important railroad shops are located.

Due to the accounting methods of railroads ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission the carriers find it necessary to do the bulk of their repair and replacement work in periods when freight traffic is at a high rate. Railroads cannot set up reserves for replacement purposes as industrial organizations do. They cannot take advantage of slack periods to do the bulk of their shop and track work unless they are willing to make exceptionally poor showings in earnings during dull times.

STEEL OUTPUT STEPS UP

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade Thursday will say:

"Nineteen twenty-nine will be remembered for 10 months of unprecedented production followed by the sharpest decline since that of December, 1907. Notwithstanding the drop in November and December, steel ingot output for the year, at 54,600,000, exceeds the previous high total of 1928 by 8½ per cent.

"The pressure for steel resulted in new records also in pig iron production, lake shipments of iron ore and imports of iron ore, and, although no statistics are available, undoubtedly caused a peak consumption of scrap. Pig iron output, estimated at 42,700,000 tons, exceeded the previous high total, reached in 1923, by 5.8 per cent.

"Of greater concern to the trade than these past performances are the prospects for the coming quarter. The last seven days of December saw ingot output at between 40 and 50 per cent of capacity, compared with 85 per cent a year ago, but improvement is already under way, and the current week will find production at 55 to 60 per cent in the valleys, at 60 per cent at Chicago and 65 per cent at Pittsburgh.

"Sheet and strip mill schedules are higher than they have been for some time and bar and tin plate mills are more active. Buying, however, is mainly in small lots for early requirements.

"How rapidly steel output will recover is still a matter of conjecture, but producers find encouragement in the undiminished demands of the railroads, the structural steel industry and farm equipment manufacturers, and in fresh evidences of strength in the scrap market.

"The automotive industry continues to take more steel, although its orders are mainly for early needs and do not forecast more than a moderate increase in motor car production.

"World steel output, estimated at 117,850,000 tons of steel ingots and castings, was 9 per cent larger than in 1928, when the previous record was made, and 60 per cent greater than in 1913. This country's share of the 1929 total, at 48 per cent, was the same as in the previous year.

"World pig iron production, at 96,180,000 tons, was also a new record, and showed a gain of 24 per cent over the 1913 totals.

"The Iron Age composite prices are unchanged at the year's lowest levels, finished steel at 2.362c a pound and pig iron at $18.21 a gross ton. Pig iron is 25c lower and finished steel 58c a net ton lower than a year ago."

Liverpool Wheat Market.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 31.—Wheat was ⅛ to ¼ penny off. Opened unchanged to ⅛ off, but at 1:20 p. m. was ¾ penny up.

Cincinnati Brokers In Receiver's Hands

CINCINNATI, Dec. 31.—A receiver has been appointed for Roberts & Hall, members of the New York Stock Exchange, J. Nevin Roberts, partner, filed the action. Stock speculation by an employe, who was buying and selling stock for himself under assumed names, together with heavy losses suffered in the recent stock break, and inability of customers to settle legitimate accounts, were given as reasons for the action.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31—The New York Stock Exchange announced that the firm of Roberts & Hall, of Cincinnati, had been suspended for insolvency.

"What Is This Thing Called Love?" as Frances Shelley sings it . . . The disk: "Little by Little" . . . Leo Reisman's recording of "You've Got That Thing" . . . "The Faithful Wife," a pip of a novelette in The New Yorker . . . Ermine True, the beautiful b'fast hostess at Don Dickerman's "Daffydill" (she's a Boston society gel, disowned for working "like common people") . . . Clayton, Jackson & Durante's new version of "The Prisoner's Song" at Les Ambassadeurs . . . The Red Devil at 137 Mott St., near Chinatown, for swelegant lobster, and the ace of the week's nifties: Edward Hope's title for an article on the Vitale Dinner: "His Honor Among Thieves."

HIT THE SEALING

HENRY SANTREY and Anna Seymour had the seal shattered in Chi last wk . . . The son of one of the Smith Brothers, the cough drop kings, operates a P'keepsie beanery in which smoking isn't allowed . . . Shirley Booth, the actress, married Frederick Poggenburg, of W. 84th street a month ago . . . Description of a certain Greenwich Villager: "He used to be a poet, but now he sends his laundry out every week" . . . Alexander Woollcott may be a better critic, but Sinjin Ervine is a better playwright.

The Dwight Taylors anticipate a blessed event . . . The Broadway lamps are now doused at 6:60 a. m. . . . M. H. Hanson, who inherited a mess of coin from the Musical Courier chief, and the Sherry-Netherland owner's sister will Altar it . . . The Bernice Chrysler-Edgar Garbisch sealing will be privately movietoned . . . Floyd and Gladys Davis (who draw those snob pictures for the ads) anticipate a sister for Tuffy . . . The judge who sentenced John the Barber's son to jail for life will accompany John to Albany to plead for a pardon.

STILL MAKES FACES

JACK DEMPSEY gets so nervous at dinners he draws faces of girls on tablecloths . . . . Sinclair Lewis will do the west for three months for novel material . . . . William Hard's dotter, Eleanor, one of the editors of Fortune, the $10 magazine, writes glowing pieces about B.g Business men that her pappy used to wrist-slap in the Nation . . . . A weekly has barred the names of Tex Guinan and J. Osterman.

E. C. Dreyer, of St. Louis, argues that the largest check ever drawn was for $350,000,000, paid by the U. S. Grain Corp in '20 to the Gov't . . . . If you walk into the Roxy with a cane, and limp, they'll find a seat for you no matter how long the waiting line is . . . . An oil man tagged Bob Haig, who lives at the Lambs' Club, presented 100 of his actor friends with $50 checks for Xmas. . . . Charles A. Levine and Mabel Boll are still flying high. . . . It's a boy over at the Philip G. Fisks', and a gel at the J. J. Carters' (Marge Lanney) . . . . The George Harrolds (May Harper) have curdled.

BUILDING GAINS AT MT. LEBANON

Mt. Lebanon Township still leads Western Pennsylvania in building developments.

During 1929 there were issued 513 permits for buildings, at an aggregated cost of $5,996,134. This increases the total valuation in the township to $25,000,000.

In the number of new homes and their average cost, the township has shown a steady growth over the last five years, according to its officials, and it is predicted that its population will more than double in the next five years, making it one of the richest and most populous suburbs of Pittsburgh.

This report was submitted to the township commissioners at their meeting held in the Washington schoolhouse by George J. Irwin, building inspector, last night.

The following permits were issued: Three hundred and forty-six dwellings, 15 business houses, 41 remodelling, 23 apartments, 32 double houses, 3 duplexes, 45 garages, 5 temporary buildings and 3 public buildings.

Reception Will End Homecoming

The annual "homecoming" holiday program of Beta Theta Chapter, Delta Sigma Upsilon Fraternity, which opened with a dance Christmas night, will be closed with a big banquet and reception this evening. New Year's morning the Delta will breakfast at the Pi Mu Chapter house of the Delta Sigma Fraternity. Wallace J. Boyles and Arthur F. Grant are in charge of arrangements for the reception.

Bad Weather Slows Hall at Mt. Lebanon

Work on Mt. Lebanon's new $225,000 municipal building is progressing very slowly, but, according to the contractor, the building will be completed by May 1, as per contract. Bad weather is given as the cause.

New Years Party At S. Hills Club

The South Hills Country Club will hold its annual New Year's party in the clubhouse, Brownsville and Clairton roads, tonight. The affair will be formal.

Dormont Borough Housecleans Streets

Taking advantage of the high temperature, Dormont borough officials yesterday cleaned their main thoroughfares by the use of fire hose. The hose was connected to street hydrants and the streets cleaned of snow by the water pressure. Borough Manager E. O. Garrett was in charge of the work.

UNSCRAMBLE THESE ANAGRAMBLES

DAILY ANAGRAM PUZZLES

TRY your hand at this fascinating game of Anagrambles—the game that is taking the town like the crossword puzzle craze took the whole nation for a ride through the dictionary.

The game is quite simple. Merely change the following words by the addition of the single letter indicated. Do not omit any letter of the original word. The letter may be inserted at the beginning of the word, anywhere within the word, or at the end. Thus, the word "pate," by the addition of the letter "l" becomes either "pleat" or "plate." The word "drag" may be changed to either "grade" or "raged" by the addition of the letter "e."

The original word must be changed in meaning by the commentary letter. To change "mine" by adding "d," to form "mined," would be incorrect. Rearrange the letters of your word to change its meaning, not its tense or number. Take a pencil now and write in your newly formed word in the spaces provided.

Is Everybody Happy?

By Sol Hess

FLINT IS GIVING THIS NEW YEAR'S EVE PARTY TO HIS FRIENDS IN NORTHVILLE AND SOME OF THE GUESTS AT THE HOTEL = RUDY IS ACTING AS SELF APPOINTED MASTER OF CEREMONIES — AND FROM THE WAY SOME OF THE GUESTS ARE ACTING IT LOOKS AS IF SOMEBODY SPIKED THE SHERBET
I LIKE THESE LITTLE TOWNS - THERE'S A MARK OF SINCERITY THAT YOU DON'T FIND IN BIG PLACES
I GUESS IT'S BECAUSE EVERYBODY KNOWS EVERYBODY ELSE AND THERE'S NO NEED OF FOUR-FLUSHING
IF FLINT KEEPS ON SPENDING MONEY LIKE THIS, HE WON'T HAVE IT LONG BUT I AIN'T GOIN' TO GET INDIGESTION WORRYING OVER IT.
HAPPY NEW YEAR, FLINT! - MAY YOU DO THIS OFTEN AND INVITE ME!!
YOUR NEW POSITION IN THE STUDIO MUST BE INTERESTING — ESPECIALLY WHEN YOU TAKE PART IN PLAYS
YES, BUT I GET USED TO IT QUICK. I CAN DO ANYTHING I PUT MY HEART TO.
WHAT CAN I HELP YOU TO NOW, JUDGE?
I'LL TAKE ANOTHER SNACK OF TURKEY
LOOKA THAT OLD FOOL MAY FLIRTING WITH THAT SKINNY APPLEBY — ALL YOU HAVE TO DO IS TO TELL HIM SOMETHIN' NICE ABOUT HIMSELF AND HE'S GOT HIS HEAD TURNED — HE'S TOO DUMB TO KNOW IT CAN'T BE TRUE.
ANYBODY ELSE NOW? WHO WANTS A GOBLET OF FLIPLESS FLIP, PUNCHLESS PUNCH — COOL, SWEET AND REFRESHING — DON'T CRUSH! — YOU'LL ALL GET WAITED ON.
OH, THIS HAPPENS ONCE A YEAR. LET HIM HAVE A GOOD TIME
LOOK AT THE JUDGE EATING. I'LL BE UP THE REST OF THE NIGHT BRINGIN' HIM BAKING SODA AND HOT WATER
WELL, COUSIN AMBROSE, I DON'T BLAME YOU FOR NOT HELPING ME OUT WHEN I WAS BLUE AND DISCONSOLATE — YOU'VE DONE MORE THAN ENOUGH FOR ME ALREADY AND I'M GLAD YOU'RE NOT ANGRY WITH ME ANYMORE.
I WASN'T AS MAD AT YOU AS I KEPT TELLING MYSELF I WAS. I ALWAYS FIGURED IT WASN'T YOUR MEANNESS — IT WAS YOUR DUMBNESS

TALKIE CLOSE-UP

Imaginary conversation in the conference room of Plu Ultra Films, Inc., Hollywood:

Director—What we need is an idea for the Poohpado Sisters—a big idea, that's what we need.

Assistant — What we want, Chief, for the Poohpado Sisters is a BIG idea. I mean a BIG idea.

Director — Those gals sing hot.

Assistant—Hot! I'll say they do. Those gals sing hot, what I mean.

Director — Of course they're not so young—they won't look good in close-ups.

Assistant — Chief, those gals are penty old—you better not shoot NO close-ups.

Director — But they dance well—and that little one is the best tap dancer I've ever seen.

Assistant — Nobody can tell me those dames can't dance. One of 'em—the small one, I think it is—she taps, what I mean. I said TAPS. The little broad, I mean.

Director — But for story — I don't like to try another backstage thing. They're done to death.

Assistant — Those back-stage operas . . . nix. Nix on the backstage yarn, that's the way I figure it. Back-stage hoke is washed up.

Director—And yet, how else can you make an audience believe a song-and-dance opus? That's what worries me.

Assistant — I'll tell you one thing—you got to have a backstage story to make people take a song-and-dance production. That's the way I've got it figured out.

And so on and on until lunch time.

There will be no issue of the Sun-Telegraph tomorrow, New Year's Day. The wish of this newspaper is that all who live in the Pittsburgh district have a happy holiday and that they participate to the fullest in the prosperity the coming 12 months is expected to bring to this great industrial community.

Big Year Here at End, Business Generally Good

We are at the end of another year—another big year. A backward glance will show that the Pittsburgh district has been particularly fortunate. Despite a slump that affected industry in the latter part of the year, the situation as a whole, with the exception of its relationship to coal, was most satisfactory. Steel had a very big year, with operations practically at capacity for many months, suffering recession only in the latter part of the year in sympathy with the far-reaching eastern financial debacle. Window glass had only a fair record, but plate glass enjoyed bumper production.

A barometer of the conditions prevailing throughout the district is the river tonnage estimate, based on figures up to and including December 6, showing that the total for the year will be about 40,000,000 tons. Last year the river tonnage in Pittsburgh was 33,474,733 tons, which was an increase of 11 per cent over the figures for 1927. This year's rail traffic, 2.5 per cent increased, swells the tonnage greatly, strengthening our position as the leader of the world in tonnage.

Mercantile business, good throughout the year, was topped by heavy Christmas trading, which is significant, showing that the people have money for essential things even though some lines, reflecting also the eastern situation, are effectd by slackness that we are optimistic enough to believe is but temporary.

The new year may have a few lean weeks, but if they are prolonged it will be in defiance of demands of a rapidly growing population and of the need for its expansion in the way of habitation and the production of things that it must have to exist in conformity with American standards, which are not likely to suffer a letdown.

There is more cause for optimism than pessimism. See the bright side and you will have a Happy New Year.

MacDonald's League Trap

British Premier Would Now Inveigle Uncle Sam Into the League of Nations Court.

Thoughtful people welcomed the visit of Premier MacDonald to this country.

He had a chance to promote Anglo-American solidarity as a substitute for the League of Nations.

Instead, he has apparently gone back home with the idea that he can get us into the league system.

If he persists he will postpone, perhaps for years, the drawing together of the English-speaking peoples.

The MacDonald government has issued a white paper, an official pronouncement, stating that in future wars THERE CAN BE NO NEUTRALS AMONG SIGNERS OF THE KELLOGG PACT and the covenant of the League of Nations.

In other words, all signers of the pact or the league covenant are, in the opinion of the British government, destined to be PARTICIPANTS in all future wars, including the United States, which signed the Kellogg pact.

The argument is that if parties signing the Kellogg pact go to war there must be an aggressor.

The United States, it is claimed, must help determine the aggressor and JOIN THE OTHER POWERS IN PROCEEDING AGAINST HIM.

The United States, however, MUST NOT ITSELF DETERMINE THE AGGRESSOR.

That must be left to the INTERNATIONAL COURT OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS, says the British government.

The British government contends that its signing of the "optional clause" of this court, giving it compulsory jurisdiction over all judicial questions, was a logical consequence of signing the Kellogg pact. So when we are in the court we shall likewise be expected to sign the optional clause.

The league's court having determined the aggressor, the league will proceed against him with measures that range from economic boycott to actual hostilities.

We shall be expected to close our ports to trade with the league's declared enemy and contribute our share of troops as well.

Why?

Because a league court of which we are an official member has branded someone as aggressor and set in motion the league machinery, to which we are tied by the Kellogg pact.

IN ACTUAL EFFECT, THE DETERMINATION OF WAR WILL BE TRANSFERRED FROM THE HANDS OF THE SENATE, ELECTED BY THE AMERICAN PEOPLE, INTO THE HANDS OF A LEAGUE OF NATIONS COURT, WITH ONE AMERICAN AMONG THE FIFTEEN JUDGES.

In plain English, this is the future offered us by the Kellogg pact League of Nations world court system.

To most Americans it is less attractive than the old American policy of minding our own business, keeping out of Europe's quarrels and maintaining a defense force strong enough to enforce our rights to peaceful neutrality while OTHERS do all the warring their hearts desire.

Electrical Conscience

A Shock for Wrongdoers.

Psychologists at Columbia are experimenting with kitten intelligence. When a kitten does its lesson properly it gets a bowl of milk. When it does the wrong thing it gets a mild electric shock. And John B. Watson, called the "founder of behaviorism," even trains little boys and girls by slyly letting them learn not to do this or that for fear of a mysterious electric shock. The children do not understand the trick—only know that bad boys and girls suffer an alarming sudden tingle when they do certain things they have been told not to do.

Consider the vast possibilities in the whole scheme! Power from Boulder Dam might be used to provide a national conference! Wires attached to every cocktail shaker. Complete electrical equipment to the Senate and the House, with the President offering rebuke by merely pushing a button. And reformers might carry batteries strapped to their backs. They could rush around exclaiming, "Isn't this shocking? Isn't that shocking?" And each time they failed to arouse indignation they might tap the apathetic citizen on his shins with a high-voltage umbrella.

THE PRINCE EPISODE

By Herbert Kaufman

ONCE upon a time—HOW the years fly!—when you were a mere mite of a girl, and STILL believed in fairy spells, and crocks of gold under April rainbows—when every attic held a goblin and four-leaved clovers were talismans of fortune—just as lady-bugs were harbingers of luck—you dreamed of the day-to-be when Prince Goldenlocks would come riding past.

But why give space to such tommyrot?

This is the year 1929; you're a woman now, with no time to waste on silly illusions. Imagination has forgotten the road to castles-in-Spain, and all the whimsies and fantasies of the long ago have blown away into Never-Never Land.

The prince rode north to wed Gwendolen Snuggs, the banker's snub-nosed daughter; not a four-leaved clover delivered the goods; the lady bugs turned out to be humbugs—and if you keep on reading, the stew will be boiling over the stove and your boy will be back from school before the lunch table is even set.

WHICH brings us back to the prince dream, and the son that was to be born in the purple—straight and upstanding and radiant with gifts of mind and person.

But since you WEREN'T a banker's snub-nosed daughter, and he was born with a BAWL in his mouth, instead of a silver spoon, (which latter must be an extremely uncomfortable experience), somehow you've lost the habit of gilding tomorrow with ornate longings.

You've become a very matter of fact person, in whose calculations wash-tubs, cake-tins and dust-cloths play such an insistent part, that you haven't energy left to go snooping through the garrets of memory.

You sniff, with bitter incredulity, at wishing rings and similar bosh. And though you won't acknowledge it, have practically abandoned the rich faiths of youth, simply because things didn't happen just as you yearned.

SO YOU won't look round to realize how much MORE wonderful the world has become since the Grimms and Hans Christian Andersen went out of style, and radio and automobiles and airships came into fashion.

It hasn't struck you that the first actual era of magic is here with BELLS ON—that, now, ALL things can be—that the boldest dream of success can find the tools of realization—and any son of woman achieves as far as the motors of determination and initiative elect to drive.

The meanest lie that ever blighted the universe—the delusion of caste, of inherited superiority—is in course of universal repudition. Manger or mansion, palace cradle or husk trundle, have no influence on ultimate personal destiny.

Success is measuring all humans by standards of fitness, not by the cheating tape-lines of creed and breed.

THIS is the most hopeful hour among the illustrious sands of time.

Your old dream wasn't BIG enough.

It didn't take progress and opportunity into its account.

It didn't anticipate modern research, the new instruments of enterprise, advance practice, or the ceaseless processes of innovation, daily providing fresh chances for originality and pertinacity.

Men whose fathers hammered horse-shoes and peddled shoe-strings, and carried hods—the throw of peasants, serfs and foundlings—are piling the heavens with skyscrapers, spanning seas with verbal bridges, operating nation-wide store chains, and controlling financial institutions which make old Snuggs' tawdry note-shaving joint seem like a toy bank by contrast.

Nothing stands between YOUR youngster and comparable accomplishment except a pessimistic background.

Keep the home fires burning with confidence and optimism for HIS sake. No whiner ever yet whelped a WINNER.

∴ LISTEN, WORLD! ∴

By Elsie Robinson

SCORES of discouraged girls pass through this department every year. Usually they are bright girls . . . some of them exceptionaly so . . . often they are pretty, capable, adequately trained in business procedure. But they suffer from one, common misfortune—

They can't keep a job.

It's fairly easy for them to get jobs and they're eager to retain them. But sooner or later a certain restlessness and edginess creeps over The Boss and they're let out on some vague, trumped-up excuse. This doesn't happen just once in a while . . . it happens with tragic regularity. Why? That's what they want to know.

No, this isn't a halitosis ad. It deals with a serious, industrial handicap and the answer is plain enough . . . but show me the hero who's brave enough to pass it on!

The answer is . . . HANG-NAILS. Not hang-nails of cuticle but hang-nails of PERSONAL PESTINESS. Invariably these unhappy girls have some small, unconscious mannerism which nullifies all their excellent qualities.

Some of them have shrill, harsh voices that file their way through the most case hardened nerves—

Some of 'em mumble so you get a charley horse in your ear trying to understand them—

Some stick out like a sore thumb, take offense at the slightest trifle, and require constant coddling to keep them pacified.

Some are fawningly sweet and you have to hold them off with a baseball bat.

Some start riots in the office . . . little Tillie Tattle Tales.

Some are sex conscious.

Some are stridently mannish.

Some giggle and simper—

Some shuffle and snuffle.

Some are always complaining about drafts, or noises, or the wrong light.

Trifles? Yes. But trifles that, through repetition grow maddening and will disrupt the morale of the whole office force, from the boss down.

"But people should try and understand the poor things," you say. "Psychology has taught us that there's a reason for such mannerisms."

Sure there's a reason. Handicaps in the past, bad youthful training, poor environment, poverty, loneliness, frustration . . . these circumstances will fix hang-nails on the best of us. But we can UNFIX 'em! If we can be molded by unhappy circumstances we can also be molded by happy ones. And every girl who has been out in the working world for several years has had plenty of health advantages to offset the unhealthy disadvantages of her past. But all too frequently she doesn't think that any offsetting is necessary. She's a Little Bit of All Right to herself so why shouldn't she be a riot with the community?

"But surely they'd correct these mannerisms if someone told them about them in a friendly way," you say, sympathetically.

Try and do it!

You'll be surprised!

I know. I was like you once, partner . . . all tender and trusting. And I, too, thought that if I had a nice, cozy, heart-to-heart talk with some of those dames and told them just what ailed them. . . .

Well, to make a long, sad story short, I told 'em.

And THAT'S why I'm wearing my hair mostly gray today.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

BALANOGLOSSUS is another extraordinary associate of our phylum. It is a white wormlike creature—the length varying in different species from an inch to three yards—that spends its life burrowing in mud at the bottom of shallow seas.

It is far less like a vertebrate than either Amphioxus or a young sea-squirt, yet it is more like a vertebrate than it is like the members of any other phylum. It has, for example, a great number of gill-slits leading out of the sides of its throat, and the possession of a perforated throat is apparently a chordate peculiarity; as the animal nourishes itself by swallowing mud or sand and digesting out any organic matter as it passes through the intestine, it may be presumed that the slits are respiratory.

H. G. Wells.

Again, the front part of the body is very mobile and is used for burrowing; it is supported by a thick-walled tube of narrow bore that runs forward from the roof of the mouth.

The cells of this tube have a structure suggestive of the cells of a notochord, and it lies, like a notochord, just below the principal nerve-cord, moreover, in embryo vertebrates the notochord develops as a tube that is pinched off from the roof of the digestive tube. It is at least possible, therefore, that this structure is homologous with the notochord.

On the other hand Balanoglossus has a point of resemblance with a very different phylum, the echinoderms, (star fishes, sea-urchins, and their allies); in many species the eggs hatch into minute larvae that are like the larvae of sea-urchins, except that they grow into Balanoglossus.

Thus, to link vertebrate and echinoderm is a remarkable achievement.

Classified in the same group as Balanoglossus are two genera of similar creatures that live like polyps in colonies, surrounded by gelatinous tubes, and capturing suspended particles by means of their branching tentacles.

The best known is called Rhabdopleura. It marks the extreme limit of the chordata phylum. The chordata ground plan, reduced to the mere shadows of cord, nerve-cord, and gill-slit, is traceable no further.

1. A Contrast of Anthropod and Vertebrate.

AND now we come to a second great phylum of living things. This includes all the insects, which creep and buzz about us, bite and pester us, sting and poison us, the spiders that shroud our rooms and cellars, the lice that infest us, and earwigs that creep and run from every stone we turn. It is a strange, competitive world side by side with the chordate phylum, unsympathetic, alien, and for the most part hostile and malignant to it.

We can best consider its distinctive differences from other phyla by taking first a concrete example, and for that the size and accessibility of the lobster (Homarus Vulgaris) and make it a convenient type.

The general appearance of a living lobster is sufficiently well-known. His prevailing color is dark blue; the familiar red color of boiled lobster only appears in the boiling.

On contrasting him with a vertebrate, two outstanding differences immediately present themselves; first, his whole body is covered with sheet armour; second, in the place of our legs and arms he is provided with a great number of hard, jointed limbs.

The front half of the lobster is protected above and at the sides by a single sheet of stiff armour. This part is called the cephalothorax—meaning head and chest in one.

The hinder half consists of a chain of seven moveable segments; each segment is strongly protected, but in between the segments the layer of armour is very thin—so thin that it is flexible.

This part is called the abdomen—absurdly, as we shall explain.

Its segments are jointed together in such a way that the abdomen can either be held straight out, or curved forward under the cepha-lothorax; by suddenly flapping his abdomen forward in this way the lobster can jerk himself rapidly backwards through the water, and it is by means of a series of such flaps that he retires when seriously alarmed.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—The cigar and pipe are due for a come-back if one of the most dazzling of advertising campaigns can accomplish it. The manufacturers believe they were hit below the belt by cigaret ads. At any rate their products suffered a terrific selling slump.

The cigaret ads were unquestionably master strokes in sales psychology. By cleverly phrased innuendo they emphasized that old objection to the cigar—that it smelled up curtains, fine rugs and expensive draperies. And cost a small fortune in cleaning bills.

There were also polite sneers for pipes as being discourteous, and they hammered away at the thought that the aromo or cigar smoke was odious. Pipe sales as well as the sale of pipe tobacco took a nose dive. Pipe tobacco ads helped by featuring homely old mossback philosophers as pipe smokers.

In the history of advertising there never was such a forcible illustration of its power as in the rise of the cigaret and the sudden fall of the pipe and cigar. The entire nation became suddenly "cigaret conscious." One felt almost ashamed to smoke anything but cigarets.

Millions were decanted into double page spreads in newspapers. Huge electric signs flashed cigaret charms from coast to coast. Paul Whiteman bands, lighted airplanes, mammoth dirigibles, acres of bill-boards and almost every back magazine cover, paid their tribute.

Thousands of women who never smoked before became converts and women who had smoked only in the privacy of their homes began to puff in public cafes, theater lobbies, limousines and even along the streets. Propaganda that cigaret smoking aided reducing was another coup.

Cigar manufacturers are to use the same thunder. They will try to show the world that the truly great thinkers, diplomats, novelists and financiers smoke only cigars and will point out that gigolos, gunmen and such are invariably cigaret smokers. Pipe makers will carry on similarly.

The wealthiest Chinese in New York is reputed worth $3,000,000. He was born in America and is a graduate of an Eastern college. And he sports a string of polo ponies.

A recently opened hotel ballyhoos "No Tipping" and embroiders it with the elaborate explanation it will add a modest 10 per cent service charge to the bill of each patron. This is an ancient device and crudest of all hotel impertinence. No explanation—and I have lived in hotels all my life—has been satisfactory to me that a hotel should have the effrontery to expect patrons to pay their servants. Any more than a department store should ask customers to pay their clerks. I'm pretty sore about this. But I'll get over it.

The first class waiter adds so much to the total of human happiness that to force him to the groveling debasement of being able to live only through accepting tips is—well, this could go on for days.

A new extravagance for the fond lover has been devised by a New York florist. He arranges for flowers to be delivered to the only girl on train and steamer trips—starting off with a corsage of orchids and ending with two dozen American beauty roses on arrival.

Ernest Hemingway, with the success of his "A Farewell to Arms," has decided to settle down permanently in France, where he wrote his way to success. He had a taste of the Paris attics before recognition, but is now able to preside over a chateau a short motor ride from the city. Bull fighting is his hobby and his leisure between novels will be spent in Spain.

Hemingway should be a hear inspiration to writers struggli through lean days. He wrote 2 short stories before he sold 1 first one for $19 and is another r porter they told to go on report ing—and not try to write.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

YOU have difficulty in concentrating on any subject.

If you cannot work out a problem within a few moments, doe your mind seem to go blank?

Or is it that you give up easily in your effort to keep your mir centered upon the matter at hand?

This must be because you have gone so long without hard think ing.

Hard thinking takes time and must be consecutive to get resul But you can overcome tendency to scatter wits.

It is recognizing the cause of your difficulty that counts first.

And then making up your mind to remedy the defect in you mental workings.

It will be a hard battle at first, but will become easier if yo persevere.

It will be worth all the effort you expend.

You will gain in self respect.

And you may surprise some of your friends who liked you deplored your shallow habit of skimming over things with inaccur —the result of your lack of concentration.

You will never amount to anything if you can't concentrate, get at it.
